INDEX TO THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

VOL. XLV. JANUARY——JUNE, INCLUSIVE. 1890.

The following semi-annual Index of the Conveyances and Projected Buildings in New York City, as published in THE RECORD AND GUIDE during the first half of 1890, will be found of great value to those of our subscribers who have preserved all the issues of this paper during that period. Great care has been taken to keep the Index up to the same perfect standard which has characterized it in the past. The pages are given on which all the transfers of realty published in Volume XLV. can be found, and the streets and avenues are so sub-divided that very few references are required. For instance, transfers of property on the Bowery appear in eighteen issues during the six months; Bowery, in the Index, is sub-divided into twelve parts, so that the least possible trouble need be incurred, provided it is known between what streets the property is located. In this volume we have attempted to go a little further than we have in the past, that is to say we have endeavored to arrange the transfers in such a manner, that every street affected can be seen at a glance by turning to the pages upon which the Index calls for. We take for instance page 13 and find thereon:

University pl, No. 33 } begins University pl, n
10th st, No. 25 E } e cor 10th st, runs northeast 65.3 x east 99.9 x northeast 37.1 x east 47 x south 94.9 to st, x west 154 to beginning.

The above applies when a piece of property is on the corner of any street or avenue and runs in depth upon both streets more than 100 feet, or when a plot has buildings fronting on both streets, and also when the property begins on one street and runs to another. Although many of our subscribers have used the Index for years, some of them do not fully understand the completeness of the work. We are frequently told of errors that our readers think they have discovered, which, upon investigation, prove to be errors of the searcher—not of the Index. For instance, in the current number appears the following: Madison av, from 115th to 116th st, 159, 301, 338, 572, the latter being the pages on which transfers on said street may be found. Now, turning to page 159, the average searcher would fail to find the item referred to, because it does not appear in the alphabetical order of streets. A close search shows the item under the head 115th st, n s, 335 e 5th av, where a plot, 85x100.11, is conveyed. The Index is, therefore, in some cases condemned for a supposed omission which is really the strongest evidence of the thoroughness with which it has been compiled. Where such an omission should occasionally seem apparent to the subscriber, he should search the whole page, and he will then find the item which is referred to. The Projected Buildings are indexed in a similar manner, so that it can readily be ascertained on what streets improvements have been made. Those wishing to keep a file for permanent reference should see that all the numbers are complete and have them bound. A suitable binder can be obtained at the office of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, 191 Broadway, corner Dey street; price, one dollar.

CONVEYANCES.

NOTE.—The figures in extra black type—for instance, pages 657 and 893 under the head of Ann street—denote that the transaction on the pages given is Leasehold, or a lease running for a long term of years. This explanation is made so that subscribers searching for transfers in fee can at once distinguish between the former and the latter without referring to the page mentioned.

DYCKERHOFF
PORTLAND CEMENT

Is superior to any other Portland Cement made. It is very finely ground, always uniform and reliable, and of such extraordinary strength that it will permit the addition of 25 per cent. more sand, etc., than other well-known brands, and produce the most durable work. It is therefore the most economical to use. 8,000 barrels have been used in the foundations of the Statue of Liberty. Architects and those interested in Portland Cement will please send for my pamphlet, which will be mailed free on application. It contains valuable directions for the employment of Portland Cement, a table of results of the strength of the Dyckerhoff Cement when mixed with sand and broken stone in various proportions, together with tests and testimonials of eminent Engineers, Architects and Consumers.

To Builders, Architects and Contractors.

(COPY.) NEW YORK, March 28, 1889.

J. LORILLARD, Esq.:

Dear Sir---In reply to your inquiry of this date, it affords me great pleasure in informing you that in the year 1887, when I was Comptroller of the City of New York, I had occasion to test the quality of the brick furnished the city for use in the construction of the New York Croton Aqueduct. The brick tested were North River, Haverstraw, Lorillard brick, and two others the names of which I cannot at present recall. The parties making the test were very eminent engineers, viz.: Gen. Jno. Newton, Col. Church, E. S. McLean and the late Gen. Gilmore, and their unanimous conclusion was to the effect that in every particular your brick was superior to all others.

Yours truly, EDWARD V. LOEW.

MERCHANT'S
GUARANTEED
ROOFING PLATES.

WE NOT ONLY GIVE THE PURCHASER THE BEST ROOFING PLATES, BUT WE PROTECT HIM:

FIRST—By guaranteeing every box.

SECOND—By stamping each sheet with the brand and thickness.

THIRD—By excluding wasters or defective sheets.

FOURTH—By branding the net weight of the 112 sheets on each box, to satisfy the customer (in this age of light-weight plates) that he is obtaining full weight.

For the benefit of those wanting the very best Roofing Plates, we assert, and are prepared to prove, that there are no other brands of Roofing Tin offered in the market to-day, by any firm, under the four different guarantees given above by this house, and we challenge a public contradiction of this statement.

Our book on Tin Roof will be furnished free on application.

VOL. XLV. JANUARY 4, 1890. No. 1,138.

The anticipations of those who thought that the new year would bring with it, among other things, an easy money market, have hardly been justified. Money has ruled as high as ever for the past two days; and it becomes a matter of serious consideration whether the stringency is to continue. Last year the return of money to the Treasury and New York banks amounted to only $16,500,000 during January, and this year it is liable to be less. Neither can we expect to receive anything immediate from abroad in the way of gold imports. The continued excess of our exports over imports, amounting in November to $34,653,716, must in time result in the importation of specie, but at present the money markets of Europe can spare gold as little as we can. Their obligations have compelled and are compelling heavy gold exportations to South American countries; and Paris and London are maneuvering to see which can escape losing the money. The influence, however, of Congress is liable to be rather beneficial than otherwise. It is not likely that much time will be allowed to pass before some action towards the reduction of the surplus is taken. As soon as this is appreciated, and the inevitable deduction drawn that in the future the government, on account of lack of surplus, will not be in the market purchasing its own securities, the price of government bonds will fall, and before this happens it is likely that large holders will accept the present high figures offered by the Secretary of the Treasury.

It is not an unimportant fact that while all accounts agree that 1889 has been an exceptionally prosperous year in many lines of industry and a fairly prosperous year in almost all, still in nearly every business which has a speculative interest there has been a falling off in the quantity dealt in on our New York Exchanges. The following table will show this fact sufficiently well. In pork and oats only has there been an increase, and this in spite of the fact that our crops averaged large :

Stocks, shares	61,133,161	62,845,772
Flour, barrels	2,947,005	3,214,407
Wheat, bushels	1,123 148,600	1,557,141,500
Corn, bushels	253,135,800	331,441,360
Oats, bushels	90,103,000	85,505,000
Barley, bushels	1,317,150	1,543,975
Pork, barrels	73,080	70,950
Lard, tierces	1,029,055	1,030,779
Cotton, bales	18,681,300	21,751,100
Coffee, bags	14 378,750	20,998,000
Petroleum, barrels	443,867,000	520,152,000

In consequence of these decreases it is only natural that the prices of seats in the different Exchanges have been decreasing materially, the Real Estate Exchange being one of the few exceptions. The falling off is, however, a healthy sign. No one except brokers need feel sad over an increase in legitimate business, accompanied by a decrease in speculation.

The Committee on Legislation of the World's Fair of 1892 will meet this afternoon. The subjects for consideration will be the bills to go to Albany, to aid the corporation for which application has been made to Congress. The aid from this State will be the power to acquire lands for parks which the city can allow the use of to the Exposition, and other lands, for a short term of years, for the temporary use of the Exposition. In addition there will be provision for the completion of the two museum buildings, of art and of natural history, according to the extensions provided for on the land appropriated for these purposes, to finish the walls and floors and exterior, and give the use of these new and unfinished portions for the Exposition. If this is done over fifty-two acres of floor space would be the capacity of the two buildings. Besides these will come up the question of asking the Legislature for authority to raise and expend the money for these buildings and for the Exposition itself. This last point is surrounded by constitutional and legal questions and is receiving the consideration of the committee —Messrs. Depew, Whitney and Root. Another question will be the delegation to Washington on the 8th January and the following days. There should be, for one day, a large delegation of the strongest men of the city, enough to counterbalance the weight of all the delegations from all over the country for the whole session. The names will be selected and the invitations given, and will doubtless include all who have as yet been active in the enterprise. Ex-Mayor Hewitt will present the memorial of the committee to Congress. His long experience in city affairs and in Congress, his connection with the previous attempt to hold a Fair here in 1880, his logical power and his grasp of the English language lead all to expect in this memorial another of his masterpieces. The bills for Albany will be presented as soon as the Legislature convenes.

The attention of the country will be centred, on Tuesday, in the opening of the discussion before the Committees of the Senate and House on the plans for the incorporation of the Exposition Company and the location. The hearing will open at 10 o'clock on Wednesday in the committee room at Washington. The first day will be occupied in the presentation of written and printed documents, the second and following days in hearing oral arguments in support of the bills introduced on behalf of the cities of New York, Washington, St. Louis and Chicago. The framework of the several bills does not vary much in substance. Each asks from Congress the incorporation of a company to conduct and manage the Fair, with the usual powers of corporations. The general scheme is to have the President appoint from each State and Territory one or more members of the company, and to have as many more from the citizens of the city where the Fair is to be held. At this point enters the political element, and after all discussions are over it may be assumed that a majority of the incorporators will be Republicans, and this will not interfere with the management or the success of the undertaking. The President and each branch of Congress are of that party, and all politicians recognize some political importance in the fact that the next Presidential election will occur in the fall of 1892.

New York's claims on the ground that it has a selected and beautiful site, that it has secured the fund, and that it is the only place for an International Fair will be presented by Mr. Depew. He has been collecting all that had been published through the past six months. Other men of eminence and ability from the other cities will rival him. Altogether it will be a field day for patriotism, good-natured rivalry and eloquence, and New York should take the prize.

Another question will be whether Congress should grant an appropriation. The surplus, and the tendency of the administration to expend portions of it for the public good, support the probabilities. New York does not ask any; the other cities alike call for it, and Washington relies wholly upon it. New York proposes the five million guarantee fund, which is what it purports to be—a guarantee. If the Fair is located here, we will go on, and by the issue of bonds and stock raise the fifteen or twenty millions that may be found needful after it is determined what accommodation for the Fair the city will provide by the extension of the two museums. Chicago's subscription has dwindled to about two millions, and St. Louis has made no pretences toward raising any large fund; so this question will rest on this point—New York without an appropriation, or any other city with a large one. A third question will be the location, and it will speedily be found that New York on this point alone has great strength. From all over the country all people want to visit this city; few wish to go to the others unless for business reasons. Chicago has made great claims and possesses great advantages as a central city, and at an early stage of the discussion secured many pledges from members of Congress, and much favor from other Western cities. But they are latterly inclining to follow Chicago's rival, St. Louis, and are not likely to aid in building up Chicago as a more formidable rival than she is now. In the end it is likely they will follow St. Louis against Chicago in favor of New York. Against New York they have no rivalries. Washington claims it as the capital of the nation, and on very strong grounds. The objection to its hot summer climate is answered by saying, that it will begin in October and be held through the winter, when their climate is better than any other. The real estate interest is very strong, and seeks the Fair as a mode of increasing its prosperity; but they cannot raise the money, will not tax themselves for it, and must rely wholly on Congress to pay the bills.

What may be called "Our Annual Rapid Transit drama" is soon to begin. For some years past we have been treated to an exhibition every winter, the like of which, in stupidity and ineffectuality, can scarce be equalled on the English melo-dramatic stage. It is ridiculous, but not laughable; it is melancholy, but not affecting. The principal feature of the first act is the Mayor's message, which always contains a plan. It may be a good plan; it may be a bad plan; but, good or bad, it never meets the necessities of the case. When a hungry man cries out for bread it scarcely satisfies him to be told: "My friend, I appreciate your craving, and I will do my best to satisfy it. Of course, I cannot immediately give you anything to eat, for that would be simply to encourage a wicked monopolistic bread trust, which is already making a large amount of money, and which is selfish enough to wish to make more. But I have a beautiful little scheme here, which before many years are out, will not only give you all the bread you want, but which will provide for the necessities of the generations to come." What a consoling speech! Our newspaper chorus of fates echo it, and call on the gods to witness the words of wisdom. But what says the hungry man? Alas! he says but little, and more's the pity, for he is a long-suffering individual, and knows full well that he will get precious little to eat for all his waiting. His bread is denied him, so off he starts to obtain the best substitute possible. The Pennsylvania Railroad is going to build larger depots; and the Brooklyn Bridge terminals are to be enlarged to accommodate the increased traffic.

The scheme of ex-Mayor Hewitt was comprehensive, satisfactory, admirable; it served to enliven a couple of his messages; it provided newspaper talk; but it did nothing more. Mayor Grant's bill is from one point of view also satisfactory; it has the advantage of taking the matter out of the hands of the Legislature and of putting it into the hands of officials who, if they be politicians, are at all events responsible to the people of this city. We can appreciate the Mayor's paternal solicitude for his scheme. Most of us have our hobbies; those who have not fail to enjoy one of the greatest pleasures of life. It is needless to say, however, that they should not be ridden by a city's chief executive at the expense of his constituents' interests. It would be thought that the experience of last winter would have convinced our Mayor that rapid transit plans are not born full-fledged, but have to be nourished from babyhood to childhood, from childhood to manhood. Mr. Grant may think himself free from responsibility in the matter of the delay, but others cannot acquit him so easily. When the gentlemen in this city, who largely have it in their power to give us the facilities we so urgently need, applied to Mr. Grant for his support in extending their facilities, the Mayor repulsed them with scant courtesy. It may be pleasant and a popular thing to hold an administrative rod over the monopolistic head; but this, too, is a pleasure that should not be too freely indulged in at the expense of the city's interests. The Mayor is not free from the responsibility of the year of do-nothing through which we have passed. If he perseveres in this suicidal policy, it should do much to injure his chances for re-election.

Moreover, does it not stand to reason that all this demagogical prating about Jay Gould and the Manhattan Company will prove ineffectual? The former is a wealthy man; the latter is a wealthy company; the monopoly of rapid transit facilities in this city is too fat a thing to be lightly surrendered. On the other hand, fat as it is at present, the astute gentlemen who control the corporation know perfectly well that it can be made fatter still. They have every reason to protect their interests; they have every reason to extend their facilities. If we work with them the problem is solved for the time being, and we shall have ample opportunity to mature a more comprehensive plan. If we work against them we shall find that they are very well able to protect their interests, and we shall not be liable to make much progress. In other words, the Manhattan Company can be our worst enemy or our best friend. Of course it exists to make money, but its interests are those of the city. We should have no compunction to give it the power to extend its facilities, for the company has served us well. It charges considerably less than it has a right to do. It runs express trains which, no matter how convenient they are, cannot be very remunerative, for nobody can make very much money carrying passengers eight, ten and twelve miles for five cents; and the travel, when not overcrowded, is safe and pleasant. On the other hand, the company itself has very little to complain about, for it pays dividends on a largely inflated capital. The absurd prejudice against the company is as ungenerous as it is unwise. New York has lost nothing through the Manhattan Company in the past; it will lose nothing acting with it in the future.

To sum up. We are presented with a problem of pressing urgency. The crush on the elevated roads is unbearable. A larger traffic cannot be accommodated with the present facilities. New Jersey and Long Island are profiting at the expense of this city. The solution must be as quick as the problem is urgent. We cannot wait for the maturing of any elaborate plan. Such a solution is offered us by the Manhattan Company. It should have its "loop" in Battery Park, a third track, long platforms, and a more thoroughly braced structure to permit the running of heavier trains. Such improvements as these could be effected in a few months, and the edge could thus be taken off the problem. Then, with the help of the Mayor's bill, a comprehensive scheme could be matured and carried out. Any other course than this would be both futile and unwise.

We have no special friendship for Mr. Coleman, but, to speak plainly, it does look as though he has been made a scapegoat. It is true our streets lately have been in a worse condition than ever, which certainly is no trifling thing to say, but that has been more on account of the exceptional weather that has prevailed, and the unusual amount of tearing up of pavements that has been necessarily incidental to the construction of the electric wire subways, than because the streets have been subjected to any less of the so-called "cleaning" that has satisfied the Street Cleaning Bureau for the last fifteen years and more. Public indignation is usually contented when it has obtained a victim. It may be so in this case; but if the people of New York have an idea that any individual has hitherto been principally the cause of the filthy condition of the city, and not the system under which most of the municipal departments are "run," they make a big mistake. No matter how efficient a commissioner may be he cannot keep the city clean with a broom of poor quality and of political make.

More than this, and everyone should keep the matter in mind: Before our streets can be kept clean the poor pavements that exist everywhere in the city must be replaced by proper pavements, constructed, not as at present on a foundation of dirt, but on a foundation of concrete. This done they must be maintained permanently in thorough repair. Then and not until then, and then only with a Street Cleaning Department consisting of efficient workmen and not of voters and party pensioners shall we have streets that proclaim us a civilized and cleanly community. Those who may think that the dismissal of an official who has been about as efficient as circumstances permitted is all that is needed for a complete reform will discover their error in a very short time. We are a long way off yet from the possession of positively clean streets or even decent streets. Mr. Coleman's successor will be confronted with Mr. Coleman's difficulties. He will be hampered by a system of government by "politics" the evil of which is intensified in this case by poorly constructed, poorly maintained pavements, which themselves, irrespective of traffic, make mud or dust according to the condition of the weather. (1) Reconstruct the streets; (2) reorganize the system or no-system under which at present they are supposed to be kept in repair; (3) banish "politics," root and branch, from the Street Cleaning Department—these are the steps which must be taken to make New York a clean city. We may growl, denounce, dismiss, experiment as much as we please. It will all be of no avail. In the end we will be forced to take these steps or New York will remain what it is to-day—one of the very dirtiest cities in Christendom.

The Real Estate Exchange Contest.

The opinions of the New York dailies on matters connected with real estate are not as a general thing founded on that complete acquaintance with facts that would lend undoubted authority to their statements. Not infrequently, indeed, in describing the real estate market, their assertions fringe upon the truth, but in such cases the language as well as the matter of their report betrays with a distinctness which no lack of recognition of the fact can conceal that their source of inspiration is the columns of this paper. When, however, the different reporters sally boldly forth to obtain original information on real estate matters, the result is frequently more creditable to their imagination than to their knowledge. It is not, however, our intention to take these reporters to task. We appreciate the difficulties of their position, and would much prefer them to seek protection under the umbrella which our columns afford than to create false impressions among ignorant readers by the publishing of incomplete and hastily gathered information.

Lately, however, some false statements have been made bearing directly on the policy of this paper which we are compelled to notice. On Sunday, December 29th, the Sun had an article, under the heading "Myer S. Isaacs Presides," which professed to give an account of the present deadlock in the election of a president for the Real Estate Exchange, and of the circumstances which lead up to it. Of this article in general it is sufficient to say, in the words of the old criticism, that everything in it which is true is not new, and everything which is new is not true. But it is with only a few gross misstatements that we are directly concerned. In about the middle of the article will be found the following paragraph:

"Along in 1886 and 1887 the fight between the opposing factions began. Some of the auctioneers were afraid that the brokers would not be sufficiently considerate of their interests, and that the knock downs or fees to the Exchange would be increased. The brokers, on the other hand, claimed that they got nothing out of the auction sales conducted on the Exchange. Their fees come from business done by private contract, and they proclaimed that they were averse to having the Exchange run "as a mere auction room." The late David G. Croly, then editor of THE REAL ESTATE RECORD AND GUIDE, favored the auctioneers, and valiantly and persistently advocated their side of the controversy. Mr. Croly was a member of the Exchange, and according to the story yesterday the brokers made a dead set against him when he was nominated for director two years ago. Mr. Croly was triumphantly elected. THE RECORD AND GUIDE is still fighting hard for the auctioneers' party."

We are at a loss to understand how anybody could have obtained information or received impressions that misrepresent so completely the attitude both of this paper and of David G. Croly towards the different parties in the Exchange. THE RECORD AND GUIDE is not "fighting hard for the auctioneers' party;" it has never fought hard for any party, and it never intends to. If any one can find any statements in our columns which would warrant such an assertion we should be glad to see them produced, but it would take a long search to discover them. THE RECORD AND GUIDE has always endeavored to represent the best interests of the Exchange, irrespective of faction or party. At the bottom these are the interests of the property-owners. The attitude of Mr. Croly in this respect cannot be separated from the attitude of the paper. Far from wishing to turn the Exchange into a "mere auction room," or from desiring to see it in the hands of any party which would limit in any possible way its scope, we have persistently advocated the extension of its functions in every direction. Undeniably at present the Exchange is principally an auction room for the selling of real property. Occasionally sales are held of the shares of corporations, which have no regular market, but they are not numerous enough to constitute an important item in the business of the Exchange. We have always thought and at times have freely expressed the opinion that this kind of business would grow. Nothing, for instance, would be more proper than the buying and selling of railway or any kind of bonds which are secured by real property either in this or any other State.

Furthermore, the Exchange has other functions than those which come under the head of the transaction of business. It is the only organization through which the real estate owners of the City of New York as a whole can voice their opinions and protect their interests. It was this larger view of the functions of the Exchange which Mr. Croly was the first to advocate. His own views and those of this paper are sufficiently well shown by such utterances as these, published in THE RECORD AND GUIDE as far back as January 19, 1884. "The Exchange will never be able to fulfill the objects its projectors had in view, unless it can succeed in so altering the laws affecting real estate as to make conveyances of property as easy, as sure, as inexpensive as the transfer of bonds and stocks. The Exchange will be forced to become in a sense a political body. Its influence must be felt, not only at Albany, but at the City Hall." These are not the words of a man who wished the Exchange to be turned into a "mere auction room." Quotations such as these could be multiplied; but our readers must be too well aware of our position to make such a multiplication necessary. We are at a loss to understand how such an assertion as that which we have cited above could be made even by one whose acquaintance with our columns was most casual. Again, we assert that THE RECORD AND GUIDE represents not a party, but the stock-holders. In the controversy which preceded the present deadlock we have taken neither one side nor the other. We may even say that we are indifferent to the outcome. Both candidates are men of character and ability; both would make good presidents of the Exchange.

We are beginning to hear complaints in Congress and out that the value of the work of the peresent census is liable to be diminished by the unnecessarily wide scope of the inquiry. One distinguished Senator pointed out the fact that some of the material collected by the last superintendent has never been published and classified, and never will be. The subjects to be embraced in the collection of facts tend to increase rather than diminish; and it is perfectly possible that time will be lost and money expended by the present superintendent in work that will never be given to the public. Opponents of the extension of governmental functions, base on this fact an argument for the limitation of its scope once more to a mere enumeration of inhabitants for the purpose of reapportioning the Congressional districts. Undoubtedly the present method of taking the census needs some reform, but it should not be in the way of retracing advances already made. We should simply cut loose from this arbitrary fashion of taking a census simply once every ten years. Constitutional requirements can be fulfilled by counting the inhabitants once every decade; but for statistical purposes there should be a permanent board in existence, whose function it should be to perform the work at present done by the Census Bureau. In this case, however, it need not be done all at once. We could have a continual census instead of a periodic one. This is partially done at present, but not completely. The work would be still better performed if a national statistical bureau could be helped by the various State bureaus; but so complete an organization would be impossible.

There is probably no street in London with which New Yorkers are more familiar than the Strand. The fact that for a number of years the American Exchange was located on one of its corners and that the buildings on either side were either devoted to amusements or to the kind of shops that tourists are prone to visit made one more likely to meet a familiar face on that street than on any in London. It may not be generally known that the aspect of this thoroughfare will shortly be radically changed. For years past the traffic has been very heavy—so much so that frequently a cab could only crawl along, and blocks became very numerous. Their method of remedying this jam reminds one of the means usually adopted in this city to affect similar purposes. For years they did nothing at all except complain and talk. Now, however, the London County Council has taken the matter in hand and a bill has been prepared which will be submitted to Parliament at its next session. It seems somewhat curious that as yet they have no regular machinery in London for the condemnation of property which the corporation wishes to acquire for public purposes. This particular bill embodies a principle which as yet has not been used in London. The property-owners benefited by the improvement will be assessed for its cost. We are familiar enough with such a method of meeting the expenses here, but it is an absolutely new departure for London.

Twelve Months of Real Estate.

The year which has just closed upon us has been the greatest in our history in the magnitude of its real estate and building operations. In 1887 there was an almost phenomenally large increase in the figures of conveyances and projected buildings over the previous years, and it was then a debated question whether we had not reached the zenith of prosperity in our real estate and building activity. It was then thought that we would have a decadence in both directions, and, as a matter of fact, the year following, in 1888, there was an appreciable falling off in the totals. But this was only a temporary lull in the march forward. The year 1889 ushered in a period of renewed activity, and it ended with a grand total that New Yorkers may look to with some pride. During the twelve months 15,085 conveyances of property have taken place at an aggregate of $269,873,442. When it is considered that only ten years ago the year's sales aggregated only $55,563,913, it will be seen at a glance what an enormous increase there has been in the interim. If any real estate broker had ventured the prediction in 1879 that in the year 1889 the conveyances of property would aggregate $184,000,000 more than they did then, he would have been looked upon as a very sanguine mortal, and in this light, if the statisticians were rash enough to predict that before the Twentieth Century dawns upon us New York will see one or two years in which the conveyances of its real estate will aggregate $400,000,000 or more, they would be put down as false prophets. The possibilities seem to be adverse to such a phenomenal total, yet who will say, with the experience of the past before us, that this unexpected possibility may not happen. The following are the tables;

The following is a table of the conveyances for the past seventeen years:

Year.	No. of Conveys.	Consideration.	Av'ge price per Con.
1873	7,175	$145,285,753	$20,248 88

1889	12,312	258,338,176	20,983 66

But the above does not include the 23d and 24th Wards; in other words, the annexed district beyond the Harlem. In 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885, 1886, 1887 and 1888, compared with 1889, the conveyances for the whole city were as follows:

Year.	Conveyances.	Consideration.
1882	9,975	$170 761,163
1883	10,620	164,534,012
1884	12,262	182,044,304
1885	11,412	184,837,797
1886	13,569	243,981,539
1887	13,896	258,663,980
1888	12,035	217,732,936
1889	15,085	269,873,442

In the mortgages recorded it will be seen that they have numbered 14,335, with an aggregate amount of $181,908,730, as compared with 13,426 and a total of $136,173,474 last year. The most interesting and important feature of the bond and mortgage market this year has been the increase in the number and amount of the loans made at a rate of interest under 5 per cent. per annum. Some of these have been as low as 4 per cent., but the vast majority h ve been at 4½ per cent. The number was 1,811 and the amount $37,906,948, as compared with 1,137 and $22,261,709 during the year 1888. And here it may be added that it is somewhat curious that, while we are being told that the rates for money are rather stiff at present, the figures show that during November and December last $7,247,996 was loaned at less than 5 per cent., as against $4,373,492 in the corresponding months of 1888. Our banks and our trust and insurance companies have taken mortgages for $51,363,426, as compared with $49,665,495 in the previous year. The following are the figures:

BUILDINGS CLASSIFIED BY DISTRICTS FOR THE YEAR 1889.

The following table shows the number and kind of buildings erected in seven districts of the city, and will enable our readers to judge of the character as well as the number and cost of the structures which have been planned during 1889:

	Flats and Tenements.		Private Dwellings.		Office B'gs, Hotels, Stores, Churches, Etc.		Miscell., Stables, Shops, Etc.

In the figures of projected buildings we see what an enormous sum of money is involved in the new structures for the year. While the number has been some 600 larger than in 1888 the total estimated cost was $68,792,031 as against $47,142,478. The magnitude of the tran actions involved in last year's projected buildings will be appreciated when it is said they are trebly as large as those ten years earlier, the aggregate cost in 1879 being only $22,507,322. The following are the figures:

Notes on Conveyances, Mortgages and Buildings for the Month.

The filings for December embrace many important transactions which the readers of this paper are no doubt familiar with, but as a matter of convenience for the careful reader and an aid to those busy men who have been unable to spare the time necessary for a careful perusal of the list of conveyances and mortgages, we give here a memorandum of the more important items, with such explanatory remarks and comparisons as are deemed necessary.

OFFICE BUILDINGS.

These sales were completed in the way of office buildings, and it is admitted that the figures realized are up to the standard. The buildings are not at all modern ones:

Liberty st, Nos. 60 and 62, four-story stone front. Wm. Ziegler. $240,000
Broad st, No. 52, 20.11x112.6x18.2x111.8.
New st, No. 50, 25x67x21.4x74.2, two four-story brick office buildings.
Buyer, Hugh N. Camp. 108,500

Mr. Ziegler is known to have made a fortune out of baking powder and he is the owner of the Stone building at Nos. 28–36 Liberty street. Mr. Camp is well known as a real estate appraiser and recently has been investing in improved property in the down-town streets.

ON NASSAU STREET.

Values on this street are ranging high, as the sales which follow testify. In connection with these particular properties we may say that title thereto will soon be lodged in Brewer George Ehret, who is said to be the real buyer.

No. 78, e s, 75.10 n John st, 24x76.10, three-story brick store. Lewis Phillips. $72,500
No. 76, e s, 51.10 n John st, 24x76.10. Same buyer. 77,500

The first parcel, No. 78, was sold at auction last October, and No. 76 was sold at private contract.

ALONG BROADWAY.

Here are the changes on this busy thoroughfare, between Grand and 14th streets. It will be noticed that the purchasers of Nos. 594 and 596 are the Messrs. Weld, who during the last couple of years have been large investors in Broadway property. The northwest corner of Duane and the southwest corner of Leonard street being embraced in their investments. Concerning the Colonnade Hotel, etc., the deed, although filed in November, was executed way back in 1881.

Broadway, Nos. 594 and 596, e s, 55x198 to Crosby st, x47x198, five-story stone front store. Wm. G. and Wm. F. Weld. $325,000
Broadway, Nos. 726-730, Colonnade Hotel and show building, with five three-story stone front dwell'gs on Lafayette pl. C. M. Stewart widow and devisee of A. T. Stewart to Henry Hilton. Dated March 1, 1881. 465,000

BETWEEN FRANKLIN AND FOURTEENTH STREETS.

The changes in this section, especially west of Broadway, are not very numerous, but are of a character which show that material changes will soon be made by the construction of large and handsome buildings for business purposes, and the rental in advance of completion of some now under way makes it clear that there is a demand to be supplied. The figures realized for the improved properties are good, while those obtained for the unimproved, although large, are not considered extravagant, because of the possibilities of large returns when suitable buildings replace the old structures which now occupy the several plots. The items marked with a * are to be improved at once and it is very likely that some of the others will also be rebuilt.

*Franklin st, No. 56, n e cor Courtlandt al'ey, 25x100. Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Co. (Sold Oct. 18th at $37,000). $48,500

Univerity pl, n e cor 10th st, 65.3x154x irreg, three and four-story dwell'gs. Albert S. Rosenbaum. 130,000

The last described property adjoins the Hotel Albert, which is also owned by Mr. Rosenbaum.

THE BOWERY.

Very few changes take place in owners on the Bowery, so that these sales are given to show how property is valued there.

No. 193, 25x102, five-story brick store. W. S. Anderson et al. $95,000
No. 309, e s, 30.10 n 2d st, 20.3x75.5x19.11x—, four-story brick store. 34,600

In the year 1856, No. 309 was sold at auction for $17,050, so that the recent sale shows an advance of over 100 per cent.

GRAND STREET.

No. 271, s e cor Forsyth st, 20x62, three-story brick store. Samuel Cohn to Dorothea Wolff. $112,500

Simultaneously with the sale of the above corner a lease thereof by the buyer to the seller was arranged at $7,875 per annum for a term of ten years. This represents 7 per cent. on the price paid for the property, which is considered very high. Within the past few months we have noticed many cases like the above where stores on the leading avenues and streets have been sold at astonishingly high figures, and leases arranged between the parties to the sales by which the seller agrees to take—in fact does take—the property for a term of years at a figure which allows a good return on the investment.

COSTLY DWELLINGS.

A noticeable and satisfactory feature in connection with the sale of costly residences is that three of the five houses mentioned were sold to out-of-town people. There is plenty of room in this city for persons who desire to live in the fashionable centres.

44th st, No. 5 E., 27x100.5. Hannah E. wife of Henry B. Barnes. $70,000
*72d st, No. 134 W., 20x102.2. Wm. M. Kilthoff, Staten Island, N. Y. 55,000
64th st, No. 30, s w cor Madison av, 28.3x100.5. Ex-Mayor Seth Low, of Brooklyn. 100,000
28th st, No. 11 W., 25x98.9. Sarah A. Knight, of Baltimore, Md. 63,000
Madison av, n w cor 80th st, 22.2x70. Emma G. wife of Geo. Milmine. 50,000

WEST FIFTY-NINTH STREET.

Lots on this street are being slowly but surely absorbed for building purposes, and some of the structures lately built, with those projected, the latter including the German Club and Catholic Club houses, will make this street an attractive one. The latest sale is as follows:

59th st, s s, 175 w 5th av plaza, 50x100.5. Collis P. Huntington. $70,000

Speaking of the clubs, it will be remembered that each bought a plot of six lots, three on 59th and three on 58th street. The German Club paid $150,000 and the Catholic Club $165,000. The latter have sold the 58th street lots, 75x90, to R. Lo Forte at $50,000, and the German Club offer for sale a similar plot on the same street.

FLATS.

12th st, No. 130 W., 25x103.3, five-story stone front. Annie C. B. Foster. $47,500
82d st, n w cor Park av, 115x102.2, three five-story brick flats. Norman L. Munro. 237,500
3d av, w s, from 66th to 67th st, 200.10x80, ten five-story brick flats with stores. R. H. Craft. Mort. $337,500. other consid. and 12,500
Same property. C. G. and W. C. Martin. 450,000

The first of the above flats is noted because it is located in a district where lots are much sought after by builders, and as the flat was recently built the figure realized may help builders in determining what they can afford to pay for lots. Sale number two really belongs under the head of exchanges, but as a steamboat was given in part payment we include it under this head. Concerning the third parcel, we must say it has had its "ups and downs." The official filings show it changed hands in April, 1887, at $500,000, when out-of-town property was taken in part payment and a mortgage for the full amount of the purchase price, i. e. $500,000, was given to the Equitable Life. It was recently sold for $12,500 and another consideration, which latter is said to be a mortgage for $337,500, and still later was transferred at $450,000, or $50,000 less than the mortgage placed thereon in 1887.

This building was erected by Messrs. Charles Buek & Co., and by them transferred to J. Monroe Taylor in August, 1888, at $200,000. At the same time Mr. Taylor also bought from Mr. Buek the dwelling No. 34 East 73d street at $60,000, and sold to Mr. Buek the flats Nos. 37 and 38 Gramercy Park at $75,000. Subsequently Mr. Taylor exchanged the 9th avenue corner for flats on 3d avenue. The present owners occupy the corner store as a bank.

WEIL & MAYER'S DEALINGS.

Here is a list of the parcels which the above-named operators have taken title to during December:

Elizabeth st, Nos. 232 and 234, five-story front and four-story rear tenem'ts. B. A. Klein. $42,000
Oliver st, Nos. 77 and 79, small buildings. 25,000

Pitt st, No. 29, five-story brick store and tenem't. 26,250
Lewis st, No. 86, two-story buildings. 8,000

And below is given a list of the properties the same dealers have disposed of. At least two of the properties were bought and sold during the same month, and both transactions show the profit realized.

Lewis st, No. 10, five-story brick store and tenem't. $30,000
73d st, No. 426 E., five-story brick store and tenem't. 23,750

* In connection with this sale it should be added that the premises have been leased to the West End Club at from $2,820 to $3,000 per annum.

*Suffolk st, No. 125, five-story front and rear tenem'ts. Dec. 16. 33,000
Mott st, No. 307, five-story tenem't. Dec. 23. 23,500

HERMAN WRONKOW.

The filings show that this speculator continues to increase the value of such parcels as he handles, by conveying property to his book-keeper, Griffin Tompkins, at figures largely in excess of what is actually paid for them. Here is a sample:

113th st, Nos. 349–353 E., n s, 100 w 1st av, 50x100.10, three two-story brick dwell'gs. Alfred J. Baker to Herman Wronkow. $13,575
Same property. Herman Wronkow to Griffin Tompkins. 17,500

This shows an apparent advance of nearly 30 per cent., whereas in reality there is no resale, simply a transfer to an employé. Mortgages aggregating $11,500 at 5 per cent. interest have been placed on the houses. Since writing the foregoing, the property has been reconveyed to Mr. Wronkow at $18,000. This is a sample of the way the records are encumbered by filings made simply for effect.

FIFTH AVENUE.

Here are two sales, the first embracing improved property and the last unimproved.

5th av, n w cor 13th st, 51.7x100, four and three-story brick and stone dwell'gs. Frank Fuller. $150,000
5th av, s e cor 94th st, 25.2x102.3. John H. Gray. 26,700

AN UPPER THIRD AVENUE CORNER.

3d av, n w cor 107th st, 50.5x100, vacant. Hyman Sarner. 35,000

WEST SIDE LOTS.

West End av, n w cor 71st st, 25x100. Superintendent of Buildings Thos. J. Brady. 15,000
9th av, s w cor 85th st, 102.2x100. B. J. Ludwig. 71,000
73d st, s s, 200 e 9th av, 75x102.2. F. G. Bourne. 54,000
West End av, s w cor 103d st, 100.11x154.10. Eliz. wife of J. H. Steinmetz. 80,000
10th av, n w cor 59th st, 8 lots, with stone dwell'g. Foreclos. Rachel wife of Theo. Cohnfeld. 75,500

The sales quoted, with a single exception, show large advances on figures formerly realized for such lots. For instance, the corner of 85th street brought $71,000. Ten years ago the seller bought these lots, together with eleven adjoining lots, at $45,000. The lots on 73d street which were lately sold at $54,000 changed hands in June, 1885, at $42,000. The plot corner of West End avenue and 103d street is at the highest ratio yet realized for lots in that locality, the corner bringing $20,000, the inside avenue lots $12,000 each and the street lots $10,000 each. For the eight lots corner of 10th avenue and 59th street $800 less was realized than they brought at auction in 1886.

A SITE FOR RECEPTION HOUSE OF THE NEW YORK JUVENILE ASYLUM

Has been secured at Nos. 104, 106 and 108 West 27th street, where a plot 60x98.9, with three three-story buildings, has been purchased at an expense of $52,000. No plans have as yet been selected, but a model building will be erected as soon as possible.

The last-mentioned is for the full amount at which the property changed hands on even date with the making of the mortgage.

Kings County Statistics.

The tables for Kings County show a considerable increase all round. The conveyances numbered 17,523 as against 13,967 in 1888, and they aggregated $81,618,104 as compared with $56,966,012. The mortgages numbered 14,317 as against 11,475, and aggregated $59,551,565 as compared with $40,669,429. A notable feature during the year was the lower rates, as in New York, of the mortgages made, there being $38,014,192 loaned at 5 per cent. or less interest, while in 1888 there was only $27,155,297. In projected buildings there was an increase of over 1,000 in number and nearly $4,000,000 in amount. The following are the figures:

A Chance for the Material Men.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

We were astonished in reading last Saturday's RECORD at the remarks you make in regard to the foreclosure sale of houses partly finished in 99th street, between 8th and 9th avenues. We think you should have satisfied yourself as to the facts before making the disparaging remarks therein expressed. We have always been jealous of our reputation, and before beginning foreclosure proceedings waited six months to give all parties interested a chance to combine and carry out the transaction, and it was only after all such efforts proved futile that we foreclosed.

If any one of the material or mechanic's lien men had been at the sale, and bid up to our claim, we would have been glad to let them buy, and, as it is, we stand ready now to do the same thing if they will come forward at once. It has never been our desire, and never will be, to make anything out of the loss of others if it is in our power to do so. Of course this is all our own private matter, and concerns no one but ourselves; we only make these remarks in order that you may be more guarded in the future, and not reproduce all the gibberish you may hear on the floor of the Exchange.

The Block Bill.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The block indexing act of New Jersey, referred to in your issue of last week, was copied, for the most part, from the original block indexing bill drawn by me and included in my report to the Legislature of this State in 1885. Its title is the same as well as most of its provisions. Your readers will be pleased to learn that the block maps directed to be made for this city by the act passed last winter are well in hand, and being made by the Tax Commissioners in the most satisfactory manner. Copies of them, when completed, are likely to be in great demand.

NEW YORK, January 2, 1890. DWIGHT H. OLMSTEAD.

Decision Important to Auctioneers.

On October 23d last, Auctioneer John F. B. Smyth offered at auction the premises Nos. 114 and 116 East 120th street, for L. A. Nones, owner, which were knocked down to Cornelius Weston, who paid the auctioneer 10 per cent. on his bid, and $40 for knock-down and Exchange fees. Subsequently Weston refused to complete his purchase, claiming the buildings were not in as good condition as represented, and the owner, to avoid a long litigation, compromised with Weston by requesting the auctioneer to return him the 10 per cent., on receiving which Weston surrendered to the auctioneer the 10 per cent. receipt, with an agreement signed by him on the back thereof, that "the within sale is hereby annulled, cancelled and rescinded by mutual consent of both parties." It was proved on the trial that when Weston called with his lawyer on Smyth, the auctioneer, and received the 10 per cent., nothing was said about the knock-down fees; but afterwards Weston made a demand on the auctioneer for the $40, so paid by him, which Smyth refused. Weston then sued Smyth in the Ninth District Court, and on the 6th inst. a trial was had before Judge Fallon, who handed down his decision on the 24th inst. in favor of the defendant, the auctioneer. Kurzman & Yeaman, attorneys for plaintiff; B. F. McCahill, for defendant.

Satisfied Mortgages.

Charles A. Blauvelt, the satisfaction clerk in the Register's office, who has held the position for many years, says that as compared with any other year of his incumbency there has been 50 per cent. more of mortgages satisfied during the year just passed. Another remarkable feature is the great proportion of mortgages satisfied for which no new mortgages were given.

Notes and Items.

A meeting to advocate increased rapid transit facilities will take place at the Atheneum, on 155th street, near 10th avenue, on Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, at which Cyrus Clark, S. E. Church, Lawson N. Fuller, I. L. Peet, John Stratton and other citizens will speak.

As soon as spring comes the work will be commenced on the plaza, at the entrance to the Central Park, at 110th street and 5th avenue. The plans and specifications are nearly completed, and the buildings on the land condemned for the purpose have been sold.

A petition has been presented to the Board of Street Opening and Improvement, for the opening of Audubon avenue, between 165th and 175th streets. The matter has been referred to the Commissioner of Public Works for report.

The Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, in the matter of acquiring title to that part of East 146th street, from Railroad avenue East to St. Ann's avenue, give notice that their completed assessment list has been deposited at the Department of Public Works, there to remain until the 12th of February. Objections, if any, must be presented before that date.

The Corporation Counsel gives notice that application will be made to the Supreme Court on the 28th of January for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, in the matter of acquiring title to a strip of land 20 feet in width, extending in an easterly direction from the easterly termination of 167th street to the Harlem River, for the purposes of drainage.

It is expected that the directors of the Real Estate Exchange will make a great effort to settle the question of the election of officers at their meeting during the coming week. It does not seem likely, however, that a president will be elected, as Vice-President Myer S. Isaacs seems intent in maintaining the position he took at the last meeting of the newly-elected directors.

Plans are being prepared by the order of the trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art for the addition to the building in the Central Park. Four hundred thousand dollars was appropriated by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the work, of which $300,000 will be spent on the addition and the residue on repairing the old building. The president of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Jesup, wants $2,000,000 more for the completion of the south front of the building in time for the World's Fair.

Rapid Transit Again to the Fore

A CHAT WITH THE MAYOR.

It was not to be expected that the rapid transit problem would be shelved because little or nothing has been said about it since last spring. The necessity for grappling with the problem is more urgent than ever, and the question for our authorities to solve is: (1) How shall we obtain better accommodations with the present system of elevated roads, and (2) how shall we provide for the great future population of the metropolis of the United States?

Mayor Grant is going to introduce at Albany, for the second time, a measure with which he proposes to solve the rapid transit problem. The bill is substantially the same as that introduced by him last year. He hopes to settle the question for a generation to come by a comprehensive solution of the difficulty, and he states that he is ambitious to have it done during the term of his Mayoralty.

THE MAYOR TALKS.

A representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called on Mayor Grant and had a short talk with him on the matter:

"The bill which we propose to introduce this year is substantially the same as that which was killed by the Legislature last year," he said. "There may be slight changes here and there, but the bill will be practically unaltered. It allows of the construction of an underground road under Broadway, but not of an elevated railway, which would not be tolerated by the property owners along that thoroughfare. It allows of a viaduct road to cut through the blocks. It permits an elevated railway to cross Broadway, but only for a very short distance."

"Do you think, Mr. Mayor, that the people whose property would be affected would allow the blocks to be ruined by a viaduct road running through them."

"Why not. They would be paid for the damage done to their property," said the Mayor. "The property can be taken anyway without a special law, provided that proper compensation is given to the owners."

"Do you not think that some measures of temporary relief are necessary by extending the facilities of the present elevated system, for New York will be suffering during all the years it will take to carry out a new plan. Have you the same strong objection now, Mr. Mayor, as you had last year, to the construction of the Battery loop by the Manhattan Company?"

"I certainly have. They have nearly got all the park now, and if they obtained the loop they would take up what is left."

"I have an impression, Mr. Mayor, that you are mistaken. The present lines of the elevated roads only take up a narrow strip on the eastern side of Battery Park. They do not by any means take up the entire park, nor would they, even if the loop they ask for is leased to them."

"Oh, no; you are mistaken," said the Mayor. "I have looked over the ground, and I know that the proposed loop would take up practically all that is left of the park." *

Continuing, the Mayor said: "If they want any more terminal facilities they should buy property in the neighborhood of the Battery, along State street for instance."

The writer suggested that it might be worth while to let the Manhattan Road have the loop if it would conduce to the convenience and comfort of half a million people daily. But the Mayor was very positive. It was out of the question, he felt, to give them any more of the park. They must get the ground outside of it.

There is no question but what the Manhattan Road could, with a few more switches and with better terminal facilities, give the people of New York better accommodations. This is seen at Franklin street, where one switch alone greatly reduced the crush on the 6th avenue line and facilitated the quick dispatch of trains during the busy hours. It has been suggested that the Manhattan Road should construct its loop at the northern termini of the roads, but the company says that this will not afford relief, for it is at the southern terminus where the block occurs, as it is there where the four lines of the entire system converge, and this is what creates the block.

The advantages obtained by a loop over an ordinary terminus is illustrated in the loop built by the Broadway Surface Road at the South Ferry. Instead of having to stop their cars and unhinge their horses and harness them to the reverse side of the car, the horses are driven round the loop, or what is really a continuous terminal circle, without unharnessing them and without delay. A slight stop takes place to allow passengers from the different ferries to board the cars, but the delay is only that of a few seconds, and the cars go on their northward journey again. This enables five and six cars to run round the circle and start northward in three minutes or less, instead of only one starting in the same time, as is the case under the system in vogue on the Third Avenue and other horse car lines. It is clear, therefore, that this loop alone would greatly relieve traffic on the "L" roads, and if the city persists in opposing the further use of the Battery, the Manhattan Road will probably find it necessary to purchase a strip of property along the line or in the rear of State street. This might cost considerable money, but it would pay in the long run, as it would only add very heavily to its interest charges.

Among the roads that might be expected to take part in the rapid transit battles this session are the elevated, viaduct and underground or arcade. The elevated roads do not seem to be diplomatically represented at Albany, notwithstanding the ability of their chief. The viaduct road is non est at present, its main projector being dead. The only plan which still has fire and vigor in it is the underground road below the surface of Broadway, that which was until recently the Arcade Road. The projectors of this plan still state in the most positive tones that they can obtain all the capital required to build it, and they are only waiting an opportunity to carry through their work. Melville C. Smith, the old-time representative of that system, states that he does not care who builds the road, as long as it is built. He is prepared to throw in his support to any plan, cable, elevated or surface, which will give the people of New York better rapid transit, but he does not think that any of these plans will conflict with his pet idea of an electric-lighted four-track way and express road under Broadway. He thinks that the increase in population and travel will be so enormous in this city that there will be enough room for all these roads, while the road he represents will, he says, give the people immensely increased transit facilities and largely increase the value of property, without damaging it, as nearly all other plans do.

"Will you introduce a measure this session to enable you to build a four-track road under the surface of Broadway?" asked the writer of Mr. Smith.

"We are as yet undecided whether we shall or not," was the reply. "It will depend upon the fate of the Mayor's bill."

---

*NOTE.—A glance at THE RECORD AND GUIDE'S map, published March 30, 1889, shows that the company asks for a strip 24 feet wide, commencing at a point where their southern terminus now is, and running southwesterly and then northerly, in a circle, taking a width of 300 feet for a distance of about 400 feet at the extreme southern end of the park. The loop then curves along till it joins the present structure at a point opposite Front street. The park is not trenched upon, except for a width of 24 feet, anywhere north of Front street, and there are Water, Pearl, Bridge and Stone streets north of this point. That is to say, if the proposed loop were granted to the Manhattan Road that road would occupy a strip of about 50 feet altogether, with the exception of 400 feet at the extreme southern end, where it would occupy 350 feet. So far from the loop taking up nearly all what was left of the park, there would actually be a width of from 400 to 700 feet and a length of between 1,300 and 1,400 feet still remaining. That is to say, the Manhattan Road, loop included, would occupy about one-fifth of the entire park area.

Spruce Dealers Combine.

The spruce dealers of New York and neighboring cities have for some time been fretting under a competition which put prices below living figures. They at last resolved to organize and form a combination, the individual members of which would agree upon certain prices for spruce; and at a recent meeting, as announced in one of our late "Building Material Market" reports, they passed the following resolutions, which were unanimously agreed to:

"It is the sense of this meeting that the dealers in spruce here assembled adopt as a schedule of prices to govern the sale of spruce timber, the following:

"All timber 9 inches and under 23 feet or less long, not less than $20 per thousand feet. All timber 9 inches and under 24 feet and up long, not less than $22 per thousand feet. All timber 10 inches and up wide, all lengths, and all square timber, not less than $23 per thousand feet. These prices to go into effect on all sales and contracts made after December 20th, and to continue in force until June 1, 1890, unless otherwise agreed at a called meeting, at which not less than a majority of those present to-day shall be present. All timbers sold for shipping purposes shall be exempt from above restrictions."

The firms who were present or represented were Messrs. W. R. Adams & Co., Abraham Steers, Bell Bros., G. L. Schuyler & Co., W. P. Youngs & Bro., F. H. Simonson & Co., Vanderbeek & Son, Watson & Pittenger, Dannat & Pell, Geo. T. Crombie; Willson, Adams & Co., Goodwin & Polly, R. G. Phelps & Co., G. Ross & Sons, Beers & Ressequie, F. W. Starr, Sylvester Bros., Ross & Snyder, Kenyon & Newton, Johnson Bros., J. T. E. Litchfield & Co., Hobby & Doody, C. E. Gates & Co., Chas. E. Rogers & Co., and Benedict, McIlroy & Fowler.

A committee of five was appointed, two from New York, two from Brooklyn, and one from Jersey City, composed of W. H. Kenyon (chairman), J. C. Orr, Charles Adams, Russell Johnson and Isaac L. Vanderbeek. These gentlemen obtained signatures from the various dealers, and reported the result at a subsequent meeting. Those who signed included, with the exceptions of G. T. Crombie and Goodwin & Polly, the following: The East River Mill & Lumber Co., Geo. Watson, Allen & Stevens, W. H. Colwell & Son, A. D. Knapp, Halstead Bros., J. S. Loomis, Bay Ridge Manufacturing Co., Rope & Co., Alfred Brumme, Crane & Clark, Geo. Karr & Co., Albert J. Delatour, Joseph W. Duryee and Alfred Booth & Bro. The agreement was made to cover lumber sold in New York City, Kings County and Long Island City, N. Y., and Hudson County, N. J.; and it was also agreed that there should be no discount beyond the usual 2 per cent. for cash.

Six or seven firms would not sign the agreement, but the bulk of the dealers representing 85 to 90 per cent. of the whole, have resolved to keep the agreement, which will remain in force till June this year, unless otherwise arranged upon. Should the combination prove successful the agreement will be continued.

The International Savings, Loan and Building Institution has been incorporated under the act of 1851, with L. F. Mortimer, L. L. Grau, M. Rogers, Arnold Tallmann and others as trustees, the object being to purchase and improve real estate in New York City.

Real Estate Department.

The new year opens auspiciously for real estate, there are no dark clouds visible, and although the market is not very active, still it is very firm with a fairly good demand for desirable properties, especially in the business district. Up to date we hear of no very important estates which will be offered under the hammer, and compared with last year the early weeks of 1890 promise to be less active in the auction room. The year just closed has witnessed the largest real estate business in the history of the city. Still, notwithstanding this, it has not been an altogether satisfactory one for the brokers. Somehow or other there are very many sales closed nowadays without the aid of a broker, and there are so many of the latter that it is extremely difficult for many of them to get along. During the year there developed a strong demand for business property which led to a pretty general increase in values. In the way of dwelling houses the sales were slow; in fact, it has been a long time since there has been an active market for houses. Vacant lots have sold well at advanced figures, and the building loan operators, without notable exception, have been quite active in the purchase of lots and their resale with building loans. Toward the end of the year dealings in the district where the World's Fair site has been chosen have been few in number, and the opinion is quite general that there would have been quite a movement north and west of Central Park were it not for the question already mentioned. Trading has been one of the features of the year, and promises to continue to be active. Other features which have been developed were the purchase of houses in blocks from builders, and their resale at retail, so to speak, by the "House Merchant." Then, again, capitalists, both local and country, have made investments in plots in the section west of Broadway and south of Washington Park, and in numerous instances with the result of leasing new business buildings before their completion, or rather before they were begun. Still another innovation has been made by the sale of store property on the leading avenues at extremely high figures, and a good interest insured the buyers by the sellers leasing the premises for long terms of years at figures which in some cases will secure the investors as much as 7 per cent. on their investments.

The market during the week, as usual during weeks broken into by holidays, has been very quiet. A thorough canvass, however, has led to our securing some good reports.

There were but few sales held at the Exchange on Monday and the attendance was small. A foreclosure sale of six tenements on 52d street and 9th avenue attracted the greatest attention, and after four houses on the street had been sold for a total of $117,400 to J. Wesley Smith, the avenue houses were withdrawn. Sufficient was realized by the sale of four houses to satisfy the judgment of foreclosure, which was obtained by the Garfield National Bank.

On Tuesday, the last day of the year 1889, three sales were consummated. All were court sales and attracted no special attention. A plot of store property on the northeast corner of Beekman and Cliff streets was sold for $89,000 to Hobart Cleveland, and two new tenements on Cherry street, Nos. 407 and 409, were sold to the plaintiff at $31,237. After the above sales were completed the third sale was still on, Auctioneer Harry W. Donald in charge. The property embraced the wool-pulling factory at Nos. 546 and 548 West 57th and 539 and 541 West 56th streets, when C. F. Wildey became the buyer at $57,600. Mr. Donald had sold the last parcel of realty, which was disposed of at auction in 1889.

Wednesday, New Year's Day, the Exchange was closed.

On Thursday two sales were held on 'Change, both pursuant to foreclosure decrees. No. 399 Washington street, a five-story brick factory, 25x80, was sold at $21,000 to Max Ams.

Only one sale was held at the Salesroom yesterday, viz.: A four-story stone front store and tenement on the southeast corner of 2d avenue and 69th street, 20.4x75. Ernest Peterson became the buyer at $26,400.

Special Notices.

Erastus E. Brooks and Homer Foot have just formed a partnership, under the firm name of Brooks & Foot, with quarters in the Mail and Express building, 23 Park row. They are both able and intelligent, and will prove a valuable addition to the younger brokers on 'Change. The senior member of the firm is the son of the late distinguished journalist, Erastus Brooks, who became editor of the New York Express in 1836, and who for many years was prominently known in public affairs. Messrs. Brooks & Foot will conduct a general real estate business, including insurance and mortgage loans. From their card, which appears opposite the first editorial page, it will be observed that their references are of a high character, and include Messrs. Geo. Bliss, Frank & Du Bois, J. H. Lane & Co., Richards & Sause and others. They have considerable money to loan on bond and mortgage.

Among the firms who have started new offices with the advent of the new year is that of E. H. Ludlow & Co., who have opened a branch in the Bristol, on the northwest corner of 5th avenue and 42d street.

One of the most active and conservative of the companies which make a business of loaning money on Western farms is the National Mortgage and Debenture Company, of Boston, Mass., and Topeka, Kan. It obtains for investors the highest interest consistent with safety, and is directed by prominent capitalists and business men. The New York managers of the company are Jones & Faile, of Nos. 135 and 137 Broadway.

A circular has just been issued by A. W. McLaughlin & Co., revised and corrected to date, of vacant lots offered by them for sale with and without builders' loans. Copies can be had at their offices No. 146 Broadway.

Our large real estate offices in Pine street and thereabouts may, from one point of view, be regarded as so many schools for the teaching of young men the methods of the real estate brokerage business. Many of our best known brokers spent years in a good office learning their business before branching out for themselves. We are glad to see that another energetic young man has set up in business for himself. Mr. Jacob Leuly, for ten years connected with the late L. J. Carpenter, has opened a real estate office of his own at No. 42 Pine street. He intends to make a specialty of selling and renting business property. The experience Mr. Leuly possesses leaves no question of his success.

William P. Rae, for many years with Paul C. Grening, has opened an office at No. 394 Gates avenues, under the firm name of William P. Rae & Co., where he will be pleased to see his old patrons as well as new ones. This firm makes a specialty of managing estates and collecting rents and conduct a general real estate business.

Strong, neat binders, especially made for THE RECORD AND GUIDE can be obtained at this office. Those of our subscribers who wish to keep a file of the numbers in a compact form and in regular sequence, can have the binder delivered at their office on receipt of order by postal card. The price is one dollar.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For Prices see pages V., VII., VIII. and IX.]

BRICK.—During the forepart of the week there was not a very abundant supply of Hards, yet probably quite as many as required, the demand proving moderate and indifferent, partly as the result of holiday influence, and the subsequent heavier arrivals did not appear to be received with any great degree of enthusiasm. The condition of the weather for some time past has been more or less detrimental to the market, for while consumption may have run along fuller than anticipated, it was in part provided for by previous accumulation and more than offset by the liberality of the arrivals. At the turn of the year navigation on the Hudson was without an impediment between this city and Albany, an event of very rare occurrence at the season, and with the temptation to continue shipments thus presented manufacturers have kept a supply coming forward that even with the best of management proved difficult to handle in a satisfactory manner. Prices, to be sure, are not a limittedly lower, but making above $7.00 per M now is almost too rare an occurrence to quote, and the bulk of the trading is done at a lower range. There is some talk of hauling barges off as soon as they return from present trips, but that may be heard every week, and the chances are that nothing but a good tight freeze will put an end to arrivals. Little or no complaint is made over quality, if indeed the average is not somewhat better than ordinary, and the main difficulty with the market is to be found in the absence of seasonable conditions. We hear of nothing as yet offering from Long Island, and it is thought there will be nothing sent forward until price is more attractive.

Pales fairly active, and about steady. The season on Fronts may now be considered closed, as the Hudson River makers no longer take orders, and have withdrawn their boats for repairs, etc.

LATH.—The market has remained practically unchanged in all general features. Some arrivals took place, including a little overdue stock, sold afloat, for which dealers were waiting, and for that available a demand could be found without much difficulty or the necessity of offering better terms. Still the market as yet fails to improve, and now and then there seems to be a bit of annoyance over this fact, as it is hardly in accord with calculations. Dealers do not seem to be overstocked as a rule, yet they manage to abstain from evidence of anxiety and contribute no influence calculated to act as a stimulus.

LIME.—Not long ago complaint was made over the monotonous character of the lime report, and we do not wonder over the fact when it is considered that the market has practically remained unchanged for two years. This week it is the same old story, except possibly that supplies have been a little fuller than the market required, and caused receivers some annoyance. It is reported that shipments have been stopped for the present, and also that when the present compact between manufacturers expires there will be no renewal. If the latter story is true, look out for fun ahead during the coming year.

LUMBER.—There has been a great deal of holiday influence again, especially upon the yard trade, as in addition to a general indisposition to enter upon new engagements, just at this juncture dealers are in many cases more or less troubled with labor. The experience is a common one, however, and in itself does not amount to much as a positive influence. Aside from such winter contingencies as may always be taken into consideration, the average feeling appears presumably confident for at least an ordinary trade during the next month or two in the way of stuff suited to the various manufacturing outlets, and as soon as the weather permits there will be considerable wanted on building consumption for old jobs, to say nothing of such new work as may come in. Dealers themselves, however, are somewhat doubtful customers, except for the very choice grades of lumber of which the supply has been and continues small.

Eastern Spruce operators are among the most cheerful in the market, except in the way of occasional grumbles over the inability to obtain stock for which they claim custom is hungry and ready to make a place for a considerable quantity, and more especially in the way of large sizes. It is understood that pretty much everything at all likely to come forward for some time is under engagement, and that manufacturers entertain very extreme views of the rates to prevail upon the opening of the spring demand. Some of the buyers, however, suggest that there is likely to be a crawling of advantages with rather too severe a hand, and while of course certain specifications will no doubt call for spruce, there is a great deal of work that can be carried out with other wood where the difference in cost would appear to make it advisable.

Piling is without much of a market on the immediate trade and there is little of special interest to suggest. Supplies are well enough in hand to keep the line of valuation very well supported and now and then may be heard claims of some excellent prospects for the open weather trade, both in the matter of public and private work. Small stuff steadily held, but quiet.

Hemlock has no general demand and it is said that some parties recently endeavoring to place car shipments were quite disappointed over their want of success. Operators acquainted with the local market and its needs, however, speak in more or less cheerful tone over the situation and seem to have faith that full sizes and well-seasoned stock can be handled to a satisfactory extent, and without sacrifice on value.

White Pine in a general way may be called steady as there is no quotable change on the average run of valuation. To a certain extent, however, there is a measure of doubt in the market owing to the somewhat erratic course of sellers who try to place supplies on account of interior operators. Some of them appear to be held in restraint at a certain limit of cost, while others have freer license, and the effect at the moment when buyers are in no special hurry about a supply is to induce a little angling with the offering, but no more investment than can well be avoided. Present local consumption is about what might be expected for the season, but there is complaint about the export trade as not doing as well as promised on any outlet.

Yellow Pine is distributed into consumption with quite the usual proportions to other grades, and in turn there is evidence of quite a little demand for parcels from first hands. Some of this is in the way of ordinary schedules, some for specials more or less difficult, and some for f. o. b. orders, and about the only fault finding seems to be among the small and outside operators who cannot give a desirable guarantee in the matter of cut and delivery. Southern markets are generally quoted as firm.

Carolina Pine does not seem to assume any position calculated to afford basis for complaint on the part of sellers who adhere to the standard of quality required on our local market. For the present demand is a little slow, but what has been done and what is expected it is claimed form basis for much cheerfulness, and the run of reports is in accord therewith.

Hardwoods are at least steadily held, and a certain portion of them really seem to be in naturally healthy situation. They, of course, refer to stock that has been properly selected for the wants of the market, both in the matter of grading and seasoning, for which there always appears some custom; but the consignments that are sent in in a haphazard reckless sort of manner, on the apparent assumption that buyers do not know what they want, cannot be placed even by the most skillful salesmen except at low unsatisfactory figures. The export promises for the ensuing year are said to be somewhat doubtful in the matter of quantity, but shippers say they have nothing to encourage the belief that any but the best of quality will be acceptable abroad.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

Reports that come to hand regarding heavy skidding of logs in various parts of the Northwest indicate that in case there shall be sufficient snow the log crop will be large.

It is being talked by leading lumberman that lumber the coming year will go higher, for the reason that iron has advanced. We trust they may prove good prophets. For one, the Lumberman does not expect to see prices go materially higher. The competition between yellow and white pine will certainly prevent anything like a boom in prices, providing nothing unforeseen should happen to reduce production. With plenty of lumber the fight between the North and the South is bound to be as lively as it has been in the past. Old-time profits will never again be obtained unless there is less lumber and less competition.

The astonishingly mild weather of the past month has helped the local trade. Distribution is going on with almost the activity peculiar to the fall months. Permits are taken out every day, and work is likely to go on as long as the weather remains favorable. This is breaking up assortments, and enabling dealers to brace up prices on specialties. Should January be unusually mild, a new start in building will result, and the effect on stocks and prices will be pronounced by February. The open winter will also induce a cry of short log crop, which will have an influence toward the stiffening of prices, whether there shall be any sound basis for it or not. Altogether the signs are favorable to firmer prices than prevailed during the summer and fall Piece stuff, all grades of strips, boards of stock width, small timbers, and some lengths and sizes of long joists and timbers are nearly certain to be in such demand early in the year as to insure prices that will yield a fair profit. Shingles and lath are also in good demand, and the call from outside points is large for the season.

The Timberman as follows:

Wisconsin lumbermen are very much gratified that winter didn't come upon them as they had feared, without the usual fall rains. Had it done so the marshes and creek bottoms couldn't have been used for logging roads, as the sleighs would break through. Now when it freezes up the road bottoms will be as hard as a rock. Considerable timber has been cut and skidded in the woods in Northern Wisconsin, and if cold weather sets in before long the log cut will, no doubt, be near the average one in that State.

In the valley of the St. Croix the logging camps are settling down to work, and hauling as well as skidding is progressing in a satisfactory manner. Recent snow falls have been good, and during the past ten days many men and teams have been sent north from Stillwater. Made roads are becoming quite a feature in the camps of Minnesota and Wisconsin of late, and as these have ice of any desired thickness, the want of snow makes less difference, and the hauling can continue much later in the spring. So long as they have water they can renew the roads, as the rut dug out is deep and of the requisite width for the logging sleighs.

At the Chicago yards:

Good lumber of all kinds is in very scant supply. This, together with the talk of a short crop of logs, will no doubt strengthen prices quite materially before spring. Not that anyone really believes the crop will be short, for the experience of last year will prove the opposite. But it is a fact that the Menominee river has been practically cleared of logs this fall, for the first time in years, and the mills on that stream, at least, will not be able to get a good supply of logs before June or July.

There seems to be an unanimous opinion that piece stuff will be stiff at $11.50, and perhaps will be sold at $12 in the spring Stocks are not heavy and it merely lies with the united action of the dealers whether they receive the prices recently fixed by the Yard Dealers' Association.

Among the features of the market are the variations in values of boards; 16 foot 12 inch common board are worth $13, and 14 foot from $14 to $14.50; 6x8 4's in piece stuff are almost out of the market; 2x4 12's are held in full prices; 2x4 20's are very scarce and in good demand. Thirty days ago you could get piece stuff 50 cents to $1 cheaper than you can now; 2x10 12's were bought last month at $10 green, now they are worth $11; 2x12's are unchanged.

It is to be noticed that selects are up in contrast with last spring. They were worth $28 then and are now $34. All classes of stock are now firm and in active demand.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman says there is no lack of faith exhibited in the preparations which has been made by the loggers. These are upon as extensive a scale as ever, although the continued mild weather has prevented much hauling being done, and filled some of the loggers with dismay. The accounts seem to agree on the fact, however, that good work has been done at skidding, and that if a short season of good hauling is vouchsafed a great many logs will be banked—all probably that the mills will cut—with a pretty liberal stock carried over on most of the streams. There is no apprehension yet of a short log crop—and even a short log crop has ceased to be much of a factor in the situation, since it is possible to readily supply any shortage in the supply of lumber at northern points from the south.

GREAT BRITAIN.

From Timber Trades Journal as follows:

LONDON.

American woods (Black Walnut, White Wood, Oak, etc)—Lumber is still going off freely at prices pretty much as last reported, but in the case of logs we can hear of but little doing.

There have again been rather extensive arrivals into the West India Docks, most of which we notice is now being housed in the sugar warehouses, which, by the way, from the want of sufficient light, is very inconvenient and highly detrimental to effecting business, as may well be supposed.

Chartering continues in the pitch pine trade, and vessels have been closed for hewn and sawn timber at 37s., and 115s. to 117s. 6d. deals to usual range of ports, and in some cases 115s. to 117s. 6d. has been paid for deals and boards to Continent. From Mobile 38s. and 120s. is obtainable for hewn and sawn timber and deals to U. K. or Continent, and ships have been recently fixed at these rates. From the Baltic side we can hear of nothing doing of importance.

LIVERPOOL.

Vessels bound here from American and Canada are making long passages owing to the prevalence of easterly winds; During the past week, however, a few ships have arrived here with cargoes of deals, pitch pine, etc.

GLASGOW.

Deliveries have been going on actively, the quantities recently carted from Yorkhill, etc., showing a decided increase compared with corresponding period last year. Imports since last writing have been unimportant, the season being now over. A few parcels of American oak planks per steam liners are the chief items in the past week's list. Arrivals of walnut and white wood logs, etc., per steamships from the States usually begin to bulk more largely at this season, when the trade from Montreal comes to a stop, and there are more vessels on the States route.

Of late the arrivals of walnut and white wood logs have been very light, and there is a fair opening for such at present.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has been rather quiet, large consumers abstaining from any great amount of investment at this season, and dealers calling only for small lots as required for regular run of trade orders. The companies have kept command of the position, however, and generally insisted upon full former rates, with offerings of stock quite moderate. Quotations are generally placed at 14¼@14½c. for Lake, and 13@13½c. for casting brands. Manufactured Copper meets with quite as much inquiry as could be expected at this season of the year, but is firm at the recent general advance in valuations. We quote as follows: Sheets, not above 30x72 in., 16 oz. and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 23c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 24c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 25c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 28c.; do, under 8 oz, 30c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz. 2c. for 10@12 oz, and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 36x96 in., 16 oz and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 24c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 26c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 30c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 33c. Sheets longer than 96 inches 22c. for over 32 oz, and add 1c. for 16 to 32 oz, 14 to 16 oz, 12 to 14 oz, and 2c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96, 32 to 64 oz, 22c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 25c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 27c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 34c. Sheets wider than 48x96 and longer, 22@25c. for 32 to 64 oz. and over, and 27@30c. for 16 to 32 oz. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz, 25c.; 14 oz, 27c.; 12 oz, 29c.; and 10 oz, 30c. Bolt copper, ⅜ inch diameter and over, 22c. Circles, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 5c. do; circles, 96 do and over, 6c. do. Segment and pattern sheets, 3c. above price of sheets required to cut them from. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1@2c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottom, 26@29c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig is only salable upon special orders and has no regular market value, but would not be available for any less money than heretofore and the better brands may be considered worth somewhere about $25.00@27.50 per ton, according to quantity, etc. American Pig has on the whole been rather quiet and the demand in the main one of necessity, only so far as prompt deliveries are concerned. It is, however, understood that in a quiet way a number of contracts are being placed from time to time against further deliveries and generally at full rates or with an understanding that upon the final settlement of terms the basis will be quite up to present extreme valuations. We quote at $19.00 @20.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $18.00@19.00 for No. 2 X do., and $17.50@18.00 for Gray Forge. Old material is somewhat uncertain as demand has an erratic way of developing, but now and then some fair lots of rails can be placed and buyers have to pay about former rates. We quote at about $27.50@28.00 for old rails; $24.00@25.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $19.00@20.00 for cast scrap, and $20.00@21.00 for car wheels. Manufactured Iron has been a little quiet, but with very good contracts already booked for next year and more expected to follow. Coupled with the full cost of material prices rule extremely firm all around. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.09@2.05c. from store, and refined at 2.20@2.50c.; Rods, round and square, 2.20@2.25c.; Bands. 2.50@2.55c.; Norway Nail Rods, 4@5c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 3.00@3.05c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large locs from cars. Steel Rails have been in a somewhat quiet condition and there is an irregularity of tone noticeable, in a few cases indicated some difficulty experienced in obtaining full former rates. Most manufacturers, however, act slightly indifferent and refuse to attempt coaxing trade. We quote at $34.00@35.00 per ton for standard section at the mills and $36.00@36.50 do. at tide water. LEAD—Domestic pig secures only moderate speculative attention, and with trade wants still running in compartively narrow channels, it has been a somewhat dull market. Prices, however, are well sustained and stocks so controlled as to prevent pressure to realize. We quote at 3.85@4.00c., as to quality. The manufactures of lead are quoted: Bar, 4½c.; pipe, 6c.; sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig as a rule has been fairly well held and offered only upon direct call. Buyers, however, were not particularly plenty or anxious and prices had an unsettled tone with an inclination to weakness We quote at about 21.20@21.25c. for round lots, and 21.35@21½c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plate has not as a rule secured much demand for immediate delivery and with an uncertain feeling among speculators the market had a dull tone, prices, if anything, rather inclining in buyer's favor. We quote prices as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Melyn grades, $6.00@6.10, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Allaway grade, $5.20@5.25, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.05@7.10; M. F. grade, 20x28, $14.25@14.30; Worcester, 14x20, $5.00@ —; Worcester, 20x28, $10.00@10.05; Deane grade, 14x20, $4.75@4.80; Dean grade, 20x28, $9.55@9.60. D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $4.45@4.50; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $9.20@9.25; I. C. Coke, Penlan grade, $4.60@4.62½; J. B. grade, 14x20, $4.75@4.80; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $5.10@ —— basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $5.20 @—— basis. Spelter is being delivered on contract to a fair extent, but new demand runs rather light, and most buyers appear a little indifferent at the moment. We quote at 5.40@5.50c. for common Western, according to brand.

NAILS.—Business moving along in about ordinary seasonable channels and free from features calling for special remark at the moment. Supplies appear to be very well in hand and that insures a certain measure of strength, upon which former rates are quite generally insisted upon. We quote at $2.05@2.10 per keg for car lots, and $2.15@2.20 per keg for parcels from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Not much animation and the principal call is for thoroughly standard goods on regular trade orders. To satisfy their wants buyers find about all the necessary supply available and owners making no objection to parting with it at former rates, but an absence of pressure and generally a cheerful expression over the prospects of the market. Linseed Oil meets with a fair call and is generally well held at 57@58c. for Western, and 60@62c. for City. Spirits Turpentine meeting with moderate demand, but ruling about steady. We quote at 44½@45½c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Demand shows moderation and a tendency to confine itself closely to active wants of the hour, against which there is a fair offering of stock at about former rates. We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.25@2.50, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

LUMBER.

Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors, and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable in character.

VOL. XLV. JANUARY 11, 1890. No. 1,139.

The Annual Number of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, containing the Building Material Market Review for 1889 will be published next Saturday. In addition to the usual matter which has made this number indispensable to the building and material trade, and all interested in real estate, it will contain a review of architecture in New York City during the year past, and Benner's prediction concerning the business world in 1890, which features insure this number a large extra circulation among architects and investors generally in Wall street and elsewhere. Advertisers who wish to reach users of building material and those engaged in buying, selling, leasing and lending on real estate should avail themselves of the large circulation of this number. "Copy" for advertisements cannot be received later than Thursday next, the 16*th inst.*

About the only Exchange which has seen any marked activity or advance of prices during that small portion of 1890 which has elapsed is the Cotton Exchange. The prospect, apparently, of a large demand abroad, together with a continual and steady demand at home and the large crop have largely increased the activity and advanced the price of that material. The stock market has been depressed by the disturbance in the Coalers, which seem destined to hang over Wall street, just as the Grangers did last year, as long as the present mild weather continues. Money has been easier, but that fact does not seem to have had much if any effect on prices, probably because there is not much feeling that the present state of affairs is permanent. Certainly after a rise in exchange of a point and-a half after the action of the directors of the Bank of England in increasing their rate of discount, and after their absolute refusal to sell gold bars for export to this country it is useless to look abroad for any help. But it is probable that before long we shall not need any. It may pretty safely be predicted that after this last decline the sugar trust certificates have just about reached their bottom figure. The trust has undoubtedly been doing a large business; it has undoubtedly made money, and the actual value of the certificates cannot be much less than the present value. Even, however, if it is less, the certificates have a speculative value that ought to hold them at about their present figure.

As a rule it is not until the second or third week in January that the new year of business in the real estate world fairly commences and it becomes possible to speak with some degree of certainty as to the "prospects." Very rarely has a new year opened more satisfactorily than the present one. During the past week the condition of the market has greatly improved. Buyers for improved realty, especially for down-town property, have become numerous. The demand is strong, and as will be seen by our reports in another column and by the recorded transfers, transactions are numerous and at good prices. Residential property is in demand and some costly houses have been sold. As to renting, business has opened up well.

The merit of the controversy between the Evening Post and Mr. Gilroy depends entirely upon the cost of laying a square yard of asphalt pavement. The Post estimates the cost at $1.75, and, so far as we know, the Commissioner of Public Works has not disputed the accuracy of the estimate, except, perhaps, by implication in the statement he has made that the price paid by the London authorities is $5.25 a yard, against an average of $4.45 in New York. The comparison, however, is not a fair one, even if the figures given are correct, for in London, as in most European cities, rock asphalt is the only kind used, and is considerably more expensive than the Trinidad asphalt which is to be laid down in New York. If the Post's figures are correct, or approximately so, unquestionably the contractors could (if they should choose to) forfeit the bond given to the city as security for keeping their work in good order for fifteen years, and yet make a sufficient, if not a handsome, profit on their contracts, leaving the future of the streets they have made to the care of the city. In other words, the bonds given to the city are valueless to secure performance of contract. In this matter it is not alleged that anyone is acting in bad faith. It happens that certain bonds are not sufficient for the purpose for which they were exacted. The Evening Post, if its figures are correct, has done the city a service, about which Mr. Gilroy shows a trifle too much sensitiveness. It is a good thing that the press should be watchful and critical before contracts have been carried out and the city has parted with its money; instead of, as is usual, after mischief has been done. If a mistake or miscalculation has been made in the Department of Public Works, it can, perhaps, be rectified; if not, Mr. Gilroy is forewarned in the case of the contracts already given out, and in those yet to be let he can see that the interests of the city are really and not apparently secured.

The deadlock as to the presidency of the Real Estate Exchange has been well ended by the election of Mr. George H. Scott. It is very fit that the position should be filled by one who is so well known in the real estate world, and who has given to the Exchange since its organization such valuable service as director, secretary and member of various committees. Mr. Scott knows well what the Exchange requires, and will be an excellent executive officer, and a matter that is of much importance, is capable of fitly representing on occasions of a public or semi-public character the institution over which he presides.

It is inevitable that the annual message of the Mayor must be more or less of the nature of a twice told tale. Rarely, if ever, is it the vehicle for the disclosure of any facts not already known in a general way by the public, for though nominally it is an address to the Common Council it is delivered solely for the public ear. In respect to any new information on municipal affairs, Mayor Grant's recent message differs in no wise from the messages of his predecessors. Everything that is said in it regarding the condition of the city's finances, the water supply, the street pavements, the street cleaning department, rapid transit, subways, and so forth was already well known even to those who give only casual attention to the management of the city in which they live. Despite this fact the Mayor's message is a straightforward, sensible and interesting document. It does credit to the Mayor, and we believe it is on the whole a truthful statement of what his administration has so far purposed and accomplished. True, the good points of his administration are at present more matters of promise than of achievement, but this is not a fault at the beginning of a term of office.

The step toward a more general use of asphalt for street pavements is to be commended. The action of the Mayor in the street cleaning difficulty is also satisfactory, though much might be said in defense of Mr. Coleman. The problem, however, has now been reduced to the simplest terms. The Mayor says the streets shall be kept clean in spite of poor pavements, subway-making, and the dirty habits of citizens, and he has undertaken in the most public manner to find an official who will accomplish this feat. The task is a more difficult one than perhaps the Mayor realizes. Before we can have really clean streets we must have really good pavements, and citizens must be taught that the public thoroughfares are not to be used as "dumping grounds" for refuse. It is to be hoped that the Mayor will be more successful with his Rapid Transit bill in Albany this year than last. It is hardly to be expected, however The opposition to it from several quarters is strong, and to overcome it will need "considerations" of the most powerful nature. It is to be regretted that the Mayor has not adopted a broader policy in dealing with the Manhattan Company and its proposition to build a loop at the Battery and to construct a third track along its lines. This is the immediate and the only immediate solution or rather palliation of the rapid transit difficulty. The determination of which the Mayor speaks to contest a part of the levy made upon the city by the State Board of Equalization (so called) is one that Justice demands and all taxpayers will support. There is little doubt that the city is annually robbed under a system of legalized brigandage. The Mayor's statements about the future water supply of the city through the new aqueduct do not in all particulars square with the facts. It has been pretty conclusively shown that it is more ingenious than ingenuous to refer to the capacity of the aqueduct as the measure of what the water supply will be for many years to come. It is not "capacity" that is needed in the third and fourth stories of up-town residences and in office buildings down town, but water. At present this has to be obtained at some expense by the aid of a pump, and probably will still have to be even after the new aqueduct is opened. If Mayor Grant should succeed during his term in giving us clean streets free from telegraph poles and a rapid transit act that will secure rapid transit, the city will be more indebted to him than to any other Mayor. He has a splendid opportunity to distinguish himself.

The certain detection of crime is a matter of quite as much importance to society as is the certain administration of the law after detection; yet such cases as this so-called mystery at Trenton show how very imperfect, outside of the larger cities, is the machinery for fixing the responsibility of a crime where it belongs. As a matter of fact, in rural and semi-rural districts, there is no machinery of any effectiveness, except in cases where the criminal is caught in flagrante delicto; or has, at least, left a good photograph of himself behind accompanied with a plan of his operations. In this case, after several days, the astute "authorities" may succeed in advertising for the man they want. Most of the numerous "mysteries" that have occurred in the last few years in different parts of the country around New York City would not still be inexplicable iniquities were it not for the utter unfitness of the local "chiefs of police" to cope with any offense beyond a "common drunk." It is of course not to be expected that rural communities and small towns should be at the charge of maintaining a force of competent detectives in readiness for cases that may not happen once in a century, but people at large are sufficiently interested in these unpunished crimes, and they are sufficiently numerous to make it worth while for State governments to maintain a first-class detective organization and to intervene to the exclusion of the local authorities in such cases as this one in Trenton, the Rahway mystery and others of like character. This field is one in which it is quite as proper for the State to exercise authority as in riots and other breaches of the peace with which the local authorities are not powerful enough to deal.

The friends of block indexing will be glad to learn that the work of preparing the maps showing the block numbers is rapidly nearing completion, and that there is every prospect that it will be well done. The district below the Harlem will need a book of some nineteen pages only, and every real estate dealer will need one of them; for before a deed can be recorded it will have to be indorsed with the number or numbers of the block or blocks wherein the property is situated. The law does not go into effect until a year from the first of this January, so that there is ample time for the completion of the maps and the preparation of the books. This extra time will be needed, for a bill is to be introduced into the Legislature making certain amendments to the bill of last year, which the actual undertaking of the work has rendered advisable, and without which it cannot be properly completed. These amendments all relate to details, but they are none the less important. The original bill provided for the division of that part of the city south and west of the Harlem River into twelve sections. The paragraph containing this provision is amended so as to make only eight; and in blocking out these eight sections the ward lines are not to be followed, as they were in the original bill. Furthermore, the boundary of the sections fronting on the Harlem River is not to be the river as it is at present, but the centre line of the Harlem River and Spuyten Duyvil Improvement Channel. Other changes of the same kind are made. The Board of Taxes and Assessments is given the power to cause the land lying north of 155th street and northeast of the Harlem River to be divided into parcels for the purpose of indexing in such a way as they think best, whereas in the original bill it had such discretion only in the 23d and 24th Wards. Moreover, below 155th street, in cases where the blocks are small, two or more of them may be included in one block having a single block number.

It is not expected that there will be any trouble in getting these amendments through the Legislature. The backbone of the opposition to the bill was pretty well broken at the last session, and we understand that the present Register, Mr. Fitzgerald, is inclined rather to aid than to obstruct the reform. For the last two or three years the principal opposition proceeded from ex-Register Slevin. With that opposition removed it would seem as if it ought to be plain sailing in the future. The present Register has a rare opportunity to obtain the support of the real estate interests of this city by consistently aiding in every possible way the progress of land transfer reform. Unless all reasoning is at fault, the simplicity and adequacy of the block index will, when the bill goes into effect next January, create such a demand among the property-owners of this city for further reforms on the same lines that the official who identifies himself with the reform will lay a foundation of popularity which would insure his re-election. Register Fitzgerald is a young man; he has come into office after the half of the battle is won, for the first step is always the hardest step. If he wishes at once to further his own interests and strike a good blow for the property-owners, he has only to work to free the land of this city from the shackles which at present make titles so precarious and transfer so difficult. The movement needs new blood. It should be supplied by the city official who is most immediately associated with the real estate interests.

It is announced that the Legislature at Albany has this week ordered that 8,000 copies of the Governor's message be printed, 5,000 in the English language and 3,000 in German. Popular ideas about things need to be more frequently revised and corrected than they are. The notion yet prevails that this country is still mainly of Anglo-Saxon blood, and only recently so well-informed a person as Mr. Gladstone spoke of "our (the Englishman's) kin beyond the sea," referring to the people of this country. A cursory glance at the statistics of immigration since 1819, when an attempt was first made to compile them, puts beyond all doubt the fact that the people of this country are chiefly of Teutonic and Celtic origin. Even among the early settlers of the United States—the 500,000 immigrants that arrived prior to 1819—though the Anglo-Saxon element preponderated, it was by no means exclusive. In Maine, or more correctly speaking in the northern part of New England, among the early population there were many French; in New York, many Dutch; in Pensylvania, Germans; in New Jersey and Delaware, Swedes; in Louisiana, French; and in Florida, Spaniards. However, the population of the country was then undoubtedly largely Anglo-Saxon, and for many years after the close of the Revolution the word "foreigner" was never applied to the English. After 1825 immigration, however, became more and more Celtic and Teutonic, so that it is not surprising to find that of the foreign-born population in the country in 1880 there were about four times as many Celts and Teutons as Anglo-Saxons, and since the census year the proportion has doubtless increased. The purely Teutonic element in this country is very strong, and the act of the New York Legislature in connection with the Governor's message is a recognition of the fact.

The Law for Acquiring School Sites.

The State Legislature should be requested this session either to amend or to repeal entirely the bill it passed a year ago prescribing the course to be pursued in acquiring land in this city for school purposes. We have another example in the case of this law of how seldom legislation acts along the "lines of expectation," and, consequently, why it is that a great part of the work of legislators everywhere consists of amending or erasing from the statute book measures previously placed there. For instance, four of every five laws passed in England are afterwards wholly or partly repealed; and the proportion in this country, where laws are produced by the ten thousand annually, must be quite as great.

Previous to the passage of the law now in force the city obtained the land it needed for school sites by private negotiation between the School Trustees and land-owners or their agents. The working of this method was not regarded as satisfactory by the city authorities. It was (1) entirely too slow, they said, (2) too costly, and (3) not infrequently resulted in the payment to property-holders of considerable more than the market value of their land. To remedy this a bill (chapter 191, laws 1888) was passed at the last session of the State Legislature, which has now been in operation about one year,

When the measure was proposed doubts were expressed in these columns as to its efficacy, but we were all assured that the new piece of legal machinery would work perfectly and effect a great saving of time and wonderful economies. Negotiation with property-holders was to cease. Sites needed were to be obtained by condemnation proceedings, conducted by Commissioners of Estimate appointed by the Supreme Court.

Now, how has the law worked? Speaking generally, not one of the results anticipated has been accomplished. Corporation Counsel Clark, who, by the way, is not responsible for the law, acknowledges that the cost of acquiring property "is certainly greater under the present system than under the old," and furthermore, "the time involved is probably longer;" though he adds, "this is not so in every case." As to whether the law has enabled the city to acquire land more nearly at its market value, the dispute that arose last June between the Supreme Court Commissioners and the Sites Committee of the Board of Education as to the awards made by the former for certain sites will be remembered in connection with this matter. The Board of Education valued fourteen sites at $476,000, and the valuations received the approval of Tax Commissioner Coleman. The awards of the commissioners for the same parcels amounted to $669,281, a difference of $193,281. In our opinion, the valuations of the Board of Education were in a few cases too low, and scarcely in any case fairly liberal, as we believe all awards made by the city for land peremptorily taken should be. But, on the other hand, the awards of the Supreme Court Commissioners were in many instances positively extravagant, being considerably in excess of the valuation made by the experts whom the commissioners themselves employed. The question of values is a difficult one to deal with. There is no standard that we know of that can be referred to satisfactorily in all cases. However, there is no doubt that under the new system the city has not acquired its school sites at least at any nearer the true value than under the old system, and that is all that need be said here. It disposes of the third and last anticipation of the framers of the law now in operation.

In some respects the new process of acquiring sites is not only no improvement upon the old method, but is positively faulty, and works to the injury of both the city and of property-holders. To take a case of the former; the methods prescribed by law entail an expense which in the case of inexpensive sites, especially in the 23d and 24th Wards, is disproportionately heavy. For instance, to acquire the site on Courtlandt avenue and 157th street, the award for which was $12,351, the expenses were $1,991.56, or about 16 per cent. of the price paid. The expenses for the site on 51st street near Lexington avenue, which cost $24,500, were $2,055 or only 8 per cent.; for the site on 51st street at 1st avenue, which cost $43,000, $2,083, or less than 5 per cent., and for the site at 68th street at 10th avenue, which cost $70,000, $2,409, or about 3 per cent. Clearly, a less expensive system should be devised for obtaining property of small value.

As to the interests of property-holders, the law works injustice by allowing the city four months after the confirmation of the commissioners' report in which to pay awards. In many cases the full four months, or nearly so, have elapsed while the city has taken possession and collected the rents from the property during this period, though under the law the owner is not entitled, and what is of more consequence, does not receive interest. There is no equity in such proceedings.

It is to be hoped that the law will forthwith be reconstructed. The city should be able to obtain property needed for public purposes in much less time than is usual at present and at a smaller expense, especially in the case of low-priced lots.

The hearings at Washington before the Special Committee of the Senate have been postponed from Wednesday last until this (Saturday) morning. It resulted from an effort on the part of New York and Chicago to be the last, forgetful New York was that the one who has the strongest argument ought to get it in first. St. Louis was heard on Wednesday, Washington on Friday, and to-day will be a field day with New York in the morning and Chicago in the afternoon. In the present state of amicable feeling in all sections of the country, and on so patriotic a subject, it will doubtless be the most animated and wittiest debate ever heard. New York will be there in force on Saturday morning. No one from New York is debarred, and the Mayor has issued special invitations to hundreds. Mr. Depew, the Mayor, Mr. Root, Mr. Stokes and Mr. Whitney will speak for New York, and for Chicago there will be a like host led by Thomas B. Bryan, her great lawyer, and put forward particularly on this occasion to meet Mr. Depew, for whom they claim him to be an equal in the same inimitable style of persuasive oratory. It is somewhat unfortunate in this connection that ex-Mayor Hewitt will not go to Washington and appear before the committee. He is at once so thoroughly identified with the best interests of this city, so brilliant and persuasive a talker, and so familiar with the ways of our legislative committees that an argument from him would prove a most valuable support for the claims of this city. We have indeed no fear of inadequate representation, when Mr. Depew, Mr. Whitney and Mayor Grant are to be present; but the absence of Mr. Hewitt is a deficiency that no other man can quite supply.

The hearing accorded to St. Louis on Wednesday brought out her Governor, D. R. Francis, and the chairman of the World's Fair Committee, Col. C. H. Jones, editor of the St. Louis Republic. St. Louis was drawn into the arena rather by natural antagonism to Chicago, which leads them to challenge every claim she makes, than by any expectation of getting the prize. Yet they set forth the advantages of St. Louis in a very skillful way. It lies at the centre of the great Mississippi Valley, near the centre of total population, and at the confluence of the three great rivers which water that valley and holds the country at peace. They challenged the claim of New York by saying that foreign nations would send their exhibits to any city that the United States Government selected, accepting that selection as the best, and slighting in some degree the advantage New York holds of being already and constantly a great depot of everything foreign. Their reliance seemed to be strong on their three magic circles, which showed that within five hundred miles of St. Louis the population was 23,800,000; within the same distance of Chicago, 21,700,000, and of New York, 20,100,000. This is far from being a strong argument, for there is a great difference between the character of the different populations between the agricultural surroundings of St. Louis or Chicago and the mechanical and artistic surroundings of New York. The latter supplies far the largest population of interested visitors to such a Fair, for what this country needs is such an exhibit as was made at Paris last summer, rather than one of agricultural products. But the five hundred miles radius is too large. An area within a radius of two hundred and fifty miles affords a better comparison, because it is the limit within which people will make frequent visits and can come in a night, and this will be largely in favor of New York. Within it the population is the most dense of any area in the country, and this is the condition that will supply the daily concourse of visitors essential to pecuniary success.

Volunteer Health Officers.

It has been said that the Shah of Persia might get a new insight into the possibilities of despotism by studying the powers conferred upon a Metropolitan Board of Health by American legislators. But an inert mass of radical legislation often hinders and still oftener fails to help the cause in which it has been sought and passed. Faith without works is not more entirely dead than law without administrative capacity behind it. And, indeed, our legislation for the regulation of tenement houses, etc., necessitates such an immense amount of administrative oversight of private affairs that hardly any group of officials can be expected successfully to enforce all its provisions. In consequence of this state of affairs various "sanitary associations" have been organized in the leading cities of England and the United States.

These organizations are composed of volunteers who are willing to supplement the efforts of the regular health officers by hunting down bad smells, visiting overcrowded tenements, measuring windows of questionable capacity, letting light into dark and filthy water-closets, and in general seeing that the laws are enforced. In nearly every case these associations are composed of those who have become interested in work for the poor, and in a great many cases each volunteer assumes the responsibility for a certain district, and acquaints himself thoroughly with the habits of its landlords and its inhabitants. The charitable wealthy who undertake such work say that they can form friendships among the poor of a much more honorable and satisfactory character than when going among them as almsgivers. "A common enmity to an evil odor" is a better basis for a mutual understanding than liberality on one side and cringing destitution on the other.

Some especially thorough work of the sort indicated has recently been done in Boston by a group of students from the Institute of Technology. They worked under the immediate direction of Prof. Dwight Porter, of that institution, and seem to have undertaken the work partly from a charitable desire to be of use to the poor and partly as a study of the seamy side of urban sanitation. The published reports of the careful investigation by these engineering students of many hundreds of the worst tenements in Boston give material for re-emphasizing three old but often forgotten conclusions.

The first of these conclusions is that well-built tenements can healthfully accommodate a much larger number of persons per acre than the pestilential rookeries which self-interest has too often induced landlords to build—or at least not to tear down. It is probably owing to this truth, as well as to the increasing mass of legislation, that New York is indebted for the improvement of her tenements. It is well known that the tenement now ordinarily erected in this city is built according to better plans than those which not many years ago were awarded prizes for radical, and, as it was then feared, impracticable improvements. The second conclusion of the young Boston investigators is that remedial, and even indispensable, legislation often brings into existence a crop of new evils, unanticipated and unprovided for. When the Massachusetts law provided for the abolition of cesspools and the substitution of water-closets, many complied in such a way as to exchange a bad condition for a worse one. Some of the water-closets were so ill located and so ill constructed that at times the sewage regurgitated into the kitchen sink, and "the modern improvements" introduced made the house tenfold more abominable than any back yard cesspool could possibly have done. The third conclusion is equally old, and is, simply, that decency and cleanliness can never be wholly a matter of mechanics. The best house ever built can be befouled and rendered unfit for habitation by slovenly and indecent tenants.

Volunteer sanitary inspectors can be of especial use in dealing with this last class of evils—those that come less from defective architecture than from defective character. If they are earnest workers, and not mere busybodies, their activity is of great value in many directions as a supplement to that of the official boards of health. The arm of the law is necessary to enforce a certain standard of decency essential to the public health; but our politically-appointed officials do not usually have much of a humanizing influence on those with whom they come in contact. It is, therefore, most desirable that their work should be supplemented by those who go to the people of the overcrowded districts as friends rather than as officials.

In England the strong and steady movement for tenement house reform has gone on in connection with a parallel movement for the betterment of tenement house character. Octavia Hill has been for a long time the centre of a planetary system of workers who have done much to lift the tenants to the level of the better houses provided for them. Ladies have also taken the lead in the same sort of work in New York, and while they may have vexed a good many landlords, and unpleasantly stirred up a good many lazy officials, it is believed that they have done considerable good, and both learned and taught useful lessons.

The value of the munificent gift of Sir Edward Guinness to the poor of London will depend largely on the way the manifest intention of the donor is carried out. An American millionaire, Mr. Peabody, has expended upon workingmen's dwellings in London some three hundred and fifty thousand pounds. The outlay of so much money has not been attended with the good results that it might, because it did not reach the class most in need of aid to remove the plague of unsanitary dwellings. The buildings erected under this trust have been too good for the work they were intended to accomplish. The unskilled workingman and the casual laborer could not afford to live in them. Sir Edward Guinness intends that the buildings erected with his donation shall be cheap enough to reach the poorest of workingmen, and he believes the scheme can be so carried out that it will actually pay as a business investment. In this case the rents will accumulate for the purpose of a further extension of the system. Experience in this city and elsewhere justifies Sir Edward Guinness in this belief, and the outcome of this gift will be closely watched, for if it is successful it is most probable that others similar to it will follow.

A Question of Restriction.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

DEAR SIR—I am in treaty for an unimproved plot on the Broadway Boulevard, near 72d street, subject to restrictions of the New York Hospital, which, among other items, state that "no tenement house" can be erected upon the premises.

When the restrictions were made, it was the impression that the Boulevard was destined for residential purposes; but this theory has been exploded, as evidenced by the character of recent improvements in the immediate vicinity, and the Boulevard being a direct continuation of Broadway, will carry out the features of that thoroughfare and become an avenue mainly devoted to commercial pursuits for the lower floor and dwelling purposes above.

As the site is only adapted for stores and apartments, I desire to know whether I would be warranted in making the purchase.

Respectfully, J. JAY SMITH.

In this case the question presented is one that has been before the courts for adjudication. If for any reason not referable to the parties, the enforcement of a covenant restricting the use of real property would defeat the object intended by its execution, or if the condition of the neighborhood and the surroundings of the premises have become so altered that the terms and restrictions of the covenant are no longer applicable to the existing state of things, and its performance would be onerous to one party and of little benefit to the other, a court of equity will refuse to interfere to secure its specific enforcement by injunction. Court of Appeals, 1882, Trustees of Columbia College vs. Thacher, 10 Abb. N. C. 235; and see same vs. Lynch, 70 N. Y. 440; and the Court would thus leave the party complaining of the violation of the covenant to an action for the damages sustained, which would depend on the extent of the injury inflicted, and in the case of such a change in the neighborhood and surroundings that the terms and restrictions of the covenant are no longer applicable to the existing condition of things, the damages, if any, which would be awarded would be light; but to the extent of the injury, if any, suffered by the violation of the covenant, the injured party would be entitled to the damages sustained thereby. In most cases, however, where these changes have occurred in the neighborhood and surroundings, or where the conditions have become so altered that a court of equity would not, by injunction, prevent a violation of the covenant, the damages, if any, awarded for the violation of the covenant would be small.

Public Improvements.

SOME UNNECESSARY DELAYS.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE has for some years been urging the necessity of taking up public improvements when once initiated with such alacrity, that they shall be commenced and carried through with all reasonable dispatch. This has been especially so with the opening of streets, though there have been other improvements delayed.

Among these is the exterior street on the East River, between 64th and 86th streets. The street was created by law in 1887. The width was originally to be 150 feet. In 1888 the width was reduced by law to 115 feet. Nothing has been done in the matter since. Further action rests in the hands of the Sinking Fund Commissioners, and on inquiring at the office of one of these commissioners a few days ago it was found that nothing was being done in the matter. It was said that the question might possibly be taken up at an early future meeting.

EAST RIVER PARK EXTENSION.

The commissioners in this matter are Wm. A. Duer, Chauncey A. Truax and Arthur Ingraham. They were appointed in April, 1889, and have been more assiduous in their duties than is ordinarily the case. They have held numerous meetings, as many as three, and sometimes four in a week, and they have taken testimony on about eighty out of the ninety lots required for the extension, which enlarges the park on the water front for three blocks—that is, from 86th to 89th street. After a few more references are taken, the commissioners will be ready to make their report to the court.

MULBERRY STREET PARK.

The proceedings in this matter have lagged unnecessarily. The commissioners originally appointed were E. L. Parris, P. H. Kerwin and J. J. Scannell. Mr. Parris being appointed a tax commissioner, the vacancy thus caused was filled by Gilbert M. Speir, of Wall street, who has been fairly assiduous in his duties. Still, as he and his fellow-commissioners have not even met since November 12th, when they "visited" the property to be taken for the park, they cannot be said to be anxious to push the matter. They ought to meet at least three times a week. The intention of the Legislature was that the park should be created in the Mulberry Bend district with all possible speed. The neighborhood is an unhealthy one and is very thickly populated. Of the ninety-seven buildings to be torn down eighty-six are crowded tenements. The properties to be taken are bounded by Mulberry, Bayard, Park and Baxter streets.

THE VIADUCT AT ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-FIFTH STREET.

This viaduct has been talked about for a period of twenty years or more. It has only been during the past year or so that anything definite has been done in the matter. A structure to cost about $800,000 was first settled upon and subsequently, on the objection by neighboring property-owners that the cost was too high, a new plan was drawn which reduces the cost to about $500,000.

A gentleman who is largely interested in property in the neighborhood of the proposed viaduct said that it was imperatively needed. He believed that the Commissioners of Estimate had only held back on account of the opposition of some of the property-owners who objected to the assessment which would be levied on them. From another source it was stated that the Lynch estate was opposed to the viaduct. A representative of the Lynch estate was seen and he said that it was not true that they were opposed to it. Another property-owner said "that there was really no necessity to spend half-a-million on a viaduct when the same results could be obtained by establishing a grade from a point at the first avenue west of 8th avenue to the base of the bluff. This would be a distance of about 400 feet, and the cost of blasting out the rock and taking out the dirt would be under $10,000 for a pathway. For teams and other vehicles a carriageway could be cut out, of a winding character, so as to enable the ascent and descent to be made without danger. Besides, in the viaduct plan no provision is made for the brick and other building material to be carted up to the top of the bluff. How are these vehicles to reach the viaduct? You must get building material up there if you want to build up the place."

At the Board of Estimate and Apportionment's meeting, on Thursday, the Corporation Counsel sent in his statement as to the manner of the issue of bonds for the improvement. A statement was also read, signed by property-owners on the line of the proposed viaduct, in which they stated that in their opinion all the property bordering on the Harlem River on the low land fronting on 8th avenue, and more particularly the land on 155th street, fronting thereon, would be benefited by the proposed viaduct bridge over 155th street, from McComb's Dam Bridge to St. Nicholas place. Messrs. John Whalen, Francis A. Thayer, Sol. Moses, C. J. Fleming and James J. Faye were the signers. The result of the discussion on the matter was that the board passed a resolution requesting the Comptroller "to prepare the necessary resolutions to authorize the construction of the viaduct at 155th street, and for authority to issue the necessary bonds for such purpose." This practically settles upon the construction of the viaduct.

COLLEGE PLACE.

The widening and extending of this thoroughfare has been very quickly pushed through, considering the usual delays in these matters. The street will be widened and cut through and made continuous to Greenwich street. Inquiry at one of the city departments elicits the fact that Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the matter of damages will be appointed this month. The Corporation Counsel, when seen the other day, said that it is his intention to ask these commissioners before they are appointed, not to accept the position unless they are willing to sit five times a week to consider evidence. He is determined that this much-needed public improvement, whereby the crowded down-town traffic will be considerably relieved, shall not be allowed to run along in the usual way. The improvement will require the taking of the following properties in whole or in part: Nos. 2 to 66 College place, 136 and 138 Chambers street, 65 and 66 Warren street, 63 and 64 Murray street, 59 to 64 Park place, 56, 58, 59, 60 and 62 Barclay street, 66 to 70 Vesey street, 182 to 192 and 201 to 229 Greenwich street, 224 Fulton street and 58 and 60 Dey street.

THE TRANSVERSE SURFACE ROAD.

This road, which the Legislature gave authority to be constructed nearly three years ago, has not yet been built. This is due to the blundering of the Park Commissioners. They first asked for $11,500, and advertised for and received offers from the Madison Avenue and Second Avenue horse car companies to run the road as a branch to their main line. It was expected that the department would at once accept one of these offers, but they subsequently found out that they wanted a better road than they originally proposed constructing. They thereupon asked for an extra appropriation of $10,000. This the Sinking Fund Commissioners objected to, and there the matter has since rested. People are blaming the Park Commissioners for not deciding on what they wanted at the beginning, which would have avoided all this delay. The Sinking Fund and Park Commissioners should tackle the question at once and settle it definitely, so that the road, which is much required by east and west side residents and storekeepers, should be built without further delay. The branch is to run from 85th street, at the 5th avenue side, to 86th street at Central Park West. Other crosstown roads through Central Park are empowered to be laid by the statute, but this one being about midway between the northern and southern extremes of the Central Park is the first one selected to be built.

New Member.

Jacob Leuly, of No. 42 Pine street, late with L. J. Carpenter, has been proposed as a member of the Real Estate Exchange by A. H. Carpenter.

"Bradhurst avenue" is the new name of the first new avenue west of 8th avenue, but only for a distance of the three blocks between 142d and 145th streets.

Surface Road Transportation.

The Thirty-fourth Street Crosstown Railroad is now to be built, the injunction against it having been raised. The road will run from the East River to the North River, and will also branch through 28th and 29th streets, where the tracks are already laid. It is understood that Austin Corbin is behind this road, and that it will be used as a feeder to the Long Island Railroad. There is already some demand for property on West 34th street for business purposes in consequence.

The Fifth Avenue Transportation Company, which applied to the city to extend its route to the Desbrosses Street Ferry, is likely to receive the required permission. Comptroller Myers has examined into the affairs of the company, and makes the following recommendations: 1. That in the event of its being allowed to make an extension, the company shall pay to the city 2½ per cent. on its gross receipts over five cent fares, in addition to the license fee of $20 per stage. 2. That it shall supply stages of approved pattern, well lighted and run at quick intervals. 3. That a satisfactory system of transfers with the various crosstown lines of horse cars shall be established. He also recommends that stages should be run on Sunday at five cent fares, and at not less than ten minute intervals, and that should the company assent to the conditions named, he recommends that the fare between the extreme ends of the route be limited to a maximum of ten cents per fare, with three tickets for twenty-five cents. This route is to be from 89th street through 5th avenue, South 5th avenue, Canal and West streets to Desbrosses Street Ferry and return, and from 5th avenue through 13th street, University place, 9th street to Broadway and return. The application as to the carriage of parcels by a system of expressage he leaves for the board to sanction or refuse, preferring to make no recommendation on the matter.

It is said that the Astors have rescinded their objection to a surface railroad on 5th avenue, and that efforts will be made to have such a line built next year as far as 42d street, if not beyond.

Appraised Values.

A subscriber calls our attention to the recent sale of No. 81 5th avenue for $95,000, and the loan thereon by the Bowery Savings Bank of $70,000 at 4½ per cent. The secretary of the Bank, when seen by a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, said that the expert appraiser employed by them valued the property at $160,000, divided as follows: Value of the lot $110,000, and the house $50,000, and when asked to give the name of their appraiser the secretary declined to do so.

The premises in question comprise an extra-sized lot, 34x128.4, with a four-story stone front dwelling thereon. There is no lease on the property, but the buyer, Wm. Jennings Demorest, has granted to Mr. Brooks, the seller, the use of the house until May 1st next at $500 per month. The sale at $95,000 to Mr. Demorest was mentioned in our gossip column last October. From inquiry among disinterested appraisers and brokers it was learned that Mr. Demorest has secured a bargain, as the property is variously estimated in value at from $120,000 to $150,000.

The following recent sales of property in the same neighborhood are given to show how values are ranging thereabouts:

Fifth avenue.	Buyer.	Price.
N w cor 13th st, 51.7x100, 4 and 3-sty brk and stone dwgs.....	Frank Fuller.	$150,000
N w cor 12th st, 51.7x125, 4-sty brk dwg, with stable on street.....	....	165,000
No. 57, e s, 50 s 13th st, 25x100, 3-sty stone front dwg.....	Robt. B. Roosevelt.....	40,000
No. 91, e s, 105.1 n 16th st, 26.3x 116.10, 4-sty brk dwg.....	Evalina K. wife of H. B. Hollins.	110,000
No. 85, n e cor 16th st, with lot on 16th st, 3-sty stone front dwg and 2-sty stable on street.....	E. L. Cenci et al. ¼ part.....	55,000

In connection with this question of valuations we will state that within a few weeks the figures of three experts employed by the owner in the matter of appraising nineteen lots on Park avenue, 33d and 34th streets, taken for an armory site, ranged from $600,000 to $630,000, while the estimate of E. A. Cruikshank, ex-President of the Exchange, employed by the city, was only $396,000. This great difference in the estimates of experts seems likely to confuse the commissioners who are taking the testimony. In our issue of December 21st we gave a list of sales of this block, together with the prices and buyers' names, and now suggest to the commissioners to call the purchasers, when, if the commissioners have power to make a thorough investigation, they may obtain information which will help them to determine how many of the sales quoted were bona fide.

Notes and Items.

The Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the matter of acquiring title to that part of Wendover avenue, from Webster to 3d avenue, give notice that their completed estimates have been deposited at the Department of Public Works, there to remain until Feb. 15th. Parties objecting will be heard by the commissioners at their office, No. 200 Broadway, within the ten week days next after Feb. 14th.

The Keystone National Loan and Investment Union has been incorporated with Percival C. Smith as its president, Thos. W. Wightman its vice-president, G. Dixon Avery, Elliott C. Smith and Ed. P. Lyon as attorney, and John L. Bowles its general manager. Its directors consist of its officers and Nelson E. McCary, Oscar C. Wheeler and Edgar Tucker, and its object is the accumulation of a fund for the purchase and improvement of real estate.

Bainbridge avenue, from Ridge street south about 300 feet, is to have gas mains and lampposts and street lamps. This will be pleasant news to neighboring residents and property owners.

Croton water mains will shortly be laid in 138th street, from 8th to Edgecombe avenue.

The Architectural League Exhibit.

BY A LAYMAN.

The Fifth Annual Exhibition of the Architectural League, which is now to be seen at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, adjoining the Stewart mansion, is especially interesting above the exhibits of previous years, for it contains plans and perspectives for the New York Protestant Cathedral. That the plans exhibited have none of them been accepted, even in the first instance, by the committee which is charged with the power of selection, lends none the less interest to them. They are an evidence of what some men are capable of producing, and, in so far as they are the products of much study and experience, they form an education to the student of architecture. The education is valuable, not because of the great merit of each and every plan exhibited, but rather because of the merits and demerits of each plan. Bad examples, as well as good ones, are necessary to a proper appreciation of the best in architecture, for it is by contrasting the detective with the admirable that we are enabled to judge of both or either.

This repetition of an old truism is made because of the many defects displayed in the plans for a cathedral at this exhibit. These defects are visible to the uninstructed layman almost as glaringly as they are to the competent critic. For instance, what could be more amazing than the extraordinary perspective (79) for a cathedral sent in by A. Hay, Lowell, Mass. Imagine to yourself an ecclesiastical edifice with half-a-dozen towers, all dissimilar in style and design, each of different heights, one rising above all the others and planked at the southwestern corner, looking like a huge chimney attached to an immense factory, or, if you will, imagine a tower something like that in the Tribune building placed on the left side of the main entrance to the cathedral, with a number of smaller towers of absolutely different shape placed at other points of the structure, not one bearing any relation to the other, and you will have some conception of the peculiar design sent in from the manufacturing town of Lowell. Again, take another perspective (75), by Edward Pearce Casey, of New York, and while the work possesses merit, ask yourself whether it does not look like a huge doge's palace with three domes stuck on top of it. The architect seems to have copied one leaf out of the Stewart mansion, and another out of St. Paul's Cathedral, with which his domes suggest similarity. The Parfitt Bros., of Brooklyn, send in a good drawing in colors (42), and while it is a praiseworthy effort it has one or two drawbacks, notably in the inharmoniousness with the general design of the flying buttresses; still, it is a great relief in contrast with the Lowell job. Henry Dudley, of Wall street, sends in two perspectives and a ground plan (52, 53, 54), and one does not know which to admire most, the simplicity of the designs, or the courage of the architect in attempting to capture a great prize on old lines. The design is one which would have won the heart of our Puritan predecessors, or even our immediate ancestors of fifty years ago; but the aged architect, in presenting a modern committee with such a plan, reckoned without his host. More elaborateness and more breadth and strength is what the times call for, and not a design so exceedingly simple. Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell send in two perspectives (8, 10), No. 10, which bears the signature of W. W. Renwick alone, being the superior of the two. Both are conspicuous for the elaborateness of their carved work and would have been costly structures to build. Carrère & Hastings present a design which is remarkable for its elaborate and effective approaches to the cathedral, consisting of a series of terraces and stairways, which would cost probably one-tenth of the entire expenditure to construct. Their plan of the structure is admirable on the whole, the main front possessing unusual merit. The approaches have the advantage that they are a fitting entrance to a noble structure, and would show off a cathedral to advantage. Cram & Wentworth, of Boston, send in one of the finest designs (16) in the exhibit. It is in pure Gothic. They also send in a second design (20), but it is not by any means as happy in conception as No. 16. John J. Deery presents a good piece of work. J. C. Cady & Co. cannot be congratulated on their contribution (25). The main front, with its two towers, is fairly good, but the whole design is spoiled by the "top-heavy" character of the unduly immense and most elaborately carved dome at the northern end. No amount of fine coloring or drawing could hide the defects of this design, which ought not to be considered a serious product of an office of such prominence. How noble and impressive is the perspective to the right (27) in contrast. Here, indeed, one may see the finest plan among the crowd of exhibits. Not only in design, but in draughtsmanship, the work stands at the head and front of all the others, and R. W. Gibson may be congratulated on his effort.

The visitor should not fail to take a glance at the prize drawings for the third annual competition of the League, open to draughtsmen under twenty-five years of age. The subject this year is an "Entrance for a World's Fair," and the gold medal design is shown, awarded to Julius Harder, of New York, and the silver medal design, awarded to Claude F. Bragdon, of Rochester. The latter's is by some admired more than that of the gold medallist. His entrance arch contains the inscription, "Erected by the citizens of New York in perpetual commemoration of the World's Fair of 1892." Three other designs are exhibited out of the host of sketches sent in, one of these by Chas. H. Israels, of New York, the youngest of the competitors, displaying skilful draughtsmanship. The others are from Michigan and Philadelphia.

Leaving the ecclesiastic and the classic, we enter the main rooms, which we find devoted to the domestic and the decorative. The first drawing that greets us is a country house, by C. T. Mott. The houses by Berg & Clark, on Manhattan square (126), attract attention, while a country house by C. W. & A. A. Stoughton (131) is a picturesque design in stone. "The Mettawas," a hotel at Kingsville, Ont. (132), is a most attractive and interesting low-roofed, laterally-extended building, crowded with interesting features. It is sent by a Detroit firm of architects, and shows that that Western city is not devoid of capable men. The painting by F. D. Millet, of work done by the Tiffany Glass Company, of crusaders or Knights Templar (138), shows to what artistic perfection the art can be brought. The sketch of a country club-house (139), by Mellen, Westell &

Kirby, possesses considerable merit, and a "Study for a Hotel in Colorado" (140), by the same architects, is a strikingly good piece of work. The Tiffany Glass Company has another exhibit near by representing Warren, the soldier, and Eliot, the divine, with panels descriptive of the art of conquering by the sword and by the word, the latter showing a missionary expounding the Bible to some Indians. Russiter & Wright send in a country house at Orange (162), but it is not an example of their best work. F. C. Withers exhibits a church and adjoining buildings for Trinity Church Corporation (164), but they are a disappointment to those who believe in the ability and experience of this architect. The drawing by J. Henry Randall (152) of Ca D'Oro, Venice, is a fine piece of coloring, while Chas. P. H. Gilbert's effort in the creation of a Brooklyn residence is a very creditable work. Pontefract Inn, at Pomfret, Conn. (170), by F. L. V. Hoppin, is a curious piece of designing, with merit in it.

A move to the right and we are confronted with a few sketches of Turtle Point, Tuxedo (185, 189), the work being unmistakably that of Bruce Price. There is a boldness, a dash, a country-air picturesqueness about this house which is characteristic of the designer. The drawing by J. A. Van Straaten, of Boston (186), is very pretty, and is remarkable for the clearness and beauty with which the tall trees stand out in the foreground. It is a quaint little scene, this, of Utrecht, Holland. Arthur Little, of Boston, has two fine examples of interior designing, one a dining-room at Salem, Mass. (190), the other a hall fireplace at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass. (191). Both show excellent treatment, but they also show how a good work can be too highly colored and almost spoiled thereby, for which the colorist, and not the designer, is responsible. Chas. P. H. Gilbert's view of the Hotel Castleton, New Brighton (197), will be a revelation to Staten Islanders and others who recollect what the old St. Marc Hotel, of which it is practically an enlargement, used to be. Gilbert is one of the cleverest among our younger architects. Charles W. Clinton sends a perspective of the Bank of America on Wall street, while F. H. Kimball contributes an unusually good photograph of the Corbin building. C. W. Romeyn & Co.'s design of the "Grolier Club" (205), shows a creditable front. A sketch for a country residence (217), by J. A. Schweinfurth, of Boston, is a fine piece of work, notwithstanding its suggestiveness of a $250,000 luxury.

The series of sketches by Whitney Warren (218), have considerable merit, and received a "mention honorable" in a continental city, where the judges ought to be able to estimate correctly. The colored sketch of work done by the Tiffany Glass Company (231), the "Return of the Victors," represents the warriors, mounted and mailed, returning from a victorious struggle, and heralded by maidens on foot, singing praises to their valor. Messrs. L. Korn and Chas. P. Warren, members of the Architectural Department, Columbia College, send in designs for a memorial chapel (232, 241). Hy. P. Kirby's medley, representing the domestic architecture of the Renaissance period (244), is well worth a study. Brunner & Tryon send in a design for a Virginia hotel (255), which is remarkable for its abundance of shaded archways and verandas—the very features wanted in a warm climate. Thayer & Robinson show a country house at Lawrence, L. I., while Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell contribute numerous photographs of the interior of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Wm. B. Tuthill sends in a sketch of the new music hall which is being built on 57th street and 7th avenue. Longfellow, Alden & Harlow, of Boston, send in a picturesque country house built at Dublin, N. H., which is good work, and R. H. Robertson contributes a design for a city church (279), which is one of his best efforts.

The exhibit, while displaying work "good, bad and indifferent" is, taken as a whole, an excellent one. No one interested in building, architecture or interior work and decoration should fail to see it. It brings together the work of some of our best architects, and it affords an education and instruction of a kind which cannot often be found, even for the searching. The visitor will also find the loan exhibition of decorative art in the north room worth inspection. It contains contributions by H. G. Marquand, William L. Dodge, Mrs. Dora Wheeler, the Rev. Dr. R. J. Nevins, Tiffany & Co., and others, and includes antique tapestries and embroideries, mosaics, laquer work, etc. The exhibit remains open till the 11th inst.

The National Association of Builders.

The fourth annual Convention of the National Association of Builders, which is to take place at St. Paul, Minn., on January 27th, 28th and 29th, will be most important in character. A delegation, numbering at least fifteen prominent builders, will attend from New York and vicinity, and representatives from nearly all the principal cities in the Union will be present. The programme of proceedings is as follows:

Monday, January 27th.—Morning Session: (1) Opening Address, by the President; (2) Appointment of Committee on Credentials; (3) Recess for presentation of Credentials. Afternoon Session: (1) Report of Committee on Credentials; (2) Roll Call; (3) Offering of Resolutions; (4) Appointment of Committee to report time and place of next Convention and to nominate officers for the coming year; (5) Report of Secretary; (6) Report of Treasurer; (7) Report of Standing Committees; (8) Report of Special Committees.

Tuesday, January 28th.—Morning Session: (1) Discussion of the question, "Shall the National Association recommend the adoption of the eight-hour day in the building trades, and, if so, when and under what conditions?" Afternoon Session: (1) Discussion of the question, "The Lien Laws—shall the National Association recommend that they be abolished?" (2) Discussion of the question, "Subcontracting—shall the National Association recommend that it be encouraged?"

Wednesday, January 29th.—Morning Session: (1) A portion of this session will be reserved for continuation of eight-hour discussion if necessary. If not needed for that purpose other subjects that have been presented will be introduced, a list of which will be distributed as soon as possible; (2) Discussion of the question, "Manual Training—shall the National Association recommend its introduction in the public schools?" Afternoon Session: (1) Report of the Committee on Resolutions; (2) Report of the Committee on Time and Place of next Convention, and on Nomination of Officers; (3) Election of Officers; (4) Naming and Election of Directors; (5) Unfinished Business; (6) New Business, Amendment to Constitution; (7) Adjournment.

It will be noticed that the important question will be discussed as to the adoption of an eight-hour law in the building trades throughout the country. W. H. Sayward, the secretary of the association, is known to be strongly in favor of the eight-hour law, as are many other builders. A dispatch was recently sent to the Herald from Pittsburg, Pa., emanating from a source hostile to the adoption of the short day, and one of the delegates is reported to have spoken as follows: "At the outset," said he, "we oppose the movement because it is not business-like. It is against the conditions of business to be asked to shorten a trade which is dependent so much upon weather and the length of the days. Furthermore we cannot as contractors hope to advance prices from 12 to 20 per cent. when such an advance is not compelled by a corresponding increased cost of materials. Eight hours' work for ten hours' pay will not be countenanced by owners. These are a few reasons why we cannot agree to the eight hour plan, and every contractor and builder in the national organization will oppose it."

John J. Tucker, one of the most prominent and active of the New York delegates, when called upon by a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, said: "I do not indorse these statements. While I should hesitate before voting for an eight-hour law, I am at once of opinion that in many cases it should be adopted. For instance, a great many working men have to travel a good distance before they get to their work. Now, if a man has to be at a building at 7 o'clock in the morning, and has to journey nearly an hour to get there, he must get up by 5 o'clock to be at work on time. This is rather hard on a man who has to do it year in and year out. Those of us who have wives and children feel that the time which a workman can devote to his family or to recreation is very limited, because he has to retire very soon after eating his supper if he wants to get up in time and be able to obtain enough rest. I would rather err on the human side, I think, if I were called on to give my vote. I have been fighting for twenty years, more or less, against arbitrary reductions in the hours of labor, but I have been fighting for owners and capitalists who have seldom or ever been ready to support me. Now I am beginning to feel that if the people principally affected by the reduced hours of labor do not care to take a stand against it, there is no reason why I should stand the brunt of the fight. And there are many other builders who must think as I do."

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

GEO. H. SCOTT ELECTED PRESIDENT.

The Board of Directors had a most interested meeting on Tuesday. Owing to the illness of J. Romaine Brown, only twelve directors were present.

Myer S. Isaacs occupied the chair, and after some preliminary business was transacted the election of a president was proceeded with.

A ballot was taken, when it was found that six votes had been cast for Geo. H. Scott and five for H. H. Cammannn, there being one blank.

Geo. R. Read's declination to be renominated caused the selection of Mr. Cammann as candidate. Upon the vote of 6 to 5 in favor in Mr. Scott's election to the presidency being announced, Chairman Isaacs declared that no election had consequently taken place, an absolute majority of the votes cast being necessary. This statement was greeted with amazement by both parties. The chair then ordered another ballot. Director Fromme rose to a point of order. The chair refused to listen to the point of order. Director Warren then moved that Mr. Isaacs be removed from the chair, but the latter refused to allow the motion to be put. After some further discussion he left the chair and declared the meeting adjourned.

Director Chas. A Schermerhorn was then requested by the remaining directors to take the chair, which he consented to do. Some discussion followed, in which Mr. Schermerhorn stated that Mr. Scott had been duly elected. A motion to adjourn was made, the following being the vote:—Ayes: Messrs. Cammann, Luyster, Read, Schermerhorn and Smyth. Noes: Messrs. Deeves, Fromme, Harnett, Johnson and Warren. Mr. Scott desired to be excused from voting, and in so doing stated that in his opinion the critical position of the Exchange, the necessity of organization, and the interests of the stockholders rendered immediate action imperative. He subsequently withdrew his objection and voted "no."

Mr. Warren then moved that the Board proceed with the election of officers, whereupon Mr. Schermerhorn, refusing to entertain the motion, left the chair.

Mr. Scott was then voted to the chair, and was again nominated.

In the meantime Messrs. Schermerhorn, Cammann, Read, Luyster and Smyth had left the meeting. On the vote being taken six votes were declared for Mr. Scott, who was again declared elected.

The meeting then adjourned, and Mr. Scott, on Wednesday, ordered notices to be sent out for another meeting on Friday.

YESTERDAY'S MEETING OF DIRECTORS.

The directors of the Exchange met again yesterday at 2 P. M. Geo. H. Scott, the president, in the chair. All the members were present, excepting J. Romaine Brown, who has had an attack of grip and pneumonia, from which he is recovering.

The following letter was then read, and is a reply to the question raised as to Mr. Scott's election.

NEW YORK, January 9, 1890.

BENJAMIN HARDWICK, Esq., Manager Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited):

DEAR SIR—Our opinion is asked as to the legality of the election of Mr. George H. Scott, as President of the Exchange, at the meeting held on Tuesday last.

As we understand the facts, at that meeting twelve of the thirteen directors were present, Mr. Isaacs, the first vice-president, in the chair.

Upon motion it was duly resolved to proceed to the election of a president, and ballots being cast, it was found that six were for Mr. Scott, five for Mr. Cammann, and one blank. The chair ruled that there was no election. An appeal was taken from this ruling which the chair refused to entertain, and then left the chair and room, declaring the meeting adjourned; after which Mr. Scott, claiming to be elected president, assumed the chair, and the meeting, on motion, adjourned.

The by-laws, article 2, section 2, provide: "The Board of Directors, immediately after their election, shall elect from their own body a president," etc.

Section 4 of the same article, provides: "At every meeting of the Board of Directors, a majority of the whole number shall constitute a quorum."

There is no provision in either of the by-laws or the statute under which the Exchange was incorporated, requiring the votes of a majority of all the members of the board or of those present, to elect an officer.

The provision as to the quorum is taken from similar language used in section 10 of the Act of 1875, under which the Exchange is organized.

There being then, concededly, a quorum present at this meeting the general rule is that a majority of the quorum may decide a question and a plurality may elect any officer, unless otherwise provided by charter or by-laws or by law. (Ex-parte Wilcox, 7 Cowen, 410; Cooley's Const. Lim., 4th Ed. x 141; Oldknow v. Wainwright, 2 Burr, 1017; Booker v. Young, 12 Gratten, 303.)

The casting of a blank ballot by one of the directors present was, in our opinion, equivalent to his not voting.

A vote is the expression of a choice of one of the candidates nominated for a particular office, and must therefore indicate that the party voting selects some one candidate as his choice for the office.

A blank vote is no vote.

We have found no decision to the effect that a director, present at a meeting and not voting, is to be counted in determining whether or not a particular candidate has received a majority of the votes cast, except where the statutes or by-laws have expressly required the election to be by a majority of those present at the meeting, and we have before observed that there is no such requirement in this case.

We are, therefore, of opinion that Mr. Scott was legally elected to the office of President of the Exchange. Very truly yours, (Signed) STRONG & CADWALADER.

On the election of further officers, Ira D. Warren was proposed as first vice-president. There were six votes for and six against. Mr. Warren then proposed Charles A. Schermerhorn for the position and the latter was elected. Jere. Johnson, Jr., was elected second vice-president, and Geo. R. Read, who first declined, was re-elected treasurer. Isaac Fromme was elected secretary in place of C. W. Luyster, having received six votes against five cast for P. A. Smyth.

The following committees were appointed: Finance Committee—H. H. Cammann, Chas. A. Schermerhorn and C. W. Luyster. Exchange and Auction Room Committee—R. V. Harnett, Jere. Johnson, Jr., Richard Deeves, Ira D. Warren and Philip A. Smyth. Membership Committee—J. Romaine Brown, C. A. Schermerhorn, Isaac Fromme, Philip A. Smyth and Richard Deeves.

A committee of the president and two ex-presidents were appointed to go to Washington and represent the Exchange before the committee in the World's Fair, which is expected to sit to-day. Messrs. Scott and Cruikshank will go, but H. H. Cammann is unable to leave town, owing to pressing business duties.

Now that Geo. H. Scott has been elected president people will no doubt ask whether there is to be a change in the policy of the Exchange.

President Scott when seen about this said: "I intend to administer the affairs of the Exchange on an economical basis, and I shall devote my best efforts to increasing the influence and the power of the Exchange in our State and city legislation, in the interest of the property-owners and the people of this city."

Richard V. Harnett said: "Our watchword will be economy combined with efficiency in the management of the Exchange."

An Extension or a Loop?

Four parties employed by lawyers representing the Manhattan Road have quietly been making inquiries in a certain city department as to streets and street openings north of 155th street. The inquiries were of such a nature as to lead to the belief that the Manhattan Road is preparing plans to extend the west side "L" road system northward to Kingsbridge, and possibly to Yonkers, if not Tarrytown. The extension would largely be a surface road, and would greatly develop the property along Washington Heights and northward. It is known that for some time past petitions have been sent in by property-owners and residents at Kingsbridge and other points north of 155th street, requesting that the road be extended in a northeasterly direction, guaranteeing the company the right of way and freedom from damage suits. On the other hand it is surmised that the company may be making inquiries around and north of 155th street to construct a loop at the northern terminus of the 6th and 9th avenue "L" roads, abandoning the idea of obtaining the Battery loop, after the Mayor's definite opposition. We have information to the effect that the company has purchased from the Lynch estate, per James J. Coogan, about thirty-one lots on the land adjoining the "L" road terminus at 155th street, the price paid being upwards of $100,000.

The New Criminal Court Building.

At the meeting of the Sinking Fund Commissioners held yesterday, final action was taken on the specifications for the new Criminal Court building. Mayor Grant objected to the provision that the city should pay 85 per cent. of the contract price for work done that received the approval of the Commissioner of Public Works and the architects. The Mayor suggested 70 per cent. as the highest figure that should be allowed, and the specifications were amended to read 70 per cent. The Comptroller was then instructed to advertise for bids in certain designated papers, the bids to be opened on February 12th. Certainly this does not allow a superabundance of time for the preparation of bids on a building to cost $1,500,000, especially as the call for bids has been limited to publicity in certain of the daily papers, while the proper channels for reaching the entire building trade, and consequently securing every advantage that the market offers, have been passed by for some reasons not given.

The Barnum Show Building.

It has been impossible to obtain the correct location of the property for which the representatives of Barnum & Bailey, the showmen, are negotiating. A reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE was yesterday shown the plans by R. F. ("Tody") Hamilton, which show a lengthy building, three stories high. The ground plan is laid out for athletic sports, though it has not yet been definitely decided how the upper floors shall be laid out. Mr. Hamilton regretted he could not give the location, as negotiations were still pending with some of the property-owners. The property is 200 feet deep and about 700 feet long, and is evidently located somewhere between Durland's Riding Academy and 65th street, for it has a frontage on Central Park West and the Boulevard. The statement in several of the daily papers that the location is 86th street, between 8th and 9th avenues, the Manhattan Athletic Club Grounds, is wrong. David B. Ogden, of the firm of Ogden, Beekman & Ogden, when called on, said: "Mr. Elliott Zborowski has not sold or leased an inch of the athletic grounds to the Barnum people, though a few months ago one of their representatives called on me to ascertain our terms, which they thought too high. We have just sold two lots of the property for improvement. They are on the north side of 86th street, 200 feet west of Central Park West, and the price obtained was $38,000. The purchasers will build two handsome 25-foot private residences on the site.

J. B. McElfatrick & Son, who were called upon, declined to give the location, but acknowledged having drawn the plans for the building, which is to be largely of iron construction, and will cost about $400,000.

Men and Things.

It is very high praise to give to a reformer to say that in the first proposals a man made he outlined so completely the details of the reform that every departure made from his suggestions was found in time to be inadvisable. Yet such praise is due to Dwight H. Olmstead. In the minority report he made as far back as 1885, he drew up a bill which has been the basis of all subsequent legislation. Furthermore, it was just, in so far as the subsequent legislation differed from Mr. Olmstead's bill that it proved defective and had to be amended. When New York finally gets land transfer reform, and its simplicity and utility of the changes are appreciated, then we shall learn the amount of our debt to Mr. Olmstead, to whose clear understanding and tireless energy we owe the first suggestion that a reform was needed, the principal on which it was based and the work which was necessary to pass the Legislature.

The Rev. Mr. Alger delivered before the Goethe Club, during the past week, a lecture on the "Ideal of Personal Perfection," which, for clearness of insight, profundity of analysis, lucidity of exposition and grasp of his subject I have seldom, if ever, heard equalled. It was a lecture which no young man could have written. The ideas were so completely carried out, their relation one to another so completely realized and so precisely expressed that a lifetime of thought was the necessary condition of the discourse. But, alas, he was casting pearls before swine. After the first fifteen minutes the male philosophers present began shifting their patent leathered feet nervously from one knee to the other, politely yawning beneath their hands, and turning their intelligent faces towards the female philosophers next to them with a smile that betokened more ennui than interest. So universal did this become in time that the reverend lecturer put down his papers and remarked, with a display of temper that was natural, but hardly philosophical, that if the audience was not interested he would discontinue his reading. Of course everybody immediately put on a show of wonderous attention, and enthusiastically told the paternal philosopher to proceed. This Mr. Alger did, and secured in the future the appearance of interest, if nothing more. In truth the fault was as much the lecturer's as the listeners. The Rev. Mr. Alger was not addressing a learned body; on the contrary, the Goethe Club is composed mainly of harmless persons, whose acquaintance with philosophy has scarcely reached the degree of a bow. Such an audience must be addressed in a suggestive literary, not in an exhaustive philosophical style.

The Comtesse Chambord de Peseta, who has been buying several parcels of real estate in this city recently, is a lady who married an American gentleman. On her marriage to him she stipulated that she should retain, and be known by, her title, which is an old one. She speaks fairly good English, with a pleasant accent, and is at present on a visit at Washington. She owns large estates in Spain, including a considerable part of the principal square in Madrid. These properties she is converting into cash as speedily as she can, with the intention of investing the money in New York City realty. She intends to take up her residence on 67th street, near Madison avenue, in a house which she has just purchased.

The "Gondoliers" bears a closer resemblance to "Pinafore" than to any other of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas. Like "Pinafore" the plot turns on the mixing up of two children by a nurse; and like "Pinafore" the satire turns largely on the absurdity of bestowing position because of birth, and on the parallel absurdity of much of the prating about the rights and equality of man. But although it bears a resemblance to "Pinafore" in some of its features, it is not by any means to be compared to Gilbert and Sullivan's first success, either in the freshness of the music or the wit of the libretto. All of this firm's minor efforts have suffered from the fact that they have produced two or three operas of surprising merit. Under the circumstances comparisons are inevitable; newspaper criticisms are not altogether favorable, and as the royalties to the author and composer are very heavy the operas are soon withdrawn. The "Gondoliers" is quite as good as "Ruddygore" or "Iolanthe," but nowhere near the standard of "Patience" and the "Mikado," it ought to succeed under ordinary circumstances. The first-night production was very unfortunate. Great expectations had been held forth—expectations which were not fulfilled. This fact, combined with the ill-considered enthusiasm of the gallery, rathered depressed the audience. Unfortunately also the company was bad enough to have irretrievably damned an opera composed by the god of song and written by the god of wit. If Mr. Palmer has anything to do in the matter should strongly advise the re-exportation of his English company with as much celerity as possible. When this is done he should substitute in their places some people who can sing and act, hire a pleasanter theatre, circulate notices of the change in the cast among the newspapers, and then prepare to see an increase of his bank account.

In the City Departments.

The Commissioner of Public Works will shortly advertise the contract for paving, with asphalt, the roadway of 106th street, between 8th avenue and the Boulevard, and for crosswalks of two courses of blue stone to be laid at the intersecting and terminating avenues. The work is to be guaranteed by the contractor for five years.

A watering-trough is to be placed on the sidewalk near the curb line, in front of No. 62 West Broadway, by Michael Farrelly, the expense to be borne by him, and the trough to be removable at the pleasure of the Common Council.

The Mercantile National Bank has received permission from the city to lay a crosswalk of two courses of blue stone, with a row of paving blocks between, from their building at 191 Broadway across to the Corbin building, at the corner of John street. One of the officers of the bank, when seen by a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, said: "Broadway has been in such a disgraceful condition that we want to lay the crosswalk for the convenience of our depositors and the public. We asked for three courses, but the city only grants us permission to lay two, which, as we are to pay for the work ourselves, was unexpected by us." There should be a crosswalk at every street on Broadway, and the city should pay for it, as the public convenience demands it.

A granite block pavement is to be laid on 53d street, from 10th to 11th avenue, and crosswalks placed at the terminating avenues where not already laid.

The Mayor has approved a resolution of the Board of Aldermen establishing a new ferry between New York and Jersey City. It is to run between a point south of, and at or near, the foot of West 30th street and Jersey City, and the Sinking Fund Commissioners have been authorized to sell at public auction the franchise to run and operate the ferry, which is also to have a connection with Brooklyn. The main object of this new ferry is to facilitate the transportation, from points in New Jersey and Brooklyn, of market supplies to West Washington Market. Deputy-Comptroller Storrs said: "The franchise has been applied for in the interest of the Pennsylvania Road, and although it has not been settled upon where the ferry will run to in New Jersey, it will probably be to or adjoining their present ferry slips on the other side of the North River, The Brooklyn connection will no doubt be made where the Brooklyn Annex runs to, though I do not speak with definite knowledge on the matter."

Asphalt paving, with a concrete foundation, is to be laid on 73d street, between West End avenue and Riverside Drive, with crosswalks at the intersecting avenues where not already laid.

The Metropolitan Crosstown Railway Company has received the consent of the city to build a surface railroad along the following route: Commencing at East street near the Grand street Ferry and thence along East and Delancey streets to the Bowery, thence through Spring street to and along South 5th avenue, 4th street, Macdougal street, Waverley place, Christopher street, Bank street, Greenwich avenue, 13th and Horatio streets, 8th avenue, 13th street and 13th avenue to 14th street, where it is to terminate. The road will have double tracks nearly all the way and the franchise is to be put up at public auction in the usual manner. Deputy-Comptroller Storrs, when called upon, said: "We are preparing the advertisements, and directly they are ready, which will be in a week or so, we will then advertise the date and conditions of sale. The advertisement will have to be published for three weeks according to law."

Water mains are to be laid in 128th street, between St. Nicholas and 8th avenues.

The carriageway of 92d street, from West End avenue to the Boulevard, is to be paved with granite blocks, and crosswalks are to be laid within the lines of the sidewalks of the Boulevard and 11th avenue at 92d street where not already laid.

The Kingsland estate will shortly receive from the city $179,856 for their rights in the wharf property lying west of 13th avenue, including their upland and bulkhead west of that avenue, between 24th and 25th streets, on the Hudson River, and their riparian rights and privileges and easements to collect wharfage and cranage at the bulkhead named.

Alderman Storm and four of his colleagues in the City Council have successfully carried through a motion to limit the use of the sidewalks of the city by contractors. Heretofore there has practically been no limit to this and the public has frequently been inconvenienced to an unnecessary degree in consequence. Hereafter only one-half of the sidewalk will be allowed to be used, so that the public shall have the use of the other half, and no greater distance of 1,000 feet will be permitted to be occupied at one time.

A crib bulkhead is to be built on the Harlem River, between 138th and 140th streets. Fogg & Scribner, who recently obtained the contract, will shortly commence the work. Their contract, which was the lowest bid, is for $59,900.

The Comptroller and Chamberlain will shortly report to the Sinking Fund Commission as to what part, if not the whole, of the Old Harlem Market Square shall be improved by buildings for police and civil courts in Harlem. The property is owned by the city, and is located at 121st street, near 3d avenue and Sylvan place.

A number of neighboring property-owners have petitioned that the hospital on 99th street, between 9th and 10th avenues, be removed, as it is a nuisance to the neighborhood. The petition has been referred to the Comptroller.

It was recently reported that Commissioner Gilroy was to take a trip to Europe to examine into the condition of the streets there and to inquire as to the durability of different kinds of street pavements in the various capitals, with a view to applying the experience in New York City. A reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called upon Mr. Gilroy, who said: "I think it would certainly be of advantage to the city if I could get to the other side and study the different pavements there. The experience which they have, and the generally good condition of their streets, as compared with ours, would no doubt enable me to come back with a knowledge that would be very useful here. We are going to spend nearly $2,500,000 on street pavements this year, and it would be well if I had the experience of Europe before me before this expenditure was made. How long would I be absent? Well, I think I could get back in six weeks, and I could be better spared now than later on. If I don't go some engineer should be sent over to make a report of his investigations for this department and the city government." The Mayor thinks the commissioner cannot be spared, and it is therefore not likely that he will take the trip to the other side of the water.

The highest bid recently received by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund for Consolidated City stock bearing interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum was $101.25, made by Moller & Co.

The total amount of bonds issued for the new parks in the 23d and 24th Wards was $9,057,000. The final award was $9,621,384, and the estimated damage $9,352,101, but the premium on bonds reduced the cost to about nine millions.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has received permission from the Dock Board to build a "bonnet" or "hood" over the street platform at pier 27, East River, to be 7 feet wide and to extend the whole length of the platform on each side of the pier, for the protection of property. The bonnet is not to extend beyond the southerly line of the street.

The principal matter which came up at the meeting of the Park Department, on Wednesday, was the opening of three bids for the addition to the Museum of Natural History. They were for $465,970, $420,000 and $398,680, but the commissioners thought they were all too high and rejected them.

The Corporation Counsel is to be instructed to prepare a bill to be presented to the Legislature authorizing the sales of the following markets—Essex, Centre, Union and Clinton—by the Sinking Fund Commission.

The Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange.

The Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited) held its meeting for the election of directors on Monday evening. There was a large attendance and everything passed off harmoniously. The old stockholders had promised to acquiesce in any movement on the part of the new element, and to allow that element to designate who was desired for the new board. They stood by the pledge made, and only varied the monotony by casting a few extra votes for their secretary, who had been placed upon the ticket, and this was only done by way of compliment and with no intention of changing the result. After the ticket had been made up some of the new members desired a change, and W. W. Kenyon's name was substituted for that of Daniel Ferry. This was done to secure a representative of another important interest and not as reflecting in any way upon the gentleman whose name was set aside. The result of the balloting was as follows: William Ziegler, 950 votes; Leonard Moody, 950; E. F. Linton, 950; E. J. Granger, 950; Jere. Johnson, Jr., 950; J. G. Dettmer, 950; Samuel B. Duryea, 950; Darwin R. James, 950; Howard M. Smith, 950; Felix Campbell, 950; Frank A. Barnaby, 950; C. Augustus Haviland, 980; Whitman W. Kenyon, 680; Daniel Ferry, 300. The thirteen first above named were declared elected.

Upon the question of amending the by-laws so that no person should hold less than twenty shares of stock there was a favorable and unanimous vote; and the question granting authority to the Board of Directors to purchase real estate and to erect a building for the uses of the Exchange met with similar approval.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange, held Thursday, the following officers were elected: Wm. Ziegler, president; Leonard Moody, 1st vice-president; Jere Johnson, Jr., 2d vice-president; Howard M. Smith, treasurer; C. Augustus Haviland, secretary. A committee was appointed to report next Monday as to site or sites suitable for an Exchange, this being preliminary to entering upon negotiations for purchase and for erection of buildings. The stock book is at the office of Leonard Moody, 20 Court street, where a few remaining shares of stock may be subscribed for.

Real Estate Department.

The past week has been a very dull one on 'Change. Sales have been few in number and unimportant in character, and the attendance has been light. From all appearances it seems we shall have a quiet auction market for the next few weeks, although inquiry leads to our ascertaining that the auction business will be exceedingly large in the spring.

Business with the brokers has been very good during the week, as the "Gossip" column indicates. Sales have been fairly numerous as well as very important, and it is generally agreed that the next few weeks will witness the closing of many big transactions. There is a good demand with plenty of inquiry for desirable properties. This is emphatically shown by syndicates advertising for large plots of down-town properties. A feature of the sales of the week is the number of costly dwellings which have changed hands.

On Tuesday, January 14th, Richard V. Harnett & Co., will sell No. 175 Allen street, a three-story and basement, brick front, frame dwelling, with a double store, and a three story brick extension, lot, 25.5x65.

On the same day the same firm will sell No. 165 Mott street, a five-story and basement brick and stone tenement, 24.4x85x100.

On Thursday, January 16th, Adrian H. Muller & Son will sell the valuable five-story iron and brick building situated at Nos. 109 and 111 Prince street, the plot being 50x95, on the northwest corner of Greene street. There are vaulted sidewalks under the entire front of the building and it is situated in a district which has seen many improvements of late and where property is in good demand.

Engelhardt is preparing plans for a three-story frame hotel, 40.7x59.7x45.6x52, with extension 20x20, two stories high, to be erected at Fort Hamilton avenue and 50th street, New Utrecht, for Joseph Hartman, to cost $10,000; a three-story and basement brown stone dwelling, 24x65, on the northwest corner of South 9th and Driggs streets; a three-story brick flat, 22x48, on the west side of Driggs street, 75 feet south of South 9th street, and a similar flat, 23.6x55, on the west side of the same street, 100 feet south of South 9th street, all for William Dick, to cost $27,000; a three-story and basement brick dwelling, 22x50, on the southeast corner of Bushwick and Willoughby avenues, with four two-and-a-half-story and basement brick dwellings, 19x45 each, adjoining on Bushwick avenue, for William Ulmer, to cost $25,000; a two-story and attic brick and stone dwelling, 37x42, with extension 36x20, on the northeast corner of Bushwick avenue and Grove street, for Gustav Dorschuck, to cost $25,000; a four-story frame tenement, 30x55, with extension 25x20, on the northeast corner of Central avenue and Prospect street, for Joseph Wendell, to cost $7,000, and a three-story frame store and dwelling, 23.9x57, on the west side of Kingsland avenue, 142.6 north of Van Cott avenue, for Fred'k Gerhardt, to cost $5,000.

W. H. C. Hornum has plans for a two-story brick stable, 40x52, to be built on the north side of Seabring street, 150 feet west of Richards street, and a one-story brick wagon shed, 40x35, to be built on the south side of Hamilton avenue, 146 feet west of Richards street, for Henry R. Worthington, at a cost of $10,000.

Out of Town.

CONEY ISLAND.—The Prospect Park & Coney Island Railway Co. will build an addition to their depot at this place, for which M. Thomas has drawn the plans. It is to be a frame building, 30x80, irregular, and will cost about $8,000.

JERSEY CITY.—Real estate and building have been very quiet lately, due to the holidays. The latest news among the architects is as follows:

The Jersey City Safe Deposit and Trust Company are having plans drawn in competition, for a safe deposit building to be erected at No. 83 Montgomery street. The plan of G. W. La Baw & Son which was seen a few days ago, shows quite a handsome elevation, three stories high, with plenty of window openings. The front is of brick, stone and iron. The selection of the architect is to be made within a few weeks and an old frame structure is shortly to be torn down to make way for the improvement. The new building is to be made fire-proof.

G. L. Bettcher is preparing plans for two four-story brick and stone front tenements, 25x60 each, to be built on the corner of Barrow and Bright streets, for D. Lewis, at a cost of $34,000, and for a two-story and attic dwelling to be built on Tonnelly avenue, near Magnolia avenue, for C. J. Hansen, at a cost of $5,500.

R. W. Sailer is preparing plans for a two-and-a-half-story frame dwelling to be built on the west side of Delaware avenue, 100 feet north of Duncan avenue, by J. Billington, to cost $3,000.

There have been very few plans filed with the Building Inspector this year. The following are the principal ones:

One two-story and basement dwelling, 18.9x40, to be built at No. 338 Webster avenue, near Congress street, for D. S. Alspaugh, to cost $3,000; a two-and-a-half-story dwelling, 25x50, at 29 Bleecker street, between Central and Summit avenues, for August Nestler, to cost $2,900; a one-story ice storage house, 31x121, on Jersey City avenue, for the Lehigh Valley Rail-roll Co., cost $2,000; a three-story dwelling, 22x32, on Bergen avenue, near Bramhall avenue, for J. Sandall, cost $2,250; a three-story tenement, 23x40, on Pine street, for Annie Simon, cost $2,643; a two-story dwelling, 23x38, on Warner avenue, Greenville, for Charles de Malignon, cost $2,500; three two-story and basement dwellings, 16.8x34 each, on the west side of Arlington avenue, near Bay View avenue, cost $2,141; one three-story tenement, 28x60, at 138 Phillip street, for Michael Donovan, cost $5,000; one two-story dwelling, 18x36, and extension, Boyd avenue, for Geo. M, Craig, cost $2,600.

NEWARK, N. J.—The past year has been an active one in the building trade of this city. This was particularly true of the spring, which started off at a rate which, if it had been sustained, would have made the advance at the end of the year remarkable. The pace was not, however, kept up throughout the summer and autumn. The advance over 1888 has been nevertheless handsome. Plans for 1,541 buildings were filed, which was an increase of 168 over the year previous. Of these fully seven-eighths were constructed of wood, the exact number being 1,251. Of the remainder 283 were brick, 5 were brick and frame and 2 were brick and stone. In character the buildings were small and mainly unimportant. One 4-sty brk apartment house was put up on the corner of Springfield av and High st; but this building, a new departure for Newark, was the only one of its kind. Quite a number of factories have been constructed, among which may be mentioned a large 4-sty furniture warehouse, a 3-sty brk hat factory, an extensive jewelry factory, a 5-sty corset factory, large brass works and two good-sized breweries. Newark has three more churches than it had a year ago, three more chapels and three more Sunday-schools. There has been very little tearing down and reconstruction. Most of the building has been done in the outer wards, the following being the wards in which most of the work was accomplished in their order: The 8th, the 6th, the 12th, the 11th, the 13th, the 14th and the 10th. In his report to the Common Council the Superintendent of Buildings, Mr. Isaac Townsden, recommends that the fire limit be extended and the building regulations revised. The city has grown so much in size since the present rules went in force that some change has become necessary.

Schweitzer & Diemer have drawn plans for a two-story brick livery stable, to be built by G. W. Thomas. The building will be 70x80, and the cost $6,000. The same architects have completed plans for a two-story frame dwelling, 24x50, to cost $3,500, which will be built by C. S. Cooper.

The following is a list of the plans filed at the office of the Superintendent of Buildings within the last two weeks :

James Trivett, No. 25 Morris av, one 2-sty fr dwg, 18x26; Cyrus Axtell, No. 91 Washington av, one 2½-sty fr dwg, 22x30, with extension; Mrs. Anna Decker, No. 204 Peshine av, one 2-sty fr dwg, 17x30, with extension; Mrs. C. Corey, Lake st and Montclair av, one 2-sty fr dwg, 40x40; Robert Z. Maiers, Clifford st, three 2-sty fr dwgs, 16x30 each; Samuel Doughty, No. 50 Searing st, one 2-sty fr dwg, 13x26; Mary Krantz, No. 99 Peshine av, one 3-sty fr store and dwg, 20x40; August Broemel, No. 184 Belmont av, one 1-sty fr carpenter shop, 16x30; J. P. Suydam, Seabury st, one 3-sty fr dwg, 16x24; Kilian Bicks, No. 185 Charlton st, one 3-sty fr dwg, 21x40; Fred. Snyder, No. 53 Lang st, one 2-sty fr dwg, 21x40; Edward S. Clymer, No. 234 6th av, one 2-sty fr dwg, 21x30, with extension; Frederick Stauffer, No. 416 Walnut st, one 3-sty fr dwg, 22x40; Bertha Reibold, South 10th st and 14th av, one 3-sty fr dwg, 33.6x40.8; S. H. Vreeland, No. 50 8th av, one 2-sty brk dwg, 22x59; William Clymer 226 6th av, one 2-sty fr dwg, 22x29; J. B. Grimm, No. 160 Barclay st, one 2-sty fr dwg, 22x42; John Ziebarth, No. 161 Livingston st, one 3-sty fr dwg, 22x42, with extension; Richard Freygang, Nos. 700 and 702 South 14th st, one 2-sty shop, 20x14; W. Hill, cor Tuhnen and Pacific sts, one 1-sty fr hall, 32x121.

ORANGE, N. J.—Schweitzer & Diemer have finished the plans for a two-story frame dwelling, to be built at this place at a cost of $4,500; size, 25x50. Owner's name not given.

ROCKLAND LAKE, N. Y.—A. Eckeberg will build a two-story frame hotel. It will be 32x45, finished with French roof—slate and tin. It is to be arranged to accommodate fifteen families, and the cost will be $4,500. Architect, Wm. Graul.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Builders who will arrive here shortly as delegates from New York to the National Builders' Convention will have an opportunity of estimating on a new opera house to be built here, to cost about $300,000. It will be built on 6th street, and is to be of fire-proof construction, including an iron gallery and roof, and will have seating accommodation for 2,000 people. J. B. McElfatrick & Son are the architects.

Contractors' Notes.

Bids will be received at the Department of Public Works until 12 M. Tuesday, January 21st, for regulating and grading 107th street, from 9th to 10th avenue, and setting curb-stones and flagging sidewalks therein; for sewers in 2d avenue, between 9th and 10th streets; in 12th avenue, between 39th and 40th streets, with alteration and improvement to sewer in 39th street; for furnishing and delivering stop-cocks, hydrants, wooden hydrant boxes, cast iron stop-cock boxes, tapping cock-boxes, stop-cocks, hydrants, wooden hydrant boxes, cast iron stop-cock boxes and manhole heads; for furnishing, delivering and laying water mains in Mosholu Parkway, Bronx River Park and Southern Boulevard, in 8th avenue, Transverse road, 5th avenue, and 93d street; for furnishing materials, building and putting up a pumping engine, boilers and appurtenances in the building on 97th and 98th streets, 100 feet west of 9th avenue.

Special Notices.

Henry Miller, the well-known builder, and Walter Stables, the broker, have formed a partnership under the name of Miller & Stabler, with offices at 1187 9th avenue, corner of 72d street, and at 31 Nassau street. They have a number of lots south of 14th street for sale, some with building loans, and a large amount of money to loan at low rates.

Mathiasen & Hausen, whose architectural terra cotta works are situated at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, and whose materials are such as to give the most complete satisfaction to their numerous customers, send us an interesting list of some of the buildings for which they have supplied the terra cotta. This list includes the block from 94th to 95th street and Park avenue, a block between 131st and 132d streets and 5th avenue, two buildings on St. Marks place, Nos. 7 and 69, the latter the German Odd Fellows Hall, and the warehouses, situated at the following places: No. 17 Lispenard street, No. 69 Cortlandt street, No. 79 Grand street, and Nos. 151 and 153 East 23d street. Furthermore, the terra cotta in the buildings at Nos. 338 and 342 East 13th street and at No. 203 Bleecker street come from their works. This in itself is an imposing list, and when we remember that it by no means represents their total amount of work, it can be imagined to what an extent they have given satisfaction to their customers.

The large increases in the value of down-town property which we are continually chronicling in the columns of this paper would naturally lead investors of large means to make purchases in this district. In another column will be found the advertisement of a syndicate which wishes to invest $2,000,000 in business property east of Broadway, between Fulton and Beaver streets, before February 1st. This is a fine opportunity for property-owners within these boundaries to find a ready market for their holdings. Full particulars in writing should be sent to Ferdinand Fish, No 149 Broadway.

Back Numbers Wanted.

Fifteen cents each will be paid for copies of this paper, No. 1087, dated January 12, 1889. Ten cents each will be paid for the pictorial supplement to said issue.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For Prices see pages v., vii., viii. and x.]

BRICKS.—There has been nothing of a particularly striking character in the general market for Hard Brick this week. The absence of storms has permitted rather more continuous work than ordinary, and probably increased consumption somewhat, making trade on the whole very fair, considering the season of the year, yet there was no real activity or anything upon which sellers were enabled to build up much advantage. It was just about a steady market upon which $7 was a possibility if stock was very fine, but must be extra attractive to do it, as the quality is averaging first rate, and buyers are not compelled to skirmish around much in order to make selections. Probably the bulk of present wants are met by current arrivals without disturbing local accumulations, and the chances are that supplies will continue to come forward so long as navigation remains clear, but the recent cold snap induces the belief that there may be some winter lingering about with a chance of eventually closing the river. There has been an increase of about ten per cent. in the production for the year, with a larger stock than usual left over. Pales sell fairly well and command former rates as a rule. Contrary to expectations there has been a little further business done in Fronts, and a couple of cargoes are now loading on fresh made sales.

CEMENT.—Domestic does not find much demand for immediate delivery, but there is some negotiations already under way for stock wanted promptly upon the opening of the next season. Foreign grades have not been plentiful, and the market remains firm, with no importer, so far as known, willing to enter upon contracts for the new season's delivery, except upon an advanced basis of valuation.

LATH.—It has been a quiet week, partly for want of stock, as most of the lots coming in were placed before arrival, but the general tone of the market is apparently firm and receivers talk as though they would listen to no bids of less than $2.30 per M on St. John stock at least. The record as given shows only small amount of stock now afloat for this port.

LIME.—Demand moderate and somewhat indifferent, but fortunately few arrivals and a stoppage of shipments reported. So far as known, there has been no change from the stereotyped range of prices so long quoted.

LUMBER.—The general state of affairs on the lumber market at the present time is not of a very brilliant or attractive character, and there is little in the way of valuable information to convey. The remarkably open condition of the winter has permitted a much closer delivery of stock on contract than could have been anticipated, and no doubt contributed somewhat to increase the sale of stuff on fresh deals, with a prospect that if the warm weather continues the winter consumption will run somewhat above the average, especially in the way of the coarser woods for building purposes, etc. Naturally in such an event the effect upon yard stocks must commence to show itself at an earlier date than usual, though as yet dealers do not appear much worried or particularly anxious to open negotiations for additional supplies, still there are a number of the larger concerns who never object to talk over tenders of anything really desirable, and are very apt to make customers when they have a chance to secure something particularly adapted to their special wants.

Eastern Spruce probably would sell about as well as anything at the moment, especially long and wide cuts, and if receivers could substantiate the full measure of their claims the rate would be extremely high. The predictions of a small offering have been reasonably well verified thus far, and the present assertions are to the effect that there will be nothing of importance to show up afloat until well on toward spring. There is full work going on in the woods, and if freshets prevail at the proper time the new crop of logs will be liberal.

Piling is quiet at the moment beyond some little negotiation over stock in chains and for which sellers are expecting and obtaining bids at full former rates.

Hemlock is firmly held, and of course at this juncture about all the negotiation must be directed toward the Pennsylvania product. For such the views of sellers remain extremely firm on both joist and boards, but particularly the latter, and very little attention is paid to any modification in the run of bids. Carolina Pine moves along in a sort of independent manner, securing its full proportion of attention with the other woods, and there seems to be a universal agreement as to the healthy conditions of the market. A prominent manufacturer of wood products, including no inconsiderable proportion of trim, tells us that he has found use for a large quantity of Carolina Pine during the past year, the kiln drying process making it peculiarly adapted to his purposes.

White Pine has some little export demand and about the usual call from home sources, but is showing no great measure of activity on the distributive outlet. Nor do the agents who are canvassing for car orders get much comfort at the moment. Dealers are pretty well stocked and evidently feel no apprehension about getting additional supplies when they want them. Yellow Pine is firmly held and indifferently offered from the mills, as there is already a considerable amount of stock under negotiation and more expected, mainly on special schedules, with a probability that desirable random would sell very well if at present available. Advices at hand report generally strong conditions at primary points.

Hardwoods have no particularly new feature at the moment. There is some attempt to boom various kinds of stock as holders may feel interested, but only about a seasonable trade is doing. All desirable quality is well in hand and the ownership of a character to exact full natural valuation. A Washington correspondent, writing to one of our local journals, furnishes some matter of interest to dealers in mahogany. He says :

"The Treasury officials are considering again the question which was raised last summer as to the proper classification for duty of sawed mahogany. Since the decision of Secretary Fairchild, January 25, 1887, mahogany boards have been classified under the provision for 'all other articles of sawed lumber, two dollars per one thousand feet, board measure.' The present tendencies to raise duties to the highest possible point led to an early demand that sawed mahogany be classified under the provision for manufactures of mahogany at 35 per cent. ad valorem. Inasmuch as the lumber schedule of the existing tariff advances by a regular gradation from timber up to manufactured articles, and provides for sawed boards as entirely distinct from manufactures, it is not probable that this view will prevail at the department. The strongest argument for it is that mahogany seems to be specially provided for, and being thus provided for, cannot by a well-understood principle of tariff interpretation be included under any general provision of the tariff laws. When unmanufactured it comes under a specific provision of the free list, and when manufactured it is dutiable at 35 per cent. Hence it is argued that it must be covered by one of these provisions, and if advanced by any process whatever must be held to be manufactured." Referring to the opinion rendered by the Attorney-General in 1887, the writer thinks the present Secretary of the Treasury will probably refuse to act adversely to that opinion, but adds:

"If such an opinion is rendered, however, the Department will direct collectors to take care that it is applied only to sawed boards of the usual thickness. Thin veneers and pieces cut into strips of the thickness for cigar boxes will be held to be something different from sawed boards, and to be liable to duty as manufactures."

And also remarks as follows:

"It is admitted at the Treasury Department that Congress did not intend to impose a duty of 35 per cent. upon sawed mahogany, but it is believed that duty ought to be higher than it is on sawed lumber of the cheaper grades. Captain Macgregor, the chief of the Customs Division, in his letter to Assistant-Secretary Tichenor calling attention to tariff anomalies, suggests the amendment of the provision relating to manufactures of mahogany by adding the words, 'including sawed boards.' This would subject the boards to the duty of 35 per cent ad valorem, or in the neighborhood of $20 per thousand feet. The Senate Tariff bill, however, contained a different provision, much more just if a duty is to be imposed for the sake of protecting the New York saw mills. Paragraph 215 of that bill was as follows:

'Sawed boards, plank, deals and blocks or posts of mahogany, rosewood, satinwood, granadilla, or other cabinet wood, 15 per centum ad valorem.'

"This would amount to a duty of about $8 per thousand feet, and would probably give the business back to the New York sawyers."

Our exchanges this week contain very little new regarding the condition of primary markets, but are commencing to bloom with the usual winter crop of statistics, most of which reveal a liberal movement for the past year. They also generally contain strong evidence of a liberal log cut. The Chicago Timberman says: "On the St. Croix and its tributaries logging has been stimulated by recent snowfalls, and within the past few days many men have been sent into the lumber camps, and the difficulties under which lumbermen labored during the earlier part of the season will spur them to greater vigor in taking advantage of the favorable weather that now prevails. With the millions of feet now in the river left over from last year, it is probable that this year's drive will be the largest ever known on this stream." And in the Mississippi Valley Lumberman we find the following: "The weather of the week has put logging operators at a great advantage. They have what they have been looking for all along, and the indications are that they will continue to have it as long as they will require. The snow of Saturday was general throughout the upper Mississippi, though not so heavy in the extreme North as it was nearer home. The snow is from 10 to 16 inches deep all through the Minnesota pineries. The cold weather has put the roads and the landings in excellent condition for hauling, and full loads are carried at all the camps. With such favoring circumstances for the balance of the season the log supply will be unprecedentedly large. Work is much further advanced than it was this time last year. All the loggers are in the best of spirits, and are making great headway."

Telegraphic advices from Cheboygan, Mich., at the close report a heavy westerly storm this week and much snow already fallen. Some of the camps were about to break up for want of snow, and many lumbermen were decidedly blue at the outlook. Now they will renew operations with a rush.

NAILS.—Demand somewhat irregular and without much growth, but supplies kept well in hand, the cost of material high and manufacturers manifesting a generally confident feeling over the chances for the market. We quote at $2.10@2.15 per keg for car lots, and $2.15@2.20 per keg for parcels from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—In the matter of business actually doing at the moment there is but a comparatively small record from day to day and not much of a pronounced character suggested, though if anything the run of orders has a somewhat increasing tendency. Dealers speak hopefully of the outlook, and generally seem to feel an assurance that supplies at dependent points are small and must soon need replenishing. Values pretty steady with the only noteworthy change of late upon leads, the Trust having by a rearrangement of the list and rebates increased cost ¼c. per pound. Linseed Oil is also firmer, especially on good brands of domestic which are scarce. On first hand lots the quotations are 59@60c. for Western, and 60@62c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has been pretty dull and the tone somewhat easy, though holders generally refuse to allow concessions and offer stocks carefully. We quote at 44½@45½c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

"Now for a Boom"
—Pig iron advancing—

Editor Record and Guide

I predict that prices for iron and railroad stocks will advance and be considerably higher in 1890 than in 1889, and that 1890 will be the most prosperous year for the iron trade, railroads, and for general business since 1881.

Iron is the most useful of all metals—it is the monarch of business, the barometer of commerce; it is the great Jupiter of trade, and when the iron industry is prosperous, so is the general business of this country.

I am well aware that my prediction, made last January, of the upward tendency of iron and better business for the year 1889, was considered by many persons as premature and would be a failure. The continued low prices had made them discouraged. Yet we have seen the prediction verified—iron has steadily advanced since the middle of February.

The cause and major question which made the turning point from commercial depression to activity in trade was the outcome of the election in 1888, which turned the tide in the minds of a majority of business men at that time, although the turn in business affairs was not apparent until some time later. However, it was scarcely a month after the inauguration of Gen. Harrison when the decline in iron ceased, a decline that had brought about a widespread stagnation in the iron world.

A restoration of confidence in the future has resulted in enlarged trade and in an increase of the industries of our country, making a lively continued demand for iron. A revival in general business stimulates the iron trade, and a rising iron market is the best evidence of it and that it will continue.

The aggregate grain and cotton crops of the past year are the largest in the history of this country, which is an important factor for promoting profitable and voluminous trade, and no doubt was the foundation for the extensive business done during the closing months of 1889. Yet the advance in iron had commenced several months before the extent and outcome of the crops were known.

The only adverse contingency that the most chronic pessimist can argue against the bright future business outlook is tight money—yet money is plenty everywhere for legitimate purposes; the banks in Ohio are overflowing with funds, some of them refuse to pay interest on long time deposits.

As we look to the general Government for our supply of currency, to increase its volume is plain sailing. Congress should direct the Secretary of the Treasury to issue coin certificates in payment for silver bullion as fast as business expands. Should the Congress of this winter fail to repeal the internal revenue laws, then it ought to pass an act to pension all the soldiers at once, which will relieve the Treasury of a part of the surplus, and place the money in circulation this year and next, while the revival of prosperity and increasing business will need and demand it in the channels of trade.

I predict that in five years from this time nearly all the soldiers then living will be pensioned by reason of the disability laws which have been and will be passed by Congress.

The business outlook for 1890 is buoyant for a general revival of trade. We may look in any direction and behold—granaries bursting with the products of the land, factories employed to their fullest capacity, the hum of industry is now heard where a year ago all was as silent as the tomb.

Railroads were never more prosperous; they are unifying and consolidating their lines with immense traffic, and reaching out in all directions with new roads to accommodate the increasing business. There will be a boom in railroad stocks this year.

The mining industry will feel the favorable influence the coming spring; the increased demand for coal, ore and other minerals, with the revival and activity in general trade, will employ the full capacity of the labor of this country; the demand for labor will increase, making wages higher.

The growing winter wheat has a favorable start, which is an indication of a large crop of wheat the coming summer.

The crops of foreign countries are short and below an average, which will make a demand for our surplus grain and provisions.

The balance of trade is in our favor.

We observe, as a result of the brilliant outlook, that there is a universal scramble for property. British syndicates are sending their money to this country by the millions to buy our breweries, distilleries, nail mills, flour mills, cotton and woolen factories, oil, ore and coal lands, furnaces, elevators, and all else they can invest in where there is a prospect of a reasonable profit.

All Europe is excited about the scarcity of iron, and where the supply is to come from to meet the requirements of railway extension and military operations in the old countries. Prices have been advancing in England more rapidly than in this country.

We are now in an era of commercial activity unequalled in the annals of trade.

A production of ten million of tons of pig iron will not supply the demand for 1890. No. 1 pig iron will be low at $30 per ton. The price will advance above that figure this year.

The growth of the United States is remarkable.

Sixty-five millions of people.

Four hundred million acres of improved and cultivated land.

Two hundred thousand miles of railway.

A billion and a-half of good money in circulation.

A net-work of electric wires from ocean to ocean, and a profusion of all the elements of wealth.

The progress and improvements in commerce, manufacture and agriculture surpass anything known in the world's history.

Samuel Benner

DUNDAS, OHIO, January 1, 1890.

* Any newspaper or magazine wishing to copy these predictions will cheerfully be given permission to do so, by applying to the office of THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

Below we republish, for the sake of comparison, Mr. Benner's prediction published in THE RECORD AND GUIDE, Jan. 12th, last year:

A BOOM AND A PANIC AHEAD OF US!

SAMUEL BENNER'S FORECASTS.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

My forecasts at present are not only for the year 1889, but also include 1890 and 1891.

It is a great desideratum to know when good times will commence, and it is also very important to know how long they will continue, and when we may expect the next panic and reaction in general business.

The business men of this country do not desire a boom of short duration so much as they do a steady advance in prices and in the developments of trade—continuing for a number of years.

However much they may desire this condition for future business, the records of commercial and financial history do not warrant us in making this kind of prophecy.

Since 1825 this country has not experienced a continuous advance in the price of iron beyond four years.

The resumption of specie payments by the government in 1879 was the occasion for the boom in business following that event.

Now we have a decision by the people that protection will continue to be the policy of the government, making the occasion for the turning of the tide from depression to activity in all business.

The depression in trade for 1888 was predicted thirteen years ago, and the prediction was also made at that time that the tide would turn, giving us an era of business activity during the years 1889, 1890 and 1891.

The persistence of the repetition of these trade cycles is becoming a commercial wonder, they ride triumphant over all events which have occurred during the past sixty years to oppose such regularity.

These cycles have been verifying themselves through the introduction of railroads, steamboats, the electric telegraph, the suspension of specie payments in 1837 and 1857, the panic of 1873, through the Mexican war, our civil war, through all of our Presidential terms since the administration of Jackson, and up to the present time override and defeat the aims of the present administration, while using the whole machinery of the government for re-election, with the avowed policy of a low tariff, which would depress our industries.

What else can a reasonable person ask to prevent their repetition? Better times and higher prices will prevail for the next three years, and no happening or opposition can prevent them.

The outcome of the Presidential election has laid a broad basis for a general recovery of confidence, an element that has been wanting for the past four years, which we have observed by the many idle furnaces, mills and factories, and the lowest prices for nails, steel rails and pig iron for a number of years.

The year 1889 opens with cheerful hopes. Our crops during the past year have been abundant; the prospects of an increased foreign demand for our surplus grain and provisions at advanced prices gives the farmers renewed energy. We must look forward to a hot and dry summer this year, as we are not yet beyond the period for a general drought; however, with fair early crops business, and prices will show considerable improvement in the spring months.

We are at the beginning of a prosperous period, and the outlook is for a decided improvement and advance in the prices of iron, railroad stocks, and in all manufacturing commodities. Whenever our manufacturers are prosperous every industrial class is prosperous.

I predict that the price of iron will advance, and the average price for the year 1889 will be higher than the average for 1888; and I also predict that there will be a wonderful advance in prices for iron, stocks, and all products and commodities in the year 1890, all business will be prosperous, it will be a year of good crops and the boom year in this period of activity.

In the beginning of the year 1891 speculation will be at its height—a great business inflation—pig iron fifty dollars per ton in the markets of our country.

I predict that there will be a panic in the year 1891. The overtrading and general inflation of business and expansion of credit and confidence will produce this result. The panic probably will be brought about by the effects of heavy rainfalls and floods, or by the collapse of some large financial business firm.

This panic will be a commercial and financial revulsion, and will be followed by a long down sweep of prices.

DUNDAS, O., January 1, 1889. SAMUEL BENNER.

The course of proceedings regarding the World's Fair in the Senate will be the consideration of the subject by the Special Committee, of which Senator Hiscock is chairman, and their report to the Senate, the discussion in the Senate, and then their final vote when the bill is reached in or taken up out of its order. Simultaneously the like proceedings will go on in the House of Representatives. The hearing before the committee will be given within a week or two. Whichever city may be chosen as the location there will be many details in the bill to be studied out and agreed to. If the final vote of the House differs from that in the Senate there will be a Conference Committee to determine the points on which they differ. While these points of discussion are going on in the two Houses together the interest will not flag, and soon some intermediate question will arise calling for a vote which will be regarded as an indication of the result. Such a vote is now impending in the House on the motion to refer the bill to a Special Committee instead of the Committee on Foreign Relations, where it now is. The reason for the change is that the latter committee is so composed that a majority is supposed to be in favor of Chicago, while a new committee might be so appointed as to present a majority in favor of New York. The members who favor Chicago resist this motion, those favoring New York urge it, and the vote on this change will be a test. If the committee should be changed it will be regarded as the first victory. This will occur in a few days. When the final vote is given, unless it is made a party question, the votes of the members from the New England and Middle States will be given mainly for New York, as well as those along the Atlantic and the Gulf. In the West, Chicago has strong and very general support. It will be diminished by the rivalry of St. Louis and those who follow it in unwillingness further to exalt the supremacy of Chicago. If this divides the vote of the West, New York will succeed.

The bills for Albany have been drawn and are ready to be introduced. They provide for the acquisition of land by the city for the purpose of the Exposition, and the city may take title in fee or for a term of years. Ten millions may be expended by the city, and with this the Museum buildings may be completed. If this be done and the walls, floors and roofs of these museums completed there will be a clear floor space of fifty acres in the most accessible and convenient locations. This will be a large part of the floor space required. The other provisions of this bill include the closing of streets and railroad facilities. The bill is likely to go through at an early day without material change, for the beneficial influence it will have on the discussion at Washington.

Rapid Transit and Rents.

It strikes few of the thousands that are obliged to squeeze themselves daily into the elevated road trains and bear the inflictions of overcrowding in an atmosphere more fetid than that of a decent cattle car, that there is any connection between the rents they pay for offices or homes and rapid transit. It is generally supposed that the evils of inadequate transportation which this city has apparently almost come to "enjoy," as a Dervish does his self-inflicted tortures, are fully covered in such an enumeration as this: Loss of time, discomfort, loss of health. A statement that gets no further than this is not sufficient, as a little reflection will show.

To state the matter briefly: Leaving strict definitions aside and speaking loosely apart from the book, it is correct enough to say that the demand for the use of any plot of land and the buildings on it determines the rent which the owner obtains, and demand, of course, depends upon many conditions which it is not necessary to enumerate, such as desirableness of location, etc.

It is plain, then, that any factor that concentrates demand increases, or tends to increase, rent. For instance, heavy rents are obtained for the New York river front, because it is so limited in extent, and the demand of the many large steamship and transportation companies is necessarily concentrated upon a line only a few miles in length. Commercial considerations concentrates an enormous demand upon Wall street and its immediate locality, whereas social influences are, or were, the chief in making property so valuable along 5th avenue.

Taking a wider view of the matter, what may be termed the "average rent" in a city is to a great extent determined by the relation that exists between its serviceable area and its population. If the elevated railroads were arbitrarily stopped to-morrow at 72d street, the effect would be, at any rate for a time, to increase rents south of that thoroughfare. Demand for property would be concentrated within a narrower circle. To this must be added that every curtailment of the efficiency of transportation acts in precisely the same way; the term efficiency, of course, including speed and comfort in traveling. Speed is the main factor, supposing that cost remains unchanged.

Now the two great improvements to be made by the solution of the rapid transit problem are (1) quicker, and (2) more comfortable transportation. The result of the latter need not be considered, though it is by no means inconsiderable, while the result of the former will be to greatly increase the serviceable area of the city. The thirty or say the forty minute travel limit from the City Hall, within which the greater part of our population lives and must live, will be extended much further north, and the average rent within the thirty or forty minute limit of to-day will surely fall.

There can be no question that inadequate rapid transit northward has greatly increased rents in New York City, and were it not for the transportation lines east, south and west rents would be greater than they are. Moreover, this lack of proper rapid transit facilities is, no doubt, the cause why rent in New York has been so little, if at all, affected by the great decline in the rates of interest that has occurred in recent years. The municipality borrows money at nominally 2½ per cent., so does the Government of this country and of Great Britain. The average rate of interest received by the Massachusetts savings banks declined from 6.8 per cent. in 1877 to 4.8 in 1887; and, to-day, savings banks seldom pay 4 per cent. for money, or trust companies three. This decline in the value of capital has affected nearly every product of the country, and though money can be borrowed to-day on real estate at rates which some years ago were seldom heard of, there has been no decline in rents.

Of course, in connection with this matter we shall hear something about the "unearned increment," due to increase in the population and so forth, but there is no doubt that if New York had been better provided with rapid transit facilities the "unearned increment" would have been distributed over a wider area, and the decline in the rate of interest would have had a greater influence than it has on rent. Slow, crowded cars mean a crowded city—and this means, in addition to many other things, higher rents.

As a proof of the accuracy of the foregoing it should be noted that the builders who have made money in recent years are those who have confined their operations to down-town localities south of 59th street. Those who have operated on the west side, and to the north of Central Park, have not realized their anticipations, nor is the market for property in that section in an entirely satisfactory condition. THE RECORD AND GUIDE showed recently that of the buildings for which plans were filed between April, 1888, and April, 1889, and which were put upon the market, 71 per cent. were unsold as late as November, or, of 311 buildings offered, purchasers had been found for only ninety. Slow sales mean increase of interest account which in many cases is heavy enough from other causes. Owners in that section of the city are more hopeful than they might otherwise be, because of the prospect that exists that New York may be chosen as the site for the Exposition, and because they deem it likely that this session of the Legislature will give this city rapid transit. They know that the latter will permit them to share in the demand that is now concentrated in the section further south, and increases the rents there and the value of property. Purchasers should make note of the fact that property on the west side and north of the park can be purchased cheaper to-day than it will be later when rapid transit and the Exposition are assured.

We understand that inquiry has been made at the Mayor's office, on the strength of a statement supposed to have been made in THE RECORD AND GUIDE, as to why the city officials have caused a bill to be sent to Albany to prevent the "too frequent opening of streets" in the annexed district. No statement of the kind has been made in the columns of this journal, and so far as we can ascertain no such bill has been sent by the city authorities or by anyone else to Albany. If any bill be prepared it should be one to prevent the too "infrequent" opening of streets in the new wards. The development of that district has been to a great extent retarded by delay in making improvements, due in part to red-tapeism and the lethargy of commissions. These delays are in most cases absolutely unnecessary, and very often they work to the injury of property-owners by creating uncertainty as to the exact lines that proposed improvements will take. The course and the boundaries of all improvements should be rigorously set within as short a time as possible after official action commences, even if their completion must proceed slowly in order to suit the convenience of bureaucratic officials and commissions whose activity frequently is in inverse ratio to the imperativeness of the improvement. The fact is, it is time the opening up of the annexed district should be prosecuted with a little of energy. The work to be done there is too extensive and too important to be slept over. The city has nothing to lose by doing so, even in a pecuniary sense, for improvements of an essential character to render that district habitable pay at once by increased valuations for taxation. Corporation Counsel Clark informs us that he has commenced a reform whereby proceedings in the opening of streets will henceforth be greatly accelerated. When commissioners are appointed the order of the Court reads that "said commissioners make their report in the premises without unnecessary delay." Have the commissioners in, say, the matter of the opening of Tremont avenue, proceedings for which were commenced in September, 1884, obeyed the injunction of the Court; and if they have not, why does not the Court put a termination to their commissionership? The Tremont avenue is a glaring but by no means an exceptional case.

Our regular annual review of the markets for structural material occupies a large portion of the present number, and gives in exhaustive detail an interesting record of the state of trade during the past year. The general results indicate much healthier conditions than were found in 1888, the consumption of supplies expanding to a considerable extent, and while the average margin for profit was not very full, it has been a profitable season. Dealers are calculating with much confidence upon the beneficial influence of the World's Fair at this city as a factor to greatly stimulate the consumption of all kinds of material during the next two or three years, though independent of that the natural growth of our city and Brooklyn must keep the building materials trade among the foremost.

It will be noticed by people living east of the Grand Central depot that the work of tearing down the engine house bounded by Lexington avenue, 43d and 44th streets, has been begun. It is understood that probably a hotel is to be erected on the premises. The news will be satisfactory to all the property-owners in the vicinity, for the Grand Central depot has been a constant menace to the property situated east of the depot and west of 3d avenue. The New York Central management, who relinquished the lease of the property, is of course aware the plot will be improved, and it is practically an acknowledgment on their part that they will make no further efforts to enlarge their terminus at 42d street, for obviously if they intended to acquire any more property for terminal facilities they would do so to the east rather than to the west of the depot. The news, however, has another and more general significance. The Central Railroad is the only railroad corporation that has its terminus in the more densely populated part of Manhattan Island. Their present facilities are obviously not all that they should be, yet they have come to the conclusion that it will not pay to extend them any further within the populated district. This fact, taken in connection with the circumstance that the Pennsylvania Company is preparing to extend its terminals in Jersey City, leads inevitably to the conclusion that New York, unlike nearly all the great cities in the world, will never have its railroad depots, as a general thing, anywhere near the centre of population, a fact which will tend to increase the importance of the problem of inter-mural transit facilities.

The fact that a hotel at which moderate prices will be charged may possibly be erected on the plot also has its significance. Already there are some four or five large hotels within the radius of a few blocks. The erection of another one, as large as the largest of these hotels, must mean that even these facilities are not sufficient to accommodate all the strangers that enter the city through the Grand Central depot. It is remarkable, furthermore, that a number of hotels are being or are soon to be erected in this city. The Plaza Hotel will be opened in the spring, the one built by the Goelets on Broadway and 32d street in the fall, a third on 34th street, west of Lexington avenue, about the same time, and one on Central Park West, near 74th street, is nearing completion. Furthermore, plans have been filed for a nine-story hotel to be built on 5th avenue and 30th street. Add to this list the one projected near the Grand Central depot, and it is apparent that fast as is the growth of the city the increase in hotel accommodations is still more rapid. All these facilities are not intended, it is true, for casual visitors. Several of them are apartment hotels for the accommodation of New Yorkers, who want housing but not a home in this city during certain months of the year.

The Architecture of 1889.

Naturally, not very many of the buildings for which plans were filed during 1889 are yet in a condition to be judged except from the plans. This method of estimating them is always hazardous and is very apt to be unjust, since the architect may at any time make modifications that, although they directly affect only details, or at most features, may really alter the general aspect of the building. But enough may be gathered from the plans and from the buildings erected under them, so far as they have gone, to enable us to pronounce with confidence that there has been architectural progress, and that the most conspicuous faults and weaknesses of our street architecture have been abated.

There are not many very costly buildings in the list. The World building and the Madison Square Garden alone touch the million dollar limit, and next below them come warehouses and rows of flats that are costly by reason of great area and in which the requirements do not admit the attainment of such an architectural unity as may be secured when there is some single dominant feature of the building. The dome of the new World building will give that edifice the chance of such a culmination, and the architect's treatment of it will be a matter of considerable interest.

The number of public or quasi-public buildings among those now going up is gratifyingly large. A few years ago it seemed that all the new structures, including the largest and most pretentious of them, were works of mere utility, places of business or places of residence, big office buildings and big apartment houses. There were no works that could fairly be called monumental in purpose, either in civil or in ecclesiastical architecture. There seems to have been a religious revival in architecture. Among the new buildings are a church at 127th street and 5th avenue, a church at 129th street and Madison avenue, and a church in 92d street, near 9th avenue, besides the churches now nearly or quite finished on the Boulevard. Most of these works are specimens of the Provençal Romanesque, and, as the designers are cultivated and skillful architects, they will show fairly the possibilities of that style in its application to our needs. The tradition of pointed Gothic is stronger and more deeply rooted in church architecture than in any other, and ecclesiastical Gothic, owing perhaps to the great number of precedents accessible to designers, has been upon the whole better done than secular Gothic, even when it bade fair to be the style of the country. If these new churches are found to be practically and artistically successful, it is to be expected that the round arches, larger members and simpler detail of the Provençal Romanesque, with the Byzantine carving which is now commonly associated with , will become the accepted style for churches. This will involve very many changes in general form as well as in detail. For one the slender spire which appropriately culminates a pointed building will be superseded by a massive detached campanile or a broad central tower.

Of secular public buildings, the most important in size and cost, and perhaps the most interesting as architectural problems, are the two places of amusement, the new Madison Square Garden and the music hall at 7th avenue and 57th street. Each of these fills a long-felt want, though the want of a concert hall has just in part been supplied by the conversion of the Lenox Lyceum into a bright and pretty interior, as yet very defective acoustically, but of which it is to be hoped the defects will prove remediable. There is scope in the other two places of amusement for exterior as well as interior effect.

A feature of current building is the number of club houses lately built or still in course of erection. These always offer interesting problems because they require an ample frontage, without the inordinate height which vexes the designers of office buildings and apartment houses. It cannot be said that there is as yet a club house in New York, unless it be that of the Harlem Club, heretofore praised in these columns, that is entirely satisfactory in point of architecture, and that hits the mean between domestic and public architecture that such a building ought to express. The designers of the new Century Club in West 43d street, of the Manhattan Club in Madison avenue, and of the Deutscher Verein in 6th avenue, opposite the park, have enviable artistic opportunities.

Of course all these are exceptions, and of course the common run of architectural practice will continue to be the design of buildings for residence and buildings for business. The former division may be very much subdivided, as indeed may the latter also. From the nine-story apartment house to the three-story dwelling of fifteen-feet front, is a great range. Both these extremes seem to be falling into a desuetude that upon the whole is innocuous. The success of the monster apartment houses already in existence has not been such as to encourage the building of new ones, and there is not much ground left on this island on which builders can afford to put up the little three-story houses that fill so many blocks of the west side. Important single mansions will continue to be built, together with rows of four and five-story houses, but the "flats" and apartment houses of the second class will continue to be the residences of most New Yorkers of the middle class in point of income. The architecture of these is still susceptible of very great improvement, though the planning is susceptible of far more. Indeed, the flats are almost the only buildings that have received none of the benefits of the architectural revival. When we compare the sort of apartment that is within the means of a man who has from $1,500 to $3,000 a year income in New York with that of the earner of an equivalent income in Paris, it is plain that we are wofully behindhand, and that our architects have not done their best. The explanation is, that they are not allowed to do it, and that the speculative builder who finds it necessary to employ an architect for other classes of work feels himself able to plan, not merely tenement houses, but associated dwellings much above the grade of tenement houses.

In tenement houses and in miscalled French flats and apartment houses of the lower class alone no progress is visible. In our domestic architecture otherwise, and in our commercial architecture we cannot fail to discern progress. There is a very evident and very gratifying movement in the direction of simplicity and massiveness, and a wise feeling that of the extremes of monotony and unrest the former is preferable. This is visible in the newest commercial buildings. A "commercial palace" is a contradiction in terms, and not long ago there seemed to be a tendency to convert Wall street, in particular, into a street of commercial palaces. Now the building down town is becoming simpler, less ornate and more appropriate to its practical uses. This is of itself a gain, and there is a greater gain in the attempt to make a commercial structure tell its story by the judicious and effective arrangement of its masses with but a sparing and discreet use of ornament.

Their Third Annual Dinner.

The Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association of this city held their third annual dinner on Wednesday evening at Clark's, on 23d street. The gathering was the largest which has been present at any of these dinners, and among those present were Charles Buek, Thos. Graham, Richard Deeves, John H. V. Arnold, President of the Board of Aldermen; Cornelius O'Reilly, Charles Graham, Geo. N. Williams, G. M. Walgrove, W. J. Fryer, U. S. Superintendent of Repairs; Chas. H. Lock, Jas. W. Wilson, Enoch Vreeland, Deputy Superintendent of Buildings; James N. Knight, Morris Littman, Samuel McMillan, A. E. Conover, A. Little, J. J. Brady, Geo. Crawford, Geo. Vassar, Jr., W. J. Golding, G. W. Williams, John Graham, Mr. Miller, Major Duffy, of the 69th Regiment, John A. Hutchinson, Chas. H. Israels, Harry Jenkinson and others. Chas. Buek, president of the association, occupied the chair, and had on his right Superintendent of Buildings J. J. Brady, and on his left W. J. Fryer, Jr.

After dinner had been consumed and cigars lighted a number of speeches were made. The chairman toasted "The City of New York," asking President Arnold to respond. The latter, in a few words, spoke of the energy, the enterprise and the industry of the builders who had reared the great metropolis. W. J. Fryer, who spoke next, urged the association to wield its power in influencing good government for their city, their State and the nation. The chairman then gave the toast of "The Press," and called upon the representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE to respond, who was followed by the representative of the Herald.

Superintendent Brady, when called upon, was greeted cordially. He spoke of the great advance in the building movement of the city, due largely to the building pioneers, many of whom were present. When a mere boy, before he was known to any of them, their names were familiar to him as the men who were at the head of building in New York. He spoke of the necessity for better rapid transit facilities, and referred to the 23d and 24th Wards as a great field for real estate and building operations when those facilities were obtained.

Geo. N. Williams, who has just returned from Washington, where he went as one of the World's Fair representatives, referred to New York as the "Grandest city that has been, that is, or that ever will be," a statement that was received with laughter and applause. Cornelius O'Reilly spoke of the aqueduct, and advised the city not to hesitate in any expenditures which were necessary to obtain an abundant supply of good water for the people. B. N. Williams spoke of the disadvantages under which the capitalist builder labored in competing with thes peculative builders, behind whom were the loan makers. The speculative builders usually had little to risk, and when they were foreclosed, as often happened, the loan makers bought the property in cheaply, and could therefore afford to sell it lower than the builder who put his own money into the venture.

Richard Deeves referred in strong terms to the necessity for better rapid transit, and said that Londoners could get 40 miles away from the heart of London in the same time that it took New Yorkers to get to Harlem from the City Hall. He hoped the politicians would not be allowed to make a political question of the rapid transit problem at Albany this winter. A. Little, of the firm of type founders, made a neat little speech in a happy vein, and A. E. Conover also said a few words. Major Duffy, of "the 69th," said that the citizen soldiery spent a great part of their time in perfecting themselves to be competent to protect the property of this city should the police ever be unable to do so. Other speeches were made, and the company did not disperse until after midnight.

The Park Board.

At the last meeting of the Park Board it was decided to readvertise for bids for building the addition to the Museum of Natural History. The board approved a report on the advisability of erecting another bridge over the Harlem, near 155th street, to have a draw at a height of 34 feet above high water. President Hutchins said both a tunnel and a bridge would be, in his opinion, necessary.

Obituary.

Simeon E. Church, who died on Monday last, was born in 1822, in the northern part of this State. He studied as a lawyer. After being admitted to the bar he practiced in Troy and Hamilton until he was thirty years old. Then he removed to this city and soon became one of our leading lawyers. Mr. Church has had much to do with the development of the west side. He was a pioneer in the movement and worked earnestly for 5-cent fares. In more than one way did his activity and work for the public good benefit the city, being helpful, among other things, in the extension of our park system.

Removal Notice.

Architect J. E. Terhune, formerly of No. 695 Broadway, has removed his office to Nos. 47 and 49 Liberty street, near Nassau street. Mr. Terhune has drawn plans for many handsome and substantial buildings during the past year.

In the City Departments.

The assessed valuation of property for 1890 is $4,331,000,000, an increase of $68,000,000 over last year. The assessment books will be open for inspection and revision at the tax office until April 30, 1890.

A stock company is being formed to develop desirable lands at South Yonkers, N. Y., for building purposes, and reliable men having from $1,000 to $5,000 to invest are invited to communicate with the promoters, whose advertisement will be found on another page.

The National Convention of Builders.

The fourth annual convention of the National Association of Builders, to which we referred last week, and which will be held at St. Paul, Minn., on the 27th, 28th and 29th insts., will be welcomed by Mayor Robert H. Smith, of that city, at its opening session.

In addition to the regular programme, which was fully announced in last week's RECORD AND GUIDE, the following papers, prepared at the request of the Executive Committee, will be read during the convention: (1) "Modern Fire-proof Buildings," by Mr. E. V. Johnson, of the Chicago Exchange. (2) "The National Importance of the Industrial Education of the Youth of the Country," by Mr. Richard Deeves, of the New York Exchange.

The Executive Committee having specially requested that subjects for discussion be suggested by members at large, the following topics have been presented by members of exchanges in different cities, some of which may be taken up if time permits:

(1) "How can the National Association encourage a more rapid establishment of Trade Training Schools, as a part of the Trade Training System which it has formulated and adopted?" (2) "What method can the National Association recommend to secure the abandonment by building material dealers of the practice so much in vogue of selling materials to owners at as low or even lower prices than to builders?" (3) "What course can the National Association suggest to filial bodies, so that they may effectually influence their members to refuse to estimate and contract to supply the labor simply, while the owner furnishes all material?" (4) What policy would the National Association recommend that filial bodies should assume to secure to sub-contractors in their membership proper payment from general contractors, irrespective of whether the general contractor has received his payments or not?" (5) "What special points would the National Association recommend that builders should be particularly watchful to avoid or to incorporate in contracts?" (6) "What can the National Association recommend as best methods to make an exchange of value to the individual, and also to make the individual of value to the exchange?" (7) "What, in the opinion of the National Association, are the most pressing needs of the building business at the present time?" (8) "What, in the opinion of the National Association, is the best way to meet strikes—to compromise or to fight?" (9) "Would the National Association consider that the adoption of the Single Tax (Henry George system) would be for the advantage or disadvantage of builders?" (10) "To what extent would the National Association advise local exchanges to cultivate trade among their members, by confining sub-contracting and the purchase of materials to the membership?" (11) "Shall the National Association take steps to call a general convention of all employers of labor, and representatives of all classes of labor, to discuss the question of the general establishment of a uniform number of hours of labor in the limits of a day?" (12) "Can the National Association suggest any way in which the industrial and social problems put forth in Bellamy's book, 'Looking Backward,' can be utilized for the benefit of builders?" (13) "What further steps can the National Association recommend to more amply secure the independence of workmen from the interference of the Walking Delegate and other improper manifestations of Labor Unions; and would it be feasible to secure National or State legislation in this direction?" (14) "What plan can the National Association recommend to local exchanges in the matter of the establishment of Bureaus of Credit for the benefit of their members?"

Some Up-town Flats.

[COMMUNICATED.]

New York is a city that has been developed section by section. First the east and then the west side became the scene of building operations, and as the centre of population moved northward the line of improvement changed from one side of the city to the other. Some parts of the city have been retarded in their growth by lack of needed public improvement, while others have lain undeveloped because of insufficient rapid transit. The district east of Central Park, north of 86th street and south of 110th street, west of Park avenue, has been one that has suffered a good deal from want of well-paved streets. But that is all past now. Madison avenue, the main artery of this district, and the side streets adjoining, are being paved with granite blocks, where not already done, and other needed improvements have recently made their appearance.

Quick and comfortable means of transit are not needed to help the growth of this part of the city, as the Central and Harlem roads, with stations at 86th street and 110th street, as well as the elevated road, the Madison avenue horse cars and cross-town cars through 110th street to the west side, afford the residents satisfactory conveyance to any part of town. That part of this section, however, nearest 110th street has perhaps the best chance in the way of enhancement of real estate values, as the means of communication with the west side already exist at that point.

Builders, always quick to see the advantages in any favored locality, have begun to improve this district in a laudable way. Handsome and expensive private houses and substantial and well-built flats are to be found on every hand. The new Eighth Regiment armory at 94th street is also a decided improvement to the neighborhood, and will no doubt materially help the growth of the district which must, of necessity, furnish homes for many of the citizen soldiery belonging to that organization.

Among the recent additions to the comfortable flats of the neighborhood are those built by Messrs. Radebold & Wenz on 108th and 109th streets, between Madison and 5th avenues. Mr. Radebold, an old New York builder, and Mr. Wenz, the well-known architect, have combined forces in these buildings and have erected flats which represents the experience of two men well known in the trade. Four of the houses, Nos. 19 and 21 East 108th street and Nos. 20 and 22 East 109th street, are completed and partly occupied, and two others, Nos 24 and 26 East 109th street, are up to the fifth tier of beams and will be ready for occupancy very shortly. These flats have fronts of handsome plain and carved brown stone and the interiors are finished in the most approved modern fashion. In width the houses range from 31 feet to 31 feet 8 inches by 84 feet in depth, and each floor comfortably accommodates two families. The apartments each contains six good-sized rooms and bathroom with hot and cold water. The parlor, about 15 feet square, is fitted up with a slate fire-place and mantel, above which is a fine mirror, set in cherry wood. The ceiling is handsomely decorated in delicate shades of pink and gold with frescoed leaves and flowers arranged in a square. On the whole the effect is pretty, and the impression is immediately conveyed that the apartments would be comfortable abiding places. The dining-room and the first bedroom are decorated in a similar manner and the moldings and fixtures are on the same scale, The kitchen is fitted up with range, refrigerator, wash-tubs, etc., and the dining-room contains a useful dresser. The rooms are of good height, light and well ventilated, every room being connected with the outer air either from the front and rear or with courts between the houses. The halls are commodious and light and the glass door, which is draped with a yellow satin curtain, caught in the centre by a bow of the same colored ribbon, presents a neat appearance. The stairways and halls are well carpeted, and the vestibule is finished in Spurr's veneer and tiled in colored marble. Electric bells, speaking tubes and all the other modern improvements are to be found in these houses, and everything gives evidence of a careful and intelligent construction. These flats, situated as they are within a stone's throw of one of the prettiest parts of Central Park, near to all rapid and convenient modes of transit, would have been filled with tenants before this, although they have been completed only a month or so, but that the owners are particular as to the class of people whom they accept. Houses so well placed and well built are not easily found, and house-hunters are quick to see their advantages. Property in the district spoken of is rapidly advancing in value, and should New York succeed in obtaining the Fair, which now seems very probable, these new flats will obtain the advantage of the enhancement of values which will follow the selection, as they are very near the site chosen for the Exposition. The flats, it is understood, are to be offered on the market this spring. ARGUS.

Large Sale of Queens County Real Estate.

Jere. Johnson, Jr., and Richard V. Harnett yesterday consummated one of the largest and most important sales ever made of Queens County real estate. The sellers were the West Jamaica Land Company and the Land Mortgage Investment and Agency Company, of London, the latter being represented by R. V. Harnett as agent, and by Parrish & Pendleton, as attorneys. The purchaser was William Ziegler, the well-known Brooklyn capitalist. The property consists of all the vacant lots at Morris Park, about two thousand in all, extending from Richmond Hill on the north to Liberty avenue on the south, and from Jefferson avenue on the west to Wicks street on the east. This is the finest property on Long Island. The Morris Park station is in the centre of it. On the lots previously sold by the company one hundred beautiful cottages and dwellings have been erected. There is a complete water system through the streets, which are lighted with gasoline lamps. The immense car shops of the Long Island Railroad are close by, employing hundreds of men. The lots will be placed in the market during the coming year by Jere. Johnson, Jr. The exact price paid for this property could not be obtained from the brokers, but it is understood to run into the hundreds of thousands.

Something About Our Advertisers.

HOWARD FLEMING.

We are informed by Mr. Howard Fleming, of No. 23 Liberty street, New York, that he has furnished many buildings in addition to those illustrated or mentioned in THE RECORD AND GUIDE during last year, with Gibb's "Diamond Brand" Portland Cement, which makes the strongest concrete and is preferred by many experts and masons to other brands. An inspection of his exhibit of Ingham's Enameled Bricks demonstrates what perfection is attained by these manufacturers, and the increasing demand for them here he is able to supply by keeping large stocks for immediate delivery. The truth of the adage "It is an ill wind that blows no one any good," is exemplified in the large demand for Duresco through the wet weather of 1889. This valuable material prevents dampness penetrating walls, and those not yet acquainted with the merits of Duresco should call or write Mr. Fleming.

RICHARD V. HARNETT & CO.

It is scarcely necessary to emphasize the position of this firm in the real estate world. Its large auction, brokerage and appraising business, which keeps it constantly before the public, and Mr. Harnett's personal standing and large experience, give it a high place in real estate circles. Busy as Mr. Harnett is, he devotes much of his time to the affairs of the Real Estate Exchange, of which he is one of the most prominent directors, Mr. Harnett's chief assistant, Harry W. Donald, is a member of the firm. The firms offices are at No. 73 Liberty street.

H. H. CAMMANN & CO.

No firm in New York stands in higher repute than that of H. H. Cammann & Co. It is one of the best known as well as one of the most respected of the real estate houses, and its clientage includes some of our oldest and wealthiest families. The head of the firm has thrice been elected president of the Real Estate Exchange, an honor which could be bestowed upon only its choicest members. The firm make the management of estates their specialty, and in this they have had a long and extensive experience. Mr. Newbold T. Lawrence, the junior member, forms an able lieutenant to Mr. Cammann. Their offices continue at No. 51 Liberty street.

E. A. CRUIKSHANK & CO.

Four years ago it was stated in these columns that the centenary of the establishment of this—the oldest real estate firm in New York City, if not in the country—would take place eight years hence. Now it can be said that the house will celebrate the first century of its existence in about four years hence. To have braved the storms and vicissitudes of all those years is an evidence of good management and prudence, and many old New Yorkers whose estates have been taken charge of by the Cruikshank family for two generations will rejoice with them on their centenary. They too, like many other old New York firms, make the entire care of estates their specialty, and they give personal attention to the rental and sale of store, office and other city property, as well as to the collection of rents. They have business parcels of improved and unimproved realty on their books for sale, including a number of choice plots. Their office is at No. 176 Broadway.

GEORGE R. READ.

Mr. Read graduated from a good school. For many years in the office of the late Edward H. Ludlow, and for a while the partner of that gentleman, he learned his profession thoroughly, as his subsequent success sufficiently shows. The frequency with which his name is mentioned in the "Gossip" column of this paper is a good indication of his large business. He conducts a general real estate business and has a number of important parcels on his books. His office is in the Astor building, No. 9 Pine street.

E. H. LUDLOW & CO.

In every line of business there are a number of firms, which by their long standing, their energetic methods and large clientele occupy the position of leaders. Among the real estate firms of this city, that of E. H. Ludlow & Co. occupies a place of this prominence. Mr. Morris Wilkins and his associates, Messrs. Edward M. Wilkins and Albert M. Arneberg, are able and experienced real estate brokers, to whom is due the credit of having kept the business methods of the firm up to the high standard established by its founder, E. H. Ludlow. Their offices are at No. 11 Pine street, and they have recently opened a branch office in the Hotel Bristol on the northeast corner of 5th avenue and 42d street.

JOHN F. B. SMYTH.

Those who have placed their properties in the hands of Mr. Smyth to be disposed of at private sale or at auction have spoken well of his efforts to attend to their interests satisfactorily. He has done quite a considerable business as an auctioneer of realty, as the columns of the real estate department of this paper show. He has also made numerous sales of property privately, and has negotiated many loans. His office is at No. 69 Liberty street, adjoining the Real Estate Exchange. Joseph D. Smyth, his brother, is an able lieutenant in the office, and his industry has largely assisted to build up the firm to the pinnacle which it has reached.

FERDINAND FISH.

The striking card of Ferdinand Fish, which appears in our advertising columns, will attract considerable attention from property-owners and brokers. He wants to buy $4,000,000 worth of business property east of Broadway and south of Fulton street, and on the leading avenues. He asks for full particulars to be sent to him to his office at No. 149 Broadway, on the corner of Liberty street.

THE RARITAN HOLLOW AND PORUS BRICK CO.

This company, whose offices are at No. 115 Broadway, is one of the best known in the building material trade. The articles they manufacture—mottled front brick, enameled brick, hollow brick, porus terra cotta, etc.—are recognized as of the highest character and "second to none." The business of the firm during the year past has increased greatly, and in some of their specialities they are filling orders at the top of the capacity of their works. There is scarcely a large building in this city in which the goods of this firm are not used, notably in the new World building now in the course of construction and in the Union Trust Co.'s large structure on lower Broadway.

SCOTT & MYERS.

A member of this firm, Mr. George H. Scott, has been so recently elected president of the Real Estate Exchange that it is impossible to speak of his firm without dwelling on his connection with that institution. He was for several years secretary of the Exchange, and achieved distinction in that position. Mr. Sinclair Myers is his associate in business. The firm transacts an auction and mortgage business, and is frequently called in to perform the duties of appraisers. It also handles a great deal of vacant property. The offices are at No. 146 Broadway.

LEONARD J. CARPENTER.

This office, established as it has been for so many years, and known to New Yorkers for a generation, is as strongly equipped as ever. The management of the firm is the same as it was prior to the decease of its late respected head, with the addition of new blood, which has assisted to impart greater vigor and efficiency to the business. D. Y. Swainson, for many years Mr. Carpenter's right hand partner, is now the head of the firm, the other members being comprised of A. H. Carpenter and E. E. Carpenter. They have an extensive list of properties which they offer for sale, exchange and to rent, and they also act as appraisers. They pay special attention to rents, interest, dividends, etc., and besides their office at No. 41 Liberty street they have a branch at No. 1181 3d avenue, between 68th and 69th streets.

S. F. JAYNE & CO.

The business of this time-honored office is steadily increasing. Indeed it could not be otherwise, for there are not two abler, more reliable and more gentlemanly real estate agents and brokers than S. F. Jayne & A. M. Cudner, who comprise the firm. They have for many years made the management of estates their specialty, and have always given personal attention to their customers who desire to rent, buy or sell property. They are known to every resident and real estate owner in the neighborhood of their office, which is at No. 254 West 23d street, and all the merchants, storekeepers and business men, generally, in their vicinity repose the highest confidence in them. They are members of the Real Estate Exchange, Mr. Jayne having been quite a prominent director of that body. They have an office also in the Real Estate Exchange building on Liberty street.

MACLAY, DAVIES & CO.

Maclay, Davies & Co., of No. 120 Broadway and 57 West 10th street, are very successful operators and brokers, their transactions last year reaching nearly $5,000,000. They deal largely with corporations, and represent a syndicate who will promptly purchase approved city real estate at its actual value.

THE NEW YORK AND ROSENDALE CEMENT CO.

This cement is known as the "Snyder Brand," and is named after the well-known and prominent member of the Building Material Exchange, Mr. Hiram Snyder. The tests which it has withstood prove conclusively the claims of its manufacturers, viz.: that it is of the first quality. Mr. C. C. Martin, principal assistant engineer of the Brooklyn Bridge, has stated in a letter to the company, that in a series of tests extending over ten months, made by Mr. A. V. Abbot, he found it to be "entirely satisfactory." Over one hundred thousand barrels were used in the construction of the East River Bridge. Mr. G. Lindenthal, chief engineer of the Monongahela Bridge, is equally unqualified in his testimony. He says: "It is especially commendable in its reliable, even quality which we found distinguishes it favorably from other cements used in the same work." This cement is made from natural stone and is especially adapted for work where tensile and compressive tests are required. Catalogues can be obtained at the office of the company, No. 229 Broadway.

V. J. HEDDEN & SONS.

Few firms of building contractors can boast of a more imposing array of buildings erected by them than that of V. J. Hedden & Sons, as will be seen from their advertisement. The structures built by them are among the most important of our city edifices and include the New York Produce Exchange, the New York Mercantile Exchange, the Tribune building, the Times building, the residence of Wm. K. Vanderbilt on 5th avenue and 52d street; the Central Railroad Terminus station in Jersey City, the Yosemite Apartment House, 62d street and Park avenue; St. Peter's Hospital, Brooklyn; Clark's Mile End Thread Works, Newark; the United States Electric Light Buildings, Newark; the Deutcher Verein, 59th street and 6th avenue, the New York Hospital, Henry Clausen's Malt House at 71st street and East River, and other important structures in and out of town. Messrs. Hedden & Sons are also bridge and dock builders and manufacturers of sashes, blinds, doors and stair work of every description, and they turn out cabinet work and all work pertaining to building construction. Their office is at No. 18 Cortlandt street and their factory at Newark, N. J.

JACKSON ARCHITECTURAL IRON WORKS.

The name of this company is inseparably connected with the best architectural iron work in this city. For many years it has supplied the iron work for a large number of our finest buildings, and its work is typical of the best that has been done in the way of modern construction for the past ten years. Among the large structures which have been supplied with iron work by this company are the following: The State, War and Navy Departments at Washington, the Puck building on Houston street, E. Ridley & Sons, on Grand street, the Young Men's Christian Association in Harlem, the New York Catholic Protectory, Westchester; the Belgravia Hotel, the Excelcior Steam Power Company, the Tower building, the Progress Club, the Rouss building, the New York Mercantile Exchange, the Potter building, the Smith, Gray & Co. building, Brooklyn; the Market and Fulton National Bank, the Amberg Theatre, the Lincoln building and many others. The company's office is at 315 East 28th street, and their foundries and shops are close by.

ERSKINE W. FISHER.

Mr. Erskine W. Fisher is the agent for the Stettin Portland Cement, known as the "Anchor Brand." This cement is absolutely uniform, as proved by tests of prominent engineers, experts and leading artificial stone manufacturers. Copies or the originals of these tests can be seen at the office No. 18 Broadway. Such has been the demand during the past year for this brand of cement that he has been absolutely unable to fill all the orders. The impossibility of getting sufficient material over here to meet the demand has led the manufacturer to make arrangements to increase the supply. His "Peerless Mortar Colors" are also steadily growing in favor, and are used more widely than ever by the prominent masons and builders of New York and Brooklyn. Another material which is increasing in popularity is the Francestown soapstone hard finish, which is guaranteed to make a hard, smooth and non-absolvent surface. For full information write to Erskine W. Fisher, No. 18 Broadway.

THE GERMAN-AMERICAN REAL ESTATE TITLE GUARANTEE CO.

Our title guarantee companies are of the utmost value to those who wish to transfer realty in this city. By their rapid methods of search, with the guarantee attached thereto, they greatly facilitate the conveyance of landed property. Among the important companies engaged in this business is the German-American Real Estate Title Guarantee Company, of No. 34 Nassau street. The financial condition of this company is first-class and makes their guarantee substantial. In addition to their searching business, they are always ready to lend money at the lowest rates of interest. It does a very large business among our German-American citizens, and has among its directors such men as George C. Clausen, Albert Tag, John Straiton and George W. Quintard.

NINTH WARD PROPERTY OFFERED.

William Berrian, of No. 9 West 17th street, who owns a corner near Jefferson Market, is offering it for sale, as will be seen by our advertising columns. Ninth Ward property is looming up, and will always prove worthy for investment. The corner is 23.6x85 in size, and has on it three buildings, which are offered at $30,000. Mr. Berrian offers to sell the property on easy terms, and those sufficiently interested can obtain further particulars from him at the above address daily, between 1 and 5 P. M.

A. T. DECKER & CO.

This firm, whose offices are located at the foot of Bethune street, on the North River, are one of the largest dealers in Georgia and yellow pine in this city. Their business—which is both wholesale and retail—is large, and their materials most satisfactory to their customers. Their specialty is heavy timber, used in the construction of large buildings.

JERE. JOHNSON, JR.

The success which has attended this auctioneer's career is almost unprecedented. His shrewdness as an advertiser and his remarkable energy are the main sources of his strength. His great auction sales have a wide reputation, both in and out of town, and he has emblazoned his well-known sign of a globe, pierced by a flagstaff and surmounted by a flag, in so many directions that it meets one at almost every turn. His particular forte is the subdivision of large country and city estates into small plots and disposing of them at auction and at private sale. He gives special attention to referees', executors', receivers', assignees' and other legal sales, and he has offices at No. 60 Liberty street, New York, and at No. 393 Fulton street, Brooklyn. Mr. Johnson is Second Vice President of the Real Estate Exchanges of both New York and Brooklyn.

SMYTH & RYAN.

Very few among the younger brokers of this city can boast of such success accomplished in so comparatively short a period The energy and ability which they have brought to bear upon their work has enabled them to build up a considerable patronage among property-owners, many of them being of importance in the community, They have established themselves as capable auctioneers and brokers, and their business is increasing continually. The senior member of the firm, Philip A. Smyth, is a director of the Real Estate Exchange, the youngest in the board. Smyth & Ryan have their offices at No. 70 Liberty street, near Broadway, in the building formerly occupied by the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

THOMAS & ECKERSON.

On the line of Broadway no firm of real estate agents and brokers are better known than Thomas & Eckerson. They are both able and courteous, and have charge of considerable property, not only in their immediate neighborhood, but in different parts of the city. While being real estate and insurance brokers, they take the entire management of estates, and have a number in their charge. They have also a large list of properties to rent and for sale. Their office continues in the Wallack building on 30th street, near Broadway, where they have the handsomest quarters of any real estate office in the city. One of the members of the firm, Wm. M. Thomas, is a commissioner for the States, and the other, Jno. C. R. Eckerson, is a notary public.

BARTON & WHITTEMORE.

This firm, established in 1869, is undoubtedly in the front rank of those whose facilities for obtaining mortgage loans on real estate are exceptionally good. During their long career as real estate and loan brokers they have placed literally tens of millions of dollars for applicants on bond and mortgage. They are at present offering sums in large and small amounts at the lowest rates and on most favorable terms. Both members of the firm are known for their intelligence, their ability and their unvarying courtesy, and they have the confidence and friendship of some of the most prominent officers of our financial institutions. Their office is still in the building where they have been for many years past, viz.: No. 106 Broadway, on the corner of Pine street.

JAMES L. WELLS.

While doing a general city business, Mr. Wells' specialty is undoubtedly 23d and 24th Ward property. No real estate agent or broker knows more about improved and unimproved realty in those wards than he does, and as an expert appraiser on trans-Harlem values his superior does not exist. This is only natural, when it is considered that he has spent the best efforts of his business career in the northern sections of the city, that he lives there and was selected to represent its interests in a legislative capacity. Mr. Wells has conducted more sales at auction and at private contract in those wards than probably any other broker. His main office is in the Real Estate Exchange building, Liberty street, and his branch office at No. 526 Willis avenue, opposite the station of the Suburban Rapid Transit Road at that point.

LIBBY & SCOTT BROS.

This firm has recently been doing an exceptionally prosperous business, having sold about $500,000 worth of realty during the past month or so. They are now offering the unusual advantage to builders and others of displaying, without charge, the photographs of their properties, with descriptions, etc., in their office, which is on the ground floor of the mammoth Equitable building, Nassau street entrance, and where, by actual count, about 10,000 people pass daily. Mr. Libby, the senior member of the firm, is an appraiser of large parcels of realty.

BROWN & GOLDING.

The senior member of this firm, Gerard R. Brown, has been connected with the Real Estate Department of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for many years and possesses remarkable executive ability. The junior member, John N. Golding, was educated in the old-established office of Adrian H. Muller & Son. During his eleven years' experience he has represented a large number of corporations and individuals in the sale and leasing of property, having during that time bought and leased property on the Equitable block, for the Standard Oil, Manhattan Trust and many other banks and trust institutions. The firm have entire charge of the Equitable and other large interests.

F. E. BARNES.

It is now some twelve years since Mr. Barnes established himself at his present quarters. During this time he has been very successful, and his business has increased each year. He makes a specialty of property between 23d and 42d streets, 5th avenue and the East River, and there are few properties within these boundaries for sale, rent or exchange which he has not got on his books. He has also considerable property to offer in other parts of the city, and his experience and judgment are relied upon by his customers. His office continues at No. 344 4th avenue, on the northwest corner of 25th street.

HERMAN SCHMIDT.

No real estate broker or agent on 3d avenue is more active and industrious than Mr. Schmidt, and those who have placed property in his hands speak of him in high terms of praise. He undertakes the management of estates, negotiates loans and conducts a real estate business in all its branches. He is also a Notary Public. He has an able assistant in William Kilpatrick, who is thoroughly conversant with the real estate business and well posted. Mr. Schmidt's office is at No. 1136 3d avenue, near the "L" road station at 3d avenue, and property-owners placing their interests in his charge will find them well cared for. His telephone No. is 1412 39th street.

CROMBIE & McKEAN.

No real estate firm is better known on the upper part of 3d avenue than that of Crombie & McKean. They do a general real estate business and make a specialty of renting and collecting. They control many properties in the neighborhood of their office, which is at No. 1589 3d avenue, near 89th street, and among their references, by permission, are Messrs. Jacob Ruppert, Judge Patterson, C. E. Quackenbush, President Kelly of the Fifth National Bank, Congressman Ashbel P. Fitch, Geo. Ehret, Max Danziger, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien and others. Mr. McKean, of this firm, was recently appointed a Civil Justice by Gov. Hill.

BURCHELL & HODGES.

This firm of builders and contractors do a large business principally on the west side. They furnish estimates for the complete erection of all classes of buildings. The firm is very conservative and reliable. Before undertaking a contract they insist upon a clear title, upon being furnished with a detailed set of plans and specifications, and upon being assured that there is not too heavy a mortgage on the property. In case the contracting price cannot be agreed upon, they will furnish it for 10 per cent. above the actual cost, as shown by the certified bills of the contractors. These conditions, which are not onerous to anybody who is responsible, show that Messrs. Burchell & Hodges are as careful of the work they undertake as they are reliable in carrying it to completion.

WM. REYNOLDS BROWN.

Wm. Reynolds Brown, of No. 146 Broadway, President of the Port Morris Land and Improvement Company, offers for sale on easy terms some choice East River water fronts, lying between 132d and 138th streets. The property is very valuable for factories, lumber yards, stone yards, etc., owing to a long frontage on both deep water and railroad tracks. Manufacturers are seeing the advantages of the location, for the De La Vergne Refrigerating Machine Company has within the past year covered over thirty lots with extensive and costly works. Decker also is building his new piano factory quite near to that of Newby & Evans, and Connor has recently bought lots on 134th street for a similar purpose. Builders are beginning to operate in the neighborhood by the erection of small single dwellings and a good class of tenements to accommodate the influx of skilled mechanics. Moreover, the horse-car road on the Southern Boulevard is about completed, and will be operated next spring. All these circumstances combine to make the property desirable.

F. R. HOUGHTON.

The large sale of city property, involving $500,000, made by this energetic and industrious real estate broker to the Terminal Warehouse Company has attracted more than usual attention to the name which stands at the head of this notice. Mr. Houghton has also achieved some reputation on account of his system of ready reference to property in all parts of the city, enabling him to give the names of the owners of every parcel at a glance, together with any information as to the property that might be desired. He makes a specialty of property west of Central Park, and of lots and investment property in all parts of the city. He has unusual facilities for making accurate appraisements of real estate and his judgment is much relied upon. His main office is at No. 145 Broadway, on the corner of Liberty street (telephone 540 John), and he has a branch at the southwest corner of 72d street and 9th avenue (telephone 367 39th street), and can also be seen at his residence, 40 West 83d street (telephone 364 39th street).

HALL J. HOW & CO.

It is the peculiar province of some men to be known more by their deeds than by their words. The head of this firm may be classed under this category, for there are few men who accomplish more and say less. They have for many years made a specialty of mortgage loans, vacant lots, and builders' loans, in which they have done a very large business. They are known to nearly every builder in New York, not to speak of property-owners almost innumerable. Mr. How is a strong advocate of the World's Fair being located at New York, and obtained a large portion of the contributions made through the Real Estate Exchange to the Guarantee Fund. In the junior partner, Thomas S. Walker, the head of the firm has an able co-worker. The offices of the firm are at No. 171 Broadway, on the corner of Cortlandt street.

WALWORTH'S COLLEGE.

Among his former pupils are stenographers for the Park, Dock and Fire Department, and for Mayor Grant and Commissioner Gilroy.

column. During the past year they have done an unusually large amount of work, which is not only generally good in character, but much of it excellent. It includes several churches, many large flats and residences which have been reported from time to time in our Builder's column. Of late years the business of the firm has grown greatly. In addition to other work this firm have produced a remarkable design for the new Protestant Cathedral in this city.

J. EDGAR LEAYCRAFT.

Their specialities are the exchanging of all classes of property in and out of town, and the management of estates. They have on their books a large number of properties. Besides their office at No. 153 Broadway, they have another at No. 1008 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

This gentleman's business lies principally in the dry goods district, and a fair share of the sales and transfers consummated in that region are negotiated by him. Mr. Southack has had charge for many years of the renting of the offices in the Trinity building, No. 111 Broadway, and it is there that his branch office is located. He figures in a good many transactions of magnitude, and is a man of marked ability and discernment in judging the value of realty. His main office is at No. 401 Broadway.

H. H. BLISS.

There are very few brokers in this city who give all their time and attention entirely to arranging exchanges of property. Mr. Bliss is one of the best known, and the frequency with which his name appears in our "Gossip" testifies to his great success. Among the transactions lately closed by Mr. Bliss may be mentioned Wm. Rockefeller's elegant country seat at Greenwich, Conn., for houses and lots on Convent and 10th avenues, and Moore & McLaughlin's Park avenue apartment houses with Norman L. Munro for the steamboat Shrewsbury. Mr. Bliss advertises a number of improved parcels which will be exchanged for accessible country places. Few of the younger brokers down town are better known than Thomas C. Smith, of No. 111 Broadway. He does a general brokerage business and is also an agent and auctioneer and often has charge of important offerings of both improved and unimproved properties. Mr. Smith is an exceedingly courteous and genial gentleman and was for many years engaged in the Tax Office, where he obtained an excellent knowledge of values in all sections of the city. His specialty is mortgage loans.

HOFFMAN BROS.

The Messrs. Hoffman are among the most active and successful of the real estate and mortgage brokers. Both give their personal attention to the business and are frequently seen at the Real Estate Exchange bidding on and buying costly properties for their many clients. Among their recent sales was Nos. 594 and 596 Broadway, at $325,000, and Nos. 75 to 81 Duane street. MAINHART & LOWE.

Mainhart & Lowe are the young and enterprising brokers who, about four years ago, succeeded to the business of Geo. Codling & Son. Among their customers are some of the wealthiest and best known operators in the city. The late ex-Mayor, Daniel F. Tiemann, was one of the clients of this firm, and Peter C. Tiemann and Frederick Beck, the noted wall-paper manufacturer, and others equally well known, operated through these brokers. In consequence they have built up a large business. HIRAM MERRITT.

To be four decades in the same business, and to see two generations come and go, is not within the province of every real estate broker. Such, however, can be said of Hiram Merritt, for he has been in the same office for the last forty years. His references, it need therefore hardly be said, are very numerous, and he has many properties under his management. He does a general selling and renting business and makes appraisements. He also makes a specialty of insurance, collecting rents and taking full charge of estates. He is a member of the Real Estate Exchange, and his office, it need scarcely be added, continues to be at No. 53 3d avenue.

The old-established business of John R. Graham has been greatly developed under the management of J. R. Graham, Jr., and the stock of cabinet woods, foreign and domestic, to be found at the yards at 30th street and 11th avenue is one of the finest and most extensive in the city. The wood is kept in logs, boards, planks and veneers, and the builder or decorator can find there mahogany, rosewood, English brown oak, quartered oak, ebony, satin wood, amaranth, olive, walnut, ash, maple, holly and cherry at the lowest prices, and have the sawing and cutting done to order.

Besides doing a city business as real estate and insurance brokers they make a specialty of shore front and other suburban property in Westchester County, as well as on the line of the Connecticut shore, including Danbury, Stamford, etc. Of many of these properties they have complete descriptions, with maps and photographs, and their office at the corner of 42d street and Park avenue, being opposite the Grand Central Depot, is particularly convenient to out-of-town buyers and sellers, many of whom make it their headquarters. The firm consists of Chas. Field Griffen & Geo. B. Morse, both painstaking and energetic men. Their telephone No. is 1049 39th street.

They carry always a very large and choice stock, and their facilities for filling orders are unequaled.

KAPP'S PATENT BATH TUB COVER.

The story of the last hundred years is but the tale of a continued succession of conveniences designed to free man's life from unnecessary trouble. One of the more recent appliances is a bath tub cover by A. J. Kapp, the use of which will save much trouble and annoyance. It is a great comfort to have all the requisites, such as soap, sponge, bath, brush, etc., within easy reach, and this comfort Mr. Kapp's cover provides. These covers have been put in numerous buildings in this city and elsewhere, a partial list of which is given elsewhere. The prices vary between $7.50 and $18, according to the kind of wood used. The agent is H. Schmidt, of 1136 3d avenue.

MILLER & STABLER.

The numerous transfers on the west side naturally lead to the establishment of a good many brokerage firms in that vicinity; and among the most recent of these is Miller & Stabler, whose offices are well located at 1187 9th avenue, the northwest corner of 72d street. Both gentlemen, energetic and experienced, are well acquainted with realty in that vicinity. Mr. Miller is a builder of some years standing. They have some very choice houses for sale at present, and make a point of getting hold of bargains. In addition, they have an office down town, at No. 31 Nassau street, and negotiate mortgage loans, and effect insurance.

P. GALLAGHER.

Contractors and builders who have confined their operations to the district south of 14th street have invariably scored successes. His office is at No. 167 3d avenue.

A. E. MARLING.

A. E. Marling, whose office is at No. 150 Broadway, makes a specialty of taking charge of estates but does also a general brokerage business. He has unusual facilities for placing mortgage loans at low rates. His long experience in one of the most prominent offices of this city has given him exceptional qualifications in his business, and his election recently to the position of Inspector of Election of the Real Estate Exchange shows that his popularity is not limited to his clients.

WILLIAM P. RAE.

William P. Rae, who was associated in the brokerage business in Brooklyn with Paul C. Grening for twelve years, has opened an office of his own at No. 394 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, under the firm name of William P. Rae & Co. During his long experience he has gained a thorough knowledge of the value of real property in that city, and has made an extensive acquaintance. The district of the city in which his office is situated is a busy one and Mr. Rae's large acquaintance makes it reasonably sure that he will obtain his share of the business. The specialty of the firm will be the management of estates, renting, collecting and taking charge of property, and to it Mr. Rae will give his personal supervision. The other items which go to make up a real estate business, such as the getting of loans, the searching of titles, the writing of insurance, will not be neglected, so that his customers can obtain in his office every facility connected with the business.

In confirming the report we would state in addition that the senior and junior members have formed a partnership under the firm name of J. N. Kalley & Son, with offices at No. 171 Broadway, Benedict building, New York, and No. 211 Montague street, Brooklyn, the old stand for twenty-five years. New Members.

The following gentlemen have been proposed as members of the Rea Estate Exchange: F. W. Reimler, 44 Exchange place, stock broker, proposed by Clinton W. Sweet; and J. H. & G. W. Coster, real estate, 945 Broadway, proposed by S. Glover.

Mr. McGill, of the firm of Nevill & Co., of Chicago, was seen on 'Change Thursday. He says dealings in real estate in Chicago are inactive except for suburban property, for which their is a great craze. Farms miles from the city are being cut up and sold as building sites.

That Barnum-Bailey Hippodrome.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE last week showed conclusively that the vacant property which has been used by the Manhattan Athletic Club on 86th and 87th streets, between Central Park West and 9th avenue, would not be leased to Barnum & Bailey, the showmen, on which to erect a new building, for which they have had plans prepared by J. B. McElfatrick & Sons' "Tody" Hamilton, the representative of the showmen, while not disclosing the location for which he says they are negotiating, concurred with the reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE that it was not the Manhattan Athletic Club grounds. He showed the reporter a plan on which the property was bounded by the Boulevard on the west and Central Park West on the east. This in itself was a proof that it could not be the block between 86th and 87th streets referred to, which is bounded on the west by 9th avenue. The daily papers have, however, reiterated the statement, and property owners in the neighborhood have consequently been unnecessarily alarmed, and one or two sales of private houses under way have fallen through or are in abeyance.

To set these alarms finally at rest the reporter obtained a further statement yesterday, from David B. Ogden, of Ogden, Beekman & Ogden, Mr. Zborowski's lawyers, in which he says that none of the property between 86th and 87th streets will be leased for any public exhibition to Barnum or any one else, and he further said that such a building would be impossible, as two lots had been sold, cutting right into the centre of the block, and he also showed the reporter a cable from the owner, Elliott Zborowski, from Melton Mowbray, England, dated January 13th, in which he says: "put restrictions in deed," which was accordingly done. Mr. Ogden has written to that effect to the daily papers, but his denial has not appeared. As the story is hurting builders and property in the neighborhood its reiteration cannot be too severely condemned.

Thousands of people just now are in a state of trembling expectancy, for Nellie Bly will soon arrive in this country, and the weighty question will be solved whether it is possible to get to the other side of Broadway by way of China in seventy-four or seventy-five days. This is not so trivial a matter as some people in their ignorance suppose, for Broadway is a difficult street to cross, and there is no reason in the world if a person has the time and the money why he or she should not take advantage of the roundness of the earth to get on the other side without crossing. It is somewhat curious, in view of the immense interest which Miss Bly's trip is creating—an interest which nobody who reads the World can possibly doubt—that the other papers do not take it up and tell of that enterprising young lady's progress and prospects, but so far as I know the World's New York contemporaries have simply ignored the matter—an illustration of the the different value different journals place on the same piece of news similar in kind to the different value different poets put on the same piece of poetry. It is safe to say that when Miss Bly returns her name will become a sort of household word in this country. Already songs have been written in her honor by composers who, it is true, have not as yet eaten of the bread of fame, but who, nevertheless, have acheived a certain distinction in their own lines. Mr. Joe Hart, of the comedy firm of Hallen & Hart, is the responsible person in this matter, and to say that his choice little lyric is as affecting in sentiment as it is delicate in allusion would hardly be a description of its qualities. The World cannot do less than to have it played on a brass band when the object of the effusion once more sets foot in the office.

Very much has been said in praise of Ada Rehan's Rosalind. So much indeed, that an antidote of criticism may be useful. To me it is a very defective performance. In the first act she lacks force, and in every other act she lacks the feminine poise which is so essential a part of Rosalind's character. For Rosalind, although gay enough and lively enough, as Shakespeare made her, never lacks dignity. Miss Rehan makes her caper and prance around like a frolicsome schoolgirl of sixteen or an unbroken filly. Moreover, when she hears of Orlando's presence in the forest, her shrinking at the fact of the exposure of her legs is more like the absurdly simulated modesty of a ballet girl who has been used to tights as long as she has to legs than the natural recoil of a modest woman. Neither is the whole performance at all as complete as those of Daly's usually are. The minor parts are very poorly taken, the Jacques of Mr. Frederick Bond is excellent only in the make up, while Mr. Lewis is not particularly happy as Touchstone.

Few people will dispute the statement that a great many more crimes would be committed if people were sure of escaping the consequences. A man who can be robbed with impunity is certainly more likely to have things stolen than he who would vigorously prosecute the offender. Consequently what may be called the ideal crime is one which in the very act protects the criminal from the consequence. From this point of view the ingenious swindling of a Frenchman is worthy of note. This man first went around to a number of retail dealers and pointed out to them the desirability of the distribution of circulars through a balloon. He got them to subscribe a good round sum of money to pay his expenses in floating through the air and dropping on the Parisians a shower of circulars. Then he got the balloon for nothing by pointing out to the maker what an advertisement it would be for things aerial, and complacently started up amid the shouts of his retailers. When he got up far enough he threw down a few circulars and then floated away, leaving the discomfited retailers in a fury. The scheme was a little venturesome, but I commend it to all gentlemen who live on their wits and at the expense of their morals.

Real Estate Department.

The past week has been a quiet one on 'Change, and as far as completed sales go it has also been quiet among the brokers. This is largely accounted for by the continued wet weather, which has prevented many investors from looking up such parcels as have been submitted by the brokers. Then again we hear of many transactions having gone over owing to the absence from business on account of sickness of one or more of the contracting parties.

The market continues very strong for down-town properties, with a large demand, while in the new residential districts builders are rather discouraged. The settlement of the World's Fair question and the early passage of a new rapid transit act are earnestly looked for to bring about the demand which does not at present exist for the many desirable houses on the market. Better bargains can be had now than will be secured if the questions above mentioned are favorably acted on.

There was only one sale on 'Change Monday and the attendance was small.

The clear weather on Tuesday led to a large attendance at the Exchange, although the sales were few and unimportant.

The sales were fairly numerous on Wednesday, although not important, and the attendance was good. At the stand of Richard V. Harnett & Co. the junior partner auctioneer, Harry W. Donald, officiated, and the sales were dispatched in good order. Auctioneer De Walltearss held the fort at Wm. Kennedy and Bros'. stand, as the junior partner was married on that day. Business was fairly active on 'Change on Thursday and the attendance was large. The most important sale held was the five-story stores, Nos. 109 and 111 Prince street, northwest corner of Greene street. The building occupies a plot 50x95, and when fully rented brings in $14,000. The first bid was $140,000 and the last $175,000. We hear Messrs. Ruland & Whiting secured the corner for account of the owners. The three-story building, No. 36 West Broadway went for $22,800 to M. F. Johnson. The wo sales announced to be held yesterday were postponed.

On Tuesday, January 21st, Adrian H. Muller & Son will sell the five-story brick apartments with the plot of land, Nos. 35, 37, 39, 41 and 43 West 61st street, on the northeast corner of 9th avenue.

On Tuesday, January 21st, John F. B. Smyth will sell the four-story, high stoop, brown stone dwelling, No. 365 West 56th street, 16.8x55x100.5, and the two three-story and basement brick building, with stores, Nos. 21 and 23 Avenue C.

On Wednesday, January 22d, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the lot 25x100, with a three-story and basement frame dwelling thereon, No. 377 College avenue, and the four-story brown stone dwelling, No. 26 West 30th street, 12.6x65x98.9.

On Thursday, January 23d, John F. B. Smyth will sell the four-story brick tenement, with store, No. 71 Avenue A, an Astor leasehold; by order of executrix, the four-story brick building, with store, No. 714 3d avenue; and by order of the executor of the estate of the late Joseph Feuerbach, the two four-story brown stone buildings, with stores, and a one-story extension, 40.8x112, Nos. 271 and 273 7th avenue, and the four-story brick building, Nos. 158 and 160 West 26th street, 41.8x78.6.

On Tuesday January 28th, John F. B. Smyth will sell a lot, 25x102.2, on the south side of 73d street, 125 east of Avenue A.

An idea of the many interests involved in some titles is shown by the transfer of a plot of over six lots on the southeast corner of Park avenue and 75th street. Eight deeds were necessary to give title to the different shares held by a number of heirs. About $65,000 is the total figure given.

A ten-share certificate of the Real Estate Exchange stock was sold at auction on Wednesday at $1,200. H. W. Donald was the buyer.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

The large amount of space given over to our yearly review, and the practically unchanged condition of all the markets since last Friday, induces us to omit the ordinary detailed report this week and simply give a few passing notes. Of Brick the arrivals have proven only fair, as many manufacturers are gradually stopping shipments and a surplus of stock afloat was thus prevented, demand keeping up very well. Sellers, however, gained no advantage in the matter of price, and $7 remains as the extreme limit, with most of the business taking place at a lower range, according to quality. Cement is generally ruling steady, with the arrivals of foreign well taken care of. Lath firm, with latest sale reported at $2.30 per M for St. John stock. Lime unchanged. Lumber steady all along the line and the few cargoes coming to hand coastwise quickly disappeared, either on contract or into the hands of waiting buyers, while some of the yard dealers report a pretty good distribution whenever the weather will permit. In the woods winter work is liberal, with fewer complaints of the absence of snow.

Yearly Building Material Market.

REVIEW OF ALL THE LEADING ARTICLES FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31ST, 1889.

In presenting our review of the building material market for the departed year, we do so with a belief that it embodies about as perfect a record as can be made. Many statistical improvements may suggest themselves to our readers, as they have to us, but for their absence we have no apology to offer, for the simple reason that everything that could be collated without resorting to estimate is given. The task has not been an easy one by any means, and probably few have a conception of the vast amount of work required to bring together, arrange and perfect a simple column of figures through which the reader may by a hasty glance obtain so much useful information, and we feel no little pride in what this paper has, single-handed, accomplished in that line since we commenced the compilation of yearly statistics of structural material. We are, however, forcibly impressed with the belief that the work could be much more thoroughly done if taken in hand and earnestly pushed by the Exchange, which ought to command information now denied the journalistic seeker after light. There should also be a much larger and more poweful representative body of the trade, and it is a pity the negotiations for an amalgamation of the two associations now existing should have fallen through, for united they would have formed the basis upon which the building trade in the vastness of its ramifications might have erected the most powerful Exchange organization in the city. The general condition of business has been of a much more favorable character than during 1888 in the matter of movement and consumption of supplies, owing to the remarkable character of the season. A great deal of rain has fallen, but only in a few instances did it lead to more than temporary interference with operators, while against that was the fact that the building year of 1889 has contained pretty nearly the full three hundred and sixty-five days with the odd six hours. Last winter it will be remembered was very open, with only one real cold snap in February, and work pushed so steadily forward that by spring very few jobs were uncompleted. That permitted the taking up of new operations promptly, and whatever delays may have arisen through the influence of the summer storms have been more than neutralized by the almost unprecedented mildness of the fall and winter, permitting full work right down to the end of the year with a prospect of continuation. The fluctuations in values can be best understood by a reference to the various detailed reports, but in pretty much all cases they have averaged full enough to afford a fair margin, and exceptionally there was a chance to recoup on some of the unpleasant experiences of the preceding year. Production of all staple articles has been ample, probably a little too full if anything, and work has rarely had to wait for supplies, and at the close about an average quantity carried over, the increased consumption finding balance in the lengthened season for manufacturing and transportation and additional arrivals from primary sources. There appears to be a slight measure of doubt regarding the outlook for material if only ordinary influences prevail, but in the event of the location of the World's Fair here it is calculated that scarcely anything can receive a greater boom than structural merchandise, with operators hopeful accordingly. We append our usual table of the export movement from this port, by which it will be seen that foreign countries draw upon us for quite a little amount of stuff.

The following shows, in condensed form, the export movement of the leading articles of Building Materials from the port of New York during the years named:

BRICKS.—While some points of interest have developed on the market for Common Hards, the business has experienced another year free from exciting or violent features, and all in all panned out a great deal better than many of the trade seemed inclined to admit during the season. Complaint and a general range of expression in dissatisfied form over the state of trade and ruling prices are a sort of part and parcel of the business, but at the close most leading operators have given testimony to the fact that conservative careful methods and judicious management at critical periods on the part of receivers and dealers have brought affairs through in very good shape, and beyond a few minor features the general market may be credited with healthy conditions. Manufacturers themselves have also contributed in many ways to beneficial results, first by abstaining from a resort to any strained competitive measures on a gradually expanding productive area, and secondly by endeavoring to minimize the cost of making by dispensing wood as a fuel and using in place thereof coal and oil, with rather greatest favor shown the latter as bringing the most satisfactory results. They have also taken first-rate care of the labor question as the outcome of the bitter experience of preceding years, and while denying no just and equitable claim, stood as a unit in resisting extravagant, arbitrary and malicious attempts at dictation on the part of workmen, and from the passive temper shown by the latter they seemed to size up the situation very shrewdly. In the matter of transportation there is some question as to whether the management has deserved full commendation. Either through ownership or lease the facilities for moving supplies have been ample and at times apparently a little too liberal, the result of which was frequently developed in annoying and serious delay in the attempt to get the vessels back to primary sources for reloading. It has been a very common occurrence for barge loads of brick to be sent to yards under purchase and lay there until dealers consented to unload, the detention ranging up to ten or fifteen and in some cases twenty days, and from the size of the cargoes it is an easy matter to realize the liberal amount of storage room thus obtained as a gratuitous contribution from manufacturers, and against which it would naturally be poor policy to make other than a mild protest. A brief retrospective glance at the general course of the market shows a much larger supply on fresh offering balanced by an equally full demand during the first three months of the year than is commonly found at that period, owing to the remarkably open winter. On the average best grades $7.75 per M was reached during the first week in January, but with navigation on the river almost like summer shipments ran full and there soon came a tumble to $7.25, assisted possibly by the appearance of the first cargoes from Long Island somewhere between the 10th and 20th of the month. After this many barges were withdrawn, and as consumption was running along from a million to a million and a-half of brick per day by the end of the month the market had hardened up again so as to exceptionally touch $7.75 per M. The highest plane was reached in February when the river at last became closed, the demand continued quick up to the final sale afloat, which was Haverstraws, at $8.50 per M, after which fresh purchases for a while were dependent upon Long Islands. Quite unexpectedly the first week in March found navigation again resumed, and almost immediately thereafter some Haverstraw stock offering for which $8.50 was asked, without finding buyers above $8.25 for the bulk, though a few specials were reported a fraction higher. The second week brought the first tow down from "Up River," and by the end of the month some stock all the way from Albany put in an appearance, and the demand, which in the meanwhile had been spasmodic, seemed to be settling into indifferent form and $8 became practically the top rate. A little further easing off took place the first week in April, then came a temporary flurry in demand, on which sales crept up to $8.12½@8.25 again, and that was the final development of strength, for while the demand continued very good the entire trade was surprised by the magnitude of the old supply coming to hand supplemented by new make from Jersey about April 25th, and the tone was easy. The advent of May brought the Centennial Jubilee, with the Exchange closed for three days, business practically suspended, stock accumulating, including the first arrivals of new Hudson River stock, and before business could be resumed again the bottom dropped out of the market with a perpendicular decline of $1 per M, showing $7 as top. A little slower, but none the less sure, the shrinkage in value continued until by the end of the month it was only exceptional makes of stock that could be sold above $6 per M, the immense amount of work completed during the winter and the seasonable absence of new jobs in waiting just at this juncture having greatly curtailed demand. So it continued until early June, with $5.50 for several days all that could be depended upon, especially under pressure, but that was the turning point, for between an appreciation of the remarkable cheapness of the stock and spur of increasing wants buyers commenced to take hold with greater freedom and a recovery in value followed. After that for a period of a great many weeks the market ran along on fluctuations between $6.00@6.50 per M, according to influence of supply and demand, until well into fall, when as high as $7.25 was reached, but an open river keeping a steady stream of supplies coming forward without full compensatory demand, even with dealers stocking up somewhat, there was a settling back to $7, and that was carried to the end of the year.

Incidental features of the season may be recorded in the somewhat increased amount of the plant tributary to this city, which was estimated at a capacity of 80,000,000 per week, and when it is considered that moulding commenced at the remarkably early date of March 27th and work was continued until an unusually late period in the fall, the output might have been prodigious. The calculation is, however, that there has been equal to fully three weeks absolute suspension of work which, with only a portion of the capacity running at other times owing to unfavorable weather conditions, has, of course, made considerable difference. At one time during midsummer the brickmakers at a meeting in this city came to an understanding that if eighty per cent. of the trade would agree, all moulding should stop October 1st. Results have shown that consent from the required percentage was not obtained. The market experienced a mild measure of excitement for a short time on the rumor that an immense combination had been formed of all manufacturers supplying this market, who were to pool their interests and erect a "Trust," but the scheme, it is generally understood, was soon abandoned, and an impression now prevails that the movement originated, partly at least, with parties a trifle anxious to work off their plant at a good round sum. In the matter of quality, brick have really averaged much better than might have been expected. More or less stock was, of course, caught at times by the rains, and once or twice during the season there was an offering of quite a little amount of washed brick, but the caution of manufacturers, natural and enforced, prevented a much larger amount, the weather signals proving sufficiently pronounced to give timely warning and prevent filling the yards with fresh moulded stock when there was danger of early rain.

Pale Brick have had a most excellent season, so far as selling the stock was concerned, with great uniformity in price. The two extremes for anything in the way of good stock were $3 or $4 per M, but most of the business was done intermediate, and week after week would find absolutely the same quotations prevailing, and frequently complaint from receivers or inability to secure supplies rapidly enough to satisfy all the calls made upon them. Toward the end of the year there was a temporary break in tone, but soon recovered again and went out in good shape. With such results and the existing laws, a great deal of moralizing might be indulged in, for while the usual fable is repeated about our sister city over the bridge taking about all this class of stock, there is every reason to suspect that considerable has been worked into local consumption, either through connivance or ignorance of the proper inspectors.

Fronts have not been playing a very important part in the local brick market for a few years past, owing to the general predilection for stone, and in this matter the old standard finest and fancy grades suffer most. Indeed, in the matter of Baltimores they have practically ceased to have an open market quotation, and are placed simply on special orders in nine cases out of ten, and while other makes of fine stock somewhat less costly do fairly well, their use here is not crowding the capacity of manufacturers to any extent. There is nothing the matter with the brick, quality preserving its standard and prices as reasonable as could be expected, and as generally known probably furnishing the most endurable material that could be used, but they are not entirely the "fad" and must await the revival of interest. North River Fronts have become "rears" to a considerable extent, and that in conjunction with a pretty good demand from out-of-town sources for buildings in which all sides are exposed affords a more general outlet, and the finer qualities, such as Croton Points, are reported as sold up close, the open weather having permitted some pretty late shipments, partly on contracts it was not expected to fill until spring. These grades, too, are affected by stone, by the light shades of brick brought in here from the West on special contract, sometimes without even passing through a dealer's hands, and are also confronted by a successful competitor for a great deal of work in the higher quality to which some makers of Hards are now steadily adhering and securing sale on their simple reputation alone.

Quite as much time and care as usual have been devoted to the collection of information necessary to reach the compilation of production and the supply remaining on hand at the end of the year, and we have received the valuable assistance and experience of gentlemen who favored us in former seasons. In deciding upon production, owing to faulty records of workers, a few carefully considered estimates have of necessity been resorted to. The stock on hand, however, is very close, so close indeed as to almost warrant the claim of as near absolute correctness as it is possible to reach. According to the figures as given there is an indicated consumption for 1889 of 946,000,000 brick, against 903,500,000 in 1888.

The following is the production of Brick at points from which the market draws its supply, during the years named:

CEMENT.—There has been no very great variation in the production of Rosendale Cement as compared with the preceding year, but manufacturers have found a somewhat irregular market, both in the matter of business and price, resulting in some instances in considerable complaint. Actual consumption, so far as can be judged from ordinary rules of observation, has received no greater check than other descriptions of building material through the influence of the unpropitious weather, yet the demand has certainly at times been lacking in force sufficient to closely absorb the output, and during the summer several of the mills deemed it prudent to remain idle from one to three days in the week. Values in the meanwhile were spreading over a somewhat wide range, represented by 80c. and $1.10 per bbl. for the two extremes, but probably the bulk of business was done at from 90c. to $1.00 per bbl., the latter the opening rate decided upon in the spring but in numerous instances said to be used only as a quotation, as sales were made at cut rates from the outset. The usual range of custom appears to have been represented in the demand including the big local contract work and regular dealers' trade, besides the call from all points to which shipments are ordinarily made, the East if anything taking a little more than common owing possibly to the attraction of reduced cost. It is claimed that no other domestic cement is competing to any extent, and a refusal to admit that the foreign article is a factor of more serious character than in former seasons, and granting these assertions to be correct, the necessity for the state of affairs as noted is not altogether apparent. Indeed, some of the trade are quite pronounced in the expression of belief that there is really no necessity at all for the market to suffer any undue tameness or depression and attribute such result solely to want of management and useless or imaginary competition on the part of some of the producers. Of course buyers have been perfectly willing to force every advantage they could obtain, as that was simply a natural and legitimate business measure fully justified by all accepted rules of trade, but there has been no real fault to find with standard quality of cement at a cost of $1.00 per bbl. laid down here, and the best evidence of this is to be found in the fact that those manufacturers who had the firmness to make that figure their minimum lost none of their regular trade whatever, but on the contrary were compelled to charge a fraction more when outside custom insisted upon accommodation, while the special brands always commanding a premium have retained their independent position without a break and had all the work they could attend to without forcing. There was not even the excuse of reduced cost of production and delivery to fall back upon, as labor and packages have ruled at about previous figures and in some instances transportation charges were a little fuller. With the stoppages of mills already alluded to there might be some inclination to discredit the claim that the output was equal to if not in excess of the preceding year, and as at the present writing the official figures are not in hand the matter is open to some doubt; but the season it must be remembered was a remarkably long one, opening several weeks earlier than usual and continuing to a date far beyond the average until weather, poor roads and the necessity for cleaning up, repairs, etc., finally led to a comparatively general shutting down toward the end of the year. Regarding the quantity of stock left over at primary points there is some little conflict of statement, but most testimony seem to indicate that owing to open weather and facilities for shipment there is less along the line of the canal than last season. At this point dealers have accumulated according to their sentiment in the matter of business prospects, some more some less, but probably in total the average will be about the same as last year, and under existing influences there seems to be no reason for stock to have cost more than $1.00 per bbl. except for special brands, and some was no doubt put in at a lower rate. Next season's trade commences to reflect itself slightly and some of the leading manufacturers already have under consideration tenders for some pretty good-sized contracts. Upon the subject of the extra quality of domestic cement, classed under the head of American Portland, we hear from the principal manufacturers about the usual report. There does not appear to have been any variation considered necessary on the general range of cost throughout the season, though some differences have naturally occurred under special contract, etc., or where difficult and expensive deliveries compelled manufacturers to protect their regular and natural margins. We are told that the area of distribution is widening and that new territory is constantly being added to the line of custom, both interior, coastwise and local. No additional productive capacity has been added of late, yet that already running is said to have been steadily employed to the fullest extent, and as an evidence that more could have been found useful it is said that the output for the year is entirely exhausted with unfilled orders still on hand.

Foreign stock has found an irregular market with some unexpected and more or less disagreeable features, but on the whole the wind up turns out very well, and there is a more or less hopeful feeling regarding the incoming season. During the first two or three months of the year trade was very good, the very open weather permitting of even more liberal consumption than had been calculated upon and the current run of arrivals appeared to be handled without much difficulty, while on values a pretty full line was preserved for all standard grades. Gradually, however, importations commenced to loom up until the amounts reported plainly revealed that there had been miscalculation somewhere and a toppy feeling developed out of which buyers in many cases managed to secure quite a little advantage, the early portion of the summer really showing so much disorganization that even the ordinarily most confident and plucky importers were forced to succumb to the ruling influences and cut down their figures somewhat whenever seeking sale for any surplus they might have over amounts due on contract. How far the depression would have gone it is difficult to say had not relief of decided character come suddenly and from the most unexpected quarter, the London dock laborers' strike, lasting some four or five weeks, entirely shutting off shipments during that period and leaving so much irregularity after the settlement that difficulty and delay in loading supplies continued for even a considerable longer time, and as Continental operators were not in a position to hurry anything forward to fill the gap, offerings to arrive became very limited. With such favorable elements at command, therefore, it is not surprising that the market very rapidly began to recoup, prices entirely recovering and the supply disappearing so closely before fresh amounts came to hand that in several instances it was difficult to evade forfeiture and damages for unfilled contracts, and indeed it was only by the use of special and costly transportation facilities that some importers saved themselves at all. When the natural end of the season shrinkage in demand manifested itself the supply caught up a little, but values did not yield again and we find in making investigations for our annual estimate of stock on hand that, allowing for even several loads on canal boats, the total runs very much short of last season. The imports, too, it will be noticed, make only a slight gain in the total as compared with last year, owing in part to the midsummer break in supply already alluded to and in part that on stock intended for some interior localities other ports of entry have been found more desirable, New Orleans in particular getting an increased share of the movement. All the old and well-known brands have naturally maintained their standard of quality and additional aspirants for favor have appeared with some very good stock, so far as tested, which may in due course of time establish itself, but one of the factors leading to the spring and early summer break in the market was the large offering of unknown stuff. Much of this, it is said, came from brokers and some speculative operators on the other side, who pick up odd surplus lots of good, bad and indifferent makers, get up a set of brands, the designs for which from this season's experience seem to have been selected from a zoological garden, and then make a tender here at the lowest possible rate at which they can turn a profit. The strike settled that business, however, and it is not likely to be resumed, owing to poor success the past year, and improbability of obtaining much if any cheap cement during the coming twelve months. We know it is generally expected that at the commencement of the season importers will talk about the probability of higher prices, lessened offerings and other features of a bullish character, and that extreme statements can be accepted with some grains of allowance as a rule, but their claims this year certainly seem to have unusually solid backing. From parties directly and indirectly connected with the trade who have been abroad and from a voluminous mass of documentary evidence handed us for perusal there is a remarkable unanimity of testimony to show that it will be difficult if not impossible to enter into new engagements with manufacturers, English or Continental, except at an initial addition to cost of equal to 15c. or 20c. per bbl. with transportation afterwards to be thought of. The basis upon which this fuller line of prices is asked may in all cases be clearly traced to more expensive fuel and labor, with certain indications prevailing that workmen may seek to add still further to the advantages they already possess. Furthermore in a great many of the letters of late received may be found strong indications of an indifferent feelling on the part of manufacturers even at the gain in price, and in fact a positive statement is quite frequently made that they will refuse to commit themselves to the acceptance of all orders forwarded, but reserve the right of booking such quantities as may best suit their engagements at time of receipt. This feeling is the outcome of an immense home demand on the Continent and in Great Britain, the Manchester Canal alone exhausting a remarkably liberal amount almost without cessation. Importers propose to do what they can to neutralize first cost by making an effort for lower ocean freights, but some of them talk as though there was not much hope in view of the fuel and labor charges affecting the steamer companies as well as the manufacturers of cement. The business in fancy foreign cements has been of about the usual proportions and still confined almost wholly to special orders. We have been unable to obtain a record of imports at other Atlantic ports in time for this issue, but have from San Francisco a report showing imports there for the year to be about 11,670 bbls. from Belgium, 31,550 from Germany and 217,200 from England, total 260,420 bbls. against 353,150 bbls. in 1888.

DOORS, SASH, BLINDS, ETC.—In all general particulars we find reports upon the condition of trade during the past year much the same as during the preceding one, with the gratifying exception of an increase in the volume of business on home account. All the principal local manufacturers and dealers have found it possible to keep their factories running quite steadily and at certain seasons were rather crowded in the effort to maintain production, with the booked orders coming from both city and out of town custom, as the area of distribution covers quite as broad a limit as ever and has a growing tendency. Indeed, it has become almost an impossibility to call for anything in this line of standard size and description that cannot be furnished promptly either from stock, or, if sold close through rush of business, by quick fresh production, while it is just about as easy to meet demands for anything in the way of a special order owing to the improved and perfected machinery and the skilled labor controlled, to say nothing of the varied assortment of woods the principal makers constantly keep on hand. Some new local plant has been added mainly in the up-town districts, but outside makers have met with no success in the attempt to invade this section. In the matter of values uniformity has prevailed throughout, competition being simply of a legitimate healthy character without attempt to secretly or openly cut list rates or to conceal an actual shading of cost by granting extra allowances in the way of discounts. Collections and settlements generally have proven satisfactory even on the risky line of trade with speculative builders, as some former experiences have learned operators how to protect themselves against the majority of mishaps likely to arise in extending credits. General trade prospects are at present good with a probability that no revision of price list of an important character will be thought necessary. The export trade in doors, as will be noted by appended figures, has fallen away to a considerable extent, and even the movement recorded is to a great degree made up of through shipments in part from the West and in part from Canada, when at certain seasons this port appeared to offer superior facilities. So far as the English trade is concerned, however, our manufacturers have ceased to find it very attractive, owing to the narrow margins and sharp competition they have to encounter from the Swedish product. Most of the business outside of Great Britain has been with the East Indies and Africa, but there is said to be a better prospect for trade with the West Indies and South America, and, indeed, we have reports of considerable contracts covering sash blinds, balusters, doors and trim already booked.

FIRE AND ENAMELED BRICK. — Altogether it has been a pretty good year for the sale of most kinds of Fire Brick, though at times a portion of the trade has been conducted on comparatively close margins. Domestic grades have held their own fairly well so far as the output of first-class stock by makers of established reputation was concerned, and, indeed, some of the more popular brands occasionally secured orders close up to the capacities of production. That was due largely to a continuation of the policy of refusing to permit the least deterioration of quality, and consequent perfect ability to sell on merit without danger of controversy after delivery. Trade with many interior points, however, has proven somewhat more difficult in view of competition from more or less new plant, some of it old enough to have fair experience and produce a better article than a year ago, and a fair portion yet so young as to feel anxious over trade, and making terms attractive as a coaxer. Still, prices have not been influenced beyond what might be considered ordinary fluctuation, and at the close, with prospect of some increase in cost of imported goods, the general ruling tone of the market is pretty firm.

Foreign grades have been imported to nearly the extent of last year against a somewhat irregular market. Welsh brick seems to afford occasion for the greatest amount of complaint with a considerable percentage of the business said to have been done on so narrow a margin as to cut off pretty much all profit in handling the goods. Demand was very fair, possibly a little more promising if anything, and it is a question if that was not primarily the cause of the difficulty, for the trouble seems to be attributed to over-importation as though miscalculation had been made as to the exhaustive character of the market, and as the surplus came in such a manner that it had to be placed buyers managed to retain the advantage for a long time without much difficulty. Latterly, however, consignments have fallen away and a stronger tone developed with prices showing a gain of about $1 per M. at the close of the season, and very stiff. For English white the demand has been very good all the season and without any extreme cause for complaint. During the early portions of the year the margin on importations was curtailed to very narrow proportions through extra freight charges, but the latter have since become adjusted to a more satisfactory basis and importers are correspondingly cheerful, as they already find some indications of a good trade during the incoming year. Values did not change enough to influence quotations. Lee Moor have again sold mainly on special orders and for reasons previously noted, the difficult and costly transportation keeping them at some disadvantage even where customers would prefer them. Dinas are reported as finding a better year, and there has been a steady importation of them right along and prices were well sustained without much of an effort. The prosperity in the steel, copper and glass trades have reflected themselves particularly on this class of stock, and importers seem to have confidence that business will not find much interruption during the new year. There is, however, one factor confronting the trade in the shape of an apparent inevitable advance of from 10 to 20 per cent on all new contracts made. This is attributed solely to the increased cost of fuel and labor and seems to be concurred in by every manufacturer on the "other side." There is some uncertainty in the matter of freight charges but hardly a chance that they will be any lower.

Enameled Brick also show good general results for the year and are evidently becoming more popular. At first the cost was quite a drawback to the placing of stock, but buyers seem to appreciate the fact that a good article is cheapest in the end, and the demand in consequence takes a somewhat more general form. Domestic production is turning out some very nice goods, and while possibly they may not quite come up to the standard of quality of a portion of the imported stock they are sufficiently fine to satisfy a considerable portion of the consumptive trade. Foreign goods have come out with freedom in part for stock, but to a very large extent on orders for special jobs, etc. The standard of quality has been well preserved and values therefore had good support, and of late have in a few cases stiffened a trifle. Sellers have as usual found most of their custom on the big and imposing work, yet the demand broadens out somewhat and new territory is constantly being added to the list of localities to which shipments are made. We find that for this class of stock, too, importers are talking about an advance during the incoming year, some of them say as much as $7 per M. and lay it to the influence of more expensive fuel and labor, with a feeling of danger regarding strikes as a possible check to production.

GLASS.—Taken as a whole it has not been a year for liberal or thoroughly satisfactory business in imported cylinder glass, but a gain has been made toward the close, and the wind-up leaves affairs in comparatively cheerful condition. During the first eight months of the year there was a very dragging condition of affairs, and operators who secured anything like a respectable run of trade were a decided exception, while some talked and complained as though everything in the way of business had come to a complete standstill without hope of revival. Under the circumstances the natural effort was to attract custom, and the method a modification in the line of cost, which, in some cases, went to rather an extreme, and quite generally compelled all hands to sell closely. About August, however, demand commenced to assume quicker and fuller volume, and has since expanded into very acceptable proportions, with a feeling that a lull in trade for a week or two is only of a temporary character, and such as might be calculated upon with the turn of the year. Reviving interest among buyers also acted as a stimulus upon values, and steady but sure recovery took place, until a plane was reached that, without showing anything of a liberal or unusual character, afforded a margin over which less cause for complaint could be found, and, indeed, conservative operators admitted ruling rates to be fair. Opinions differ somewhat as to the quantity of stock on hand, but the average inclination is to estimate it as smaller, the prevailing conditions of trade during earlier portion of season having induced importers to exercise a great deal of caution in making contracts abroad, and while latterly orders have gone out more freely it was still only about a balance against demand, and leaves but a moderate surplus, if any at all. Localities dependent upon this market are also said to be scantily stocked, and that adds a further measure of confidence in the general prospects for the opening year. American cylinder has undergone variation and fluctuation similar in many respects to that noted on foreign, with the final end of the year finding the position in pretty good shape, outside the troubles and grievances, real or imagined, that appear inseparable from this portion of the trade. There is, as usual, a great deal of insinuation more or less of a deprecatory character about the unattractive quality of domestic window glass for local trade, but the stock is certainly growing in favor here and continually securing new outlets in the country at large. One year ago we mentioned a movement on foot to organize a general association or combine of all the glass makers in the country and a few months since it was near enough consummation to induce some of the sensational journals to confidently announce that a "Gigantic Trust" (in big capitals) had been formed, through which absolute control of the production and the regulation of prices would be entered in one board of management. There were just two important errors in this statement, however, for, as a matter of fact, no actual Trust was intended, and no general combination of manufacturers perfected, several of the State and other locality organizations in various portions of the country concluding that interests were not sufficiently identical to warrant such action. In the more important sections, however, producers are working well together and calculate upon keeping the output and value in good shape. Plate has, all in all, found a very good season, the disagreeable features noted in cylinder during many months proving less decided in the market for plate, though not altogether absent. There appears to be a particularly cheerful line of reports over the home product, the popularity and use of which is claimed to be steadily spreading, and enthusiastic operators are confident that in a very short time it will entirely displace the foreign article except for silvering purposes. This is due, in a great measure, to a growing appreciation among manufacturers of the necessity for exercising the greatest care in handling their product, and, as a natural sequence, the raising of the standard of quality. Competition is still found, to some extent, from broken and retrimmed, and also second-hand stock, but operators devote less time to complaint over this inevitable feature and adjust their calculations accordingly.

HAIR.—Altogether it has been rather a troublesome sort of market for Plasterers' Hair during the greater portion of the year under which wholesale operators and dealers alike have suffered. The demand for consumption has naturally been in about ordinary relative proportion to other descriptions of building material and with a certain appreciative portion of custom it was not very difficult to deal upon a reasonably satisfactory basis, but the regular trade found it necessary to contend against a very disagreeable competition that for a long while succeeded in capturing a considerable amount of the current inquiry. The interfering factor was found in a large amount of poor goat hair from Eastern and local sources in the hands of peddlers who went about hawking their stock from pillar to post in any quantity to suit, and doing most of their trading direct with consumers who were attracted by the cost without giving much attention to quality. Indeed, very few regular dealers would handle the stuff at all even for the sake of accommodating their custom, as experience taught them that the sale of inferior goods must sooner or later react upon those who disposed of them for any purpose, and after having cut the price of first-class stock down to the lowest possible plane short of absolute loss, the keeping of hair was practically abandoned at many of the yards. Pretty much all the offering from the outside source to which we have referred, we are informed, was taken off by the use of arsenic and lime, which destroyed the vitality of the hair, besides which through impracticed handling it came upon sale in such irregular and poorly assorted condition, the only wonder is that any careful and well-posted builder or contractor could be induced to use it. The glaring character of the evil, however, in time brought its own cure, the test of attempts at actual use bringing a revelation to many who thought they had a bargain and within a month or two the frank admissions of mistake on the part of many consumers, and better still their orders for regular stock has strengthened the market and revived the confidence of legitimate dealers. It is not a time now for much business, but the outlook is considered good and hopes are entertained of ultimately restoring value to a basis that will give a living profit. Cattle hair, as usual of late years, finds limited favor with builders except for common, cheap work, but a great deal of white cattle as well as long washed goat hair is used as a mixing element in the production of cheap woolens. The course of the market has not been an attraction for foreign stock and importations were comparatively moderate. During the year the Treasury Department, on an appeal by an importer, sustained the action of the Collector of Customs at this port in assessing duty at 10 per cent. ad valorem on a parcel of goat hair. The importer claimed that the hair was free under the provision for "hair of all kinds unmanufactured, not specially enumerated or provided for." The Appraiser reported that the hair was not hair of the common goat, as designated by the appellant, but was taken from the skin of the Angora goat, after being loosened by a process of liming, and the department holds that the provision for "hair of the alpaca goat and other like animals" includes all goat hair, whether of the common or other species.

HARDWARE.—Altogether there has been an improvement in the general tone of the market, and some increase of business with all the leading outlets. The commencement of the year was probably the slowest and most unsatisfactory, as operators generally were in very cautious mood, and neither buyer or seller knew exactly what stand to take; but as the season moved along there was a noticeable growth in the feeling of confidence, gradually merging into really healthy conditions. Buyers have not abandoned the very safe method of operating closely to well defined actual wants, refusing anything like speculative investment, even when it was quite evident that values must move into stronger position; yet this rule has been interpreted with somewhat greater latitude by calculating requirements rather further ahead, so far as thoroughly staple articles are concerned. All natural outlets have been represented in the distribution, both local and out of town, including an invasion of Canada and a pretty good increase of business on export account with other countries, and a good general selection was made, fancy stock as usual getting its share of attention toward the end of the year. Builders' hardware has found more country demand and a better city trade, the latter running all along the line of ordinary, good useful, fancy and ornamental stock, making quite a favorable contrast with last season. Production was pressed a little at times, but never found seriously at fault, and custom has obtained what it called for on reasonably prompt delivery; indeed, most dealers assert that no delays occurred through want of stock of staple description. With such conditions as noted prevailing the natural tendency of values would be toward greater steadiness, and that feature has most certainly developed. For a few months early in the year there was some cutting of rates; but as business began to improve manufacturers drew closer and closer together, especially as they found a powerful assistant in the increased cost of pretty much all metals, and, indeed, the latter was such an important fector that quite a number of price lists and discount sheets had to be revised upon a new and higher basis in order to make a clear margin, and immediately after the turn of the year it is expected a very much more general marking up will take place on both heavy goods and shelf stock. Dependent custom is believed to be poorly stocked and likely to require a renewal of assortments somewhat earlier this season than usual.

LABOR.—The labor market during the season has been well supplied with artizans of the various degrees of skill and proficiency required and free from any violent or serious fluctuations in prices. Indeed, this prime element in producing, shaping and putting together the numerous descriptions of building material seems to have again passed through a season under very good restraint either volumtary or involuntary, and the results have proven beneficial to the workmen as well as those who employed their services. Once or twice general strikes were talked of, but mostly in the columns of a certain class of newspapers that are always willing to fan anything of that kind along for the sake of political capital, and the difficulties actually developed were mainly of the same minor character as during 1888, and directed against individuals, some particular job, or to boycott the use of certain specified material, one noticeable case of the latter attracting somewhat extra attention, and the particulars of which we published in full at the time. The Master Builders' Association members, we understand, have not suffered at all, the agreement entered into with the representatives of the working bodies at the annual conference in the spring having been faithfully adhered to on both sides. The knowledge that the "subject to strikes" clause was in the contracts has also again protected a great many builders outside the association, and especially those of good standing and prompt in their settlements, but a number of speculative builders and individuals putting up their own structures were subject to numerous and more or less serious annoyances. Indeed, it was among such that the "walking delegate" put in most of his fine work, and watching for opportune moments when employers could be caught at the greatest disadvantage sent forth the edicts that meant either a prompt settlement on the terms demanded or the stoppage of work at a juncture when it could least be afforded by the builder, though it is probable that the delegate never gave the laborer much of a thought. Some of these strikes threatened possibly had a measure of reason, while in others no doubt the excuse was forced, and on the latter if any workman lost it was a simple case of served them right. Artizans, too, who have left steady employment with regular operators at the standard rates and gone to speculative builders on a promise of a fraction more only to find that much of it was promise alone, are among those who can hardly be pitied, because the experience has been so common. No change in rates expected this year.

LATH.—While the majority of lath received in this city find consumption either here or in Brooklyn the actual boundaries of the market cover a much wider area, extending to points up the Hudson and numerous localities over in New Jersey, so that in one direction or another an outlet can generally be found. On the other hand, the number of regular receivers is not very large, and, as they work together in fair enough unison to prevent suicidal competition values are rarely severely strained, through attempts either to force up prices or to slaughter stock on a mere matter of sentiment, and probably the natural factors of supply and demand assert themselves as an influence in a more direct degree than upon almost any other staple article in the material line. Some of the receivers have, during the year, indulged in occasional talks of somewhat buoyant character, but they accomplished little in the matter of action, and their harmless predictions served probably as intended, only as a diversion to the more or less monotonous character of the market. Indeed, as a matter of fact, the range of prices has been almost identical with that of the preceding year, and the extremes touched at about corresponding periods. That is, along in February and March, with almost nothing available for two or three weeks, and the demand pretty urgent, $2.45@2.50 per M was reached, from which there was prompt enough reaction as soon as arrivals commenced to show up, and with many intermediate fluctuations the drop finally carried cost down to $2.00@2.10 for standard stock, which is not quite so low as during 1888 for the same grade, though some inferior stuff from Maine ports did upon two or three occasions get below the two-dollar mark. It may also be well to include in the record that as an unusual occurence for the time of the year there was a sharp drop in price during the month of January with $2.10 accepted on a great deal of stock, owing to unexpected heavy arrivals from both Maine and the Provinces compelling receivers to skirmish around for custom outside of the city. This offering, however, seemed to clean up the holding of manufacturers pretty well, and it was followed by the scarcity on which top prices were obtained as already noted. Of round wood stock there was a considerable quantity among the spring and early summer arrivals, probably about as much in the aggregate as during the preceding season, and as some of it was of really very good quality it acted as something of a check upon slab lath, though selling at the usual difference, say 5@10@15c. per M less, according to momentary conditions. The Northern lath coming to hand via Hudson River, however, appear to have been the great thorn in the side of receivers of Eastern cut, and were not only more plenty but available over a much larger period. As early as February something over half a million came in by rail and sold at $2.40, pretty closely to the then ruling top rate, and after the river opened they kept coming forward at irregular intervals, a great many on contract made with dealers and contractors, with the down dip carrying rates to $1.85@1.90, and exceptionally and momentarily to $1.75@1.80 per M. As usual, there was a great deal of fault found with these, both by operators representing the coastwise product, they taking issue on the size and number in package, but there was evidently many dealers who could use them to advantage, and it is not likely the stock was brought here continuously at a loss. It is one of the texts of this trade that a matter of 5@10c per M on lath makes so little difference in the cost of a building that actual consumers rarely notice such changes, a theory possibly likely to hold good on single buildings, small jobs, etc., but large contractors and dealers must study every fraction, and they handle such goods as appear to be most remunerative wherever work in hand will permit. From indications during the year it looks very much as though about $2.20@2.25 per M for Eastern was a plane at which objection to cost becomes quite pronounced and turned the thoughts of buyers toward anything that could be used as a substitute. The result to Eastern manufacturers, therefore, has not been of a character to induce them to send forward letters of congratulation, for by figuring out the relative difference it has been found that lath have been selling at equal to 25@50c. per M less than spruce timber. Chances for the incoming year are considered good, provided due allowance is made for the Northern lath, which have evidently come to stay. Of the Northern lath we have been unable to arrive at any figure of receipts that can be accepted as reliable, but have, as usual, given below the import from the British Provinces. This shows a slight increase, and there is also quite a gain from Maine, reaching up to 141,400,000, which is something of a surprise, but early season receipts were very full and the average size of cargoes has been considerably larger this year. Altogether there has been pretty nearly 300,000,000 lath received during the year.

The condition of the trade in the West was thus referred to in a recent issue of one of our contemporaries: "Lath is higher in all the white pine district than it has been in a good many years. This condition is due to a shortage in the stock. It is readily possible to believe that this is due, in a large measure, to the consumption of lath material in woven-wire farm fencing. An immense amount of the raw material which, in previous years, has gone into lath has been put into pickets for fencing. Meantime, very little lath is being used in the large buildings in the cities where vast quantities were absorbed only a few years ago. But the manufacturers of lumber everywhere are slabbing lighter than they did, and the amount of raw material which goes to the lath saws is less than it was at one time, not very long ago. But there has not been a great deal of money in lath for some time, and the lumber makers will welcome any change in the circumstances which will enable them to get something for their raw material, besides the cost which might otherwise be incurred of getting rid of just so much more refuse."

LIME.—This has been the most monotonous market on the entire list, and week after week, month after month the general form of reports was essentially unchanged, about the only variations to chronicle being found in the occasional fluctuations of demand or difference in the volume of arrivals. On Eastern stock the first five months' business of the year was carried under the manufacturers' compact of the previous season, and while at one time during the spring a little irregularity and shading took place on Thomaston stock the rate was as a rule held steadily. Naturally a measure of nervousness prevailed regarding the probable action of manufactures upon the expiration of the limit of their agreement, but after a few preliminaries of a consulting character the combination was renewed, the former rates fixed upon, and from that time to date the figures have remained intact so far as known. We have from time to time heard rumors of some quiet favors shown buyers and on by no means poor authority, but suspicions did not seem to locate on any leading receivers, and if there really has been any cutting of price conceded under extra allowances for discounts, etc., it was of much less flagrant character than during the preceding year. Indeed action of that kind in pronounced form would probably have resulted in shutting off all further consignment to the offender. Production is understood to have worked along smoothly, increasing or diminishing under orders from the association as the requirements of the general market might seem to suggest, and there was nothing particular to complain in the cost of work or packages, though now and then annoyance was experienced in obtaining prompt transportation owing to the scarcity of vessels. It is estimated that consumption has been much the same as during 1888, and while the state of the wind has been a factor to sometimes keep back supplies for a while, and again to bring them in quite a bunchy form, the accumulation rarely caused any more than temporary inconvenience and never ran into a positive surplus that had to be forced, especially as the vessels were so chartered as to prevent claims for demurrage. In short, it has probably been the most even year on record, and while the margins over lay down cost was by no means liberal the results appear satisfactory alike to manufacturer, receiver, dealer and consumer. St. John lime has again played some part in meeting the local trade, as will be seen by our annexed record of imports, and while for some months the price remained about the same as at the commencement of the year there was afterward an advance of 5c. per bbl. and receivers say they could have placed more stock if available. Representatives of the State lime interest do not claim quite so full a trade as during the preceding season and attribute the falling off to the vast amount of wet weather. They have, however, managed to adjust production fairly to the wants of the market and maintain a steady line of value with arrangements such that deliveries can be made by rail if called for before the resumption of canal navigation. It is calculated that the accumulated stocks of all kinds in the hands of local dealers are about the same as one year ago, possibly a trifle fuller in some few instances. At the close advices from the Eastward report a cessation of shipments, temporarily, at least, and it comes to us pretty straight that as matters now stand the chances are all against the renewal of the combination among Rockland manufacturers when the present compact expires next spring.

LUMBER.—It is many years since we have found so many diverging opinions over the results for the season as encountered while gathering suggestions for this review, yet a careful analysis and comparison leaves the impression that there has been a great deal of recuperation of the lost trade of 1888 and probably a gain over 1887 during the twelve months just closed. The fact is, business centres shift about to a considerable extent in the lumber trade, according to the points at which building operations may be greatest, and those dealers who remain at old localities waiting for the return of departed trade do the grumbling, while those who keep up with the procession or by their foresight have become so situated as to have the procession of business come up to them, are in cheerful humor. It is in the nature of things that with the steady growth of the two great cities and their suburbs, for which the big bridge forms the connecting link, there should be an increased outlet for lumber in various forms, and with the expansion comes occasional new methods and features, though nothing lately of very decided character. Inspection and classification have in many cases been improved, and in turn accepted as standard by shippers from interior points, so that while there is still entirely too much ill-assorted stuff sent this way, the offering has contained a larger portion of desirable goods than in 1888, leading to quicker and more satisfactory handling and fewer necessities for slaughtering. The close of navigation, too, has become a factor of less importance than in former years in view of the comparatively low cost and superior rail facilities for transporting stock of both hard and other woods. The formation of combinations among yard dealers, not alone to maintain a uniform price, but to protect themselves against many evils of more or less magnitude, is another innovation, and so long as these compacts are framed and carried out in the proper conservative spirit, they are, no doubt, calculated to prove quite beneficial. Furthermore, we believe every one of these combinations have a tendency to add a stone for the foundation of a Lumber Exchange, and will, in conjunction with the embryo associations in the wholesale market, it is to be hoped, finally come together in an amalgamation practically representing and protecting the entire lumber interests of the city. A great deal of stock has been sold direct to the consumer, probably more than in the preceding year, as many agents have located here with that avowed purpose, and this, of course, has become more or less an annoyance and source of complaint among yard dealers, without any good remedy suggested. There has also been a large and varied assortment of agents in attendance, some experienced and some inexperienced, offering supplies to dealers and occasionally at what would appear to be absolute bargains in the matter of cost, but finding those who were dealing direct with the mills affording practically no custom at all, and those who were not so dealing manifesting quite an indifferent spirit, the field of labor was transferred to other sections. That course was detrimental somewhat to local trade, as the drummers placed a great deal of stock with small outside dealers ordinarily dependent upon this market. The scope of distribution from this point, however, continues reasonably wide, embracing the lower end of Westchester County, Staten Island, to some extent, Newark and Jersey City and its nearby cities, while Brooklyn finds a really good line of trade on Long Island, where the attendance of traveling salesmen is said to be few and far between. Locally, the trade down town, as in former years, is principally in stock for repairs and for manufacturing purposes, but increases in general character as we get up town, and in the Harlem district requires more or less of every description of stock, as it is there where the vast amount of work in the way of improvement is going on. Prices, with few exceptions, have ruled on a comparatively easy basis, both wholesale and retail, and especially bulk lots from interior points, whence the pressure to realize was most pronounced. Accumulations in the aggregate are probably up to the average, but are scattered and unevenly divided, some dealers being scantily supplied, owing to inability to get the description of goods wanted, and others because they had no special faith in the future and consequently made investments light accordingly. There has, since the canal closed, been quite a little pressure to place car lots of stock, but with limited, unsatisfactory result. In most cases, dealers have a pretty good opinion of the prospects, especially should the winter prove an open one, as all the indications to date of present writing seem to point, and if the World's Fair be located here it must, of course, prove of vast benefit to lumber as well as all other building material.

We have taken considerable trouble during the past year to obtain something in the way of statistics that would show the receipts of lumber and other wood products at this port, and have met with some success. We frankly admit, however, that the record is by no means perfect, as many difficulties presented themselves that appeared impossible to overcome. Of the coastwise supplies of lumber and piling the showing is a very close approximation to the actual amount received, but other stuff doubtless short; while the arrivals from the interior are canal and rail receipts so far as they could be ascertained. So far as they go, however, the figures are liberal and interesting, and we give them for what they may be worth as an indication of New York's capacity for consuming the products of the forest:

Since compiling the above a local trade journal has reached us with tabulated statements, going into somewhat elaborate estimates A portion of the figures named are closely in accord without, but the compiler, by adopting a plan of reducing everything to feet, including mahogany, cedar, lath, staves, shooks, shingles, piling, etc., makes it appear that the receipts at this port during 1889 amounted to the enormous total of in round figures 1,622,000,000 feet. Quite a snug little lumber market take it altogether.

Eastern Spruce has had its ups and downs during the year, but rather more "ups" than otherwise, and on the whole the market was a good one, making an exceeding favorable contrast with the preceding season. In fact, sellers seldom more than temporarily lost advantage, the general averge of price was considerably higher, and about the one complaint throughout was over the scantiness of the offerings at the time they were most wanted; though had not this feature existed there is doubt as to whether the value range would have proven so full, as the keynote to the situation was rather in the light supply than in any great spread to the demand. During the first three months of the year a good steady tone prevailed without any great variation in price, and buyers did not appear inclined to contest the situation seriously, but the last week in March brought in an immense fleet of lumber-laden craft from both Maine and the Provinces, and while a great many of the cargoes were under contract a sufficient number were unsold to make a surplus and drop prices 50c.@$1.00 per M in rather sudden order. During April and early May the arrivals continued pretty liberal, the Maine ports in particular contributing a very large percentage, and the rates continued easy until $14.50 was accepted on some of the least desirable random and possibly less in exceptional cases, though that figure appeared to be about the average inside, and made the base from which there was a slow but steady recovery, and for the balance of the year receivers rarely found themselves at a disadvantage in the matter of setting terms, but were frequently unable to satisfy their regular custom, even on distant deliveries. During the earlier portion of the season dealers seemed to have an idea that the talk about the exhaustion of the supply of logs was simply the regulation story sent on from the Eastward, and the free offering to which we have already alluded naturally had a tendency to confirm the supposition; but efforts to obtain contracts on specials, the fact that some regular vessels had left the route for want of assurance of freight, and other developments seem to bring a strong impression that manufacturers were not drawing the long bow, with the result to be found in a prompt straight demand whenever supplies were wanted. Final positive conviction came when dealers met with disappointment after standing off for the annual August decline, only a few weak-kneed sellers surrendering a fraction during that month, and within thirty to sixty days thereafter buyers were begging to have orders placed without success, this latter demand to a very considerable extent representing a call for stock rather than for immediate consumption. During July a labor strike at Bangor cut out many days of production and tended to still further reduce the quantity available. During the fall a great many of the logs came down, and the mills if urged could have turned out a larger quantity of stock; but manufacturers, especially at St. John, refused to hurry themselves at all, indeed expressed a determination to carry their logs over, and did so, on the belief that upon the opening of spring trade they will have still greater advantages and exact from buyers almost anything within the bounds of reason it might be thought well to ask. So far as local dealers are concerned at the close of the year, they are carrying a very fair stock all things considered, but no abundance, and should it prove a continuous open winter again are likely to distribute with some freedom and help create the conditions upon which sellers are calculating, though, of course, there is a plane of cost at which consumption would be checked and seek substitutes, and it may also be well to bear in mind that some pretty free work is being done in the woods this winter at all points of supply which may prove a factor of importance. Indeed, while the present conditions are certainly remarkably strong, operators here probably understand better than manufacturers that the market has possibly expanded pretty nearly to its legitimate boundaries and attempts at further strain may overdo matters and bring about a sudden and unexpected collapse. Even as it is some of the trade, and not all of them dealers by any means, are predicting just such a result before midsummer. There has been nothing particularly new in the form and methods of local trade, except possibly that the circumstances under which business was conducted gave the smaller dimensions a chance to keep a little closer company in the matter of price with wide stuff, while extra sizes have at times commanded more than the ordinary premium, and agents have claimed they could have obtained about what they might choose to ask when custom was getting a little desperate regarding specials. For our immediate city trade the favorite cuts have as usual been 10 and 12 inch 24 to 25 feet, though Brooklyn is commencing to want more of that class of stock, and is also a good consumer of 8 inch 14 to 20 feet. Cargoes have continued to average pretty full, indeed larger than last year, and no noticeable objection came from the majority of buyers. During the year there has been some offering of West Virginia spruce and a little of it handled, with the cut ranging 20 feet and under in length, and any ordinary width asked for, the price said to be $16 per M at Jersey City. The wood is spoken of as showing a brittle tendency, and not likely to become popular for general work. Although the receipts from St. John N. B., show quite a falling away for the season, there has off and on been a great many cargoes dropping in from the Nova Scotia ports, and we find on the footing for the year that the total shows in round numbers 58,000,000 feet, or really a small excess over the preceding year from the Provinces. We have been unable to complete the record from Maine, but the indications point to a very considerable falling off. Within the past two or three months our local retail dealers in spruce have come together for the purpose of forming a protective combination similar in many respects to that existing in the yellow pine trade. The main objective point seems to be to guard against useless competition and cutting of values, and if these ideas are carried out on an equitable basis the association is likely to prosper. Full details have already been given in our columns.

Northern Spruce has found quite an irregular, and possibly not altogether satisfactory market, as the selling side labored under some disadvantages, more, however, upon the matter of supply than demand. Indeed, most of the testimony obtained leads to the inference that this portion of the stock has retained at least its average position in the general movement of lumber, and some claims are for an increase of consumption, especially at some of the nearby or suburban dependent points. Against the comparative freedom of the outlet, however, was to be placed the liberality of the supply, manufacturers having got about all their logs down, owing to the peculiarly favorable condition of the streams, and there being no feeling of co-operation in the matter of production. Each mill seemed to work at times as if the main object of the owner was to see how much could be turned out in a given space of time. During the entire season, however, there was an absence if anything like real direct or severe pressure to realize, and except for a little while during midsummer rates were supported on quite a uniform sort of basis and for first-class standard cuts buyers could claim no great favors. There is generally understood to be a reasonably good stock wintered at ordinary points of accumulation, yet in a position to be controlled without much difficulty, and expectations regarding spring trade of a character to inspire holders with considerable confidence.

Hemlock has secured quite as much attention as during the preceding year, possibly a trifle fuller sale if anything, and while the variations in value were not wide there was at one time a somewhat feverish feeling growing out of sensational and groundless reports, started by the penny-a-liners of some of our local journals and copied widely throughout the country. This occurred at the time of the Johnstown and Williamsport floods, when it will be remembered a vast quantity of lumber and logs were washed down stream, and at once went up the cry of a great scarcity of hemlock, with even a corner in the wood talked of, and $14.00 per M and upward suggested as a price. It pretty much all ended in talk, however, so far as our local market was concerned, for as a matter of fact neither the mills or the logs from whence our supply of Pennsylvania stock is drawn were seriously injured by the floods, Philadelphia and vicinity in reality being the localities at which most inconvenience was felt, and a great deal of that of only temporary character, and eventually in one way or another a considerable quantity of the derelict stuff was recovered and made useful. There was unquestionably an effort to put the rate up here, and on the first flurry we remember quite distinctly receiving reports of buyers somewhat hastily closing pending contracts, and in a few cases adding to amounts originally under treaty. There was not, however, at any time an advance positively established and sellers very soon began to discover that they had two influences to compete against of a very potent character, the majority of custom flatly refusing to advance its line of bidding, and the offering of Northern stock coming out in a liberal manner and under such terms as to indicate quite clearly that it would be a very aggressive competitor and able for a time to practically control the position in the formation of values. Not that Pennsylvania stock lost caste at all in the matter of quality, or attractions, indeed a few buyers will have nothing else, but it cannot be made to satisfy the general run of trade with plenty of stock from the Northward available at a marked saving in cost. The large amount of Northern Hemlock offering during the season was the results of the copious rains which bought the logs down with a run, and led to a production that became the important factor we have already advised. The supply, however, seems to have been handled with a great deal of discretion, and while, of course, at times leading to some annoyance and more or less irregularity in value it was rare that regular operators offered anything unusual in the way of a low point of cost, and by reaching out for other markets it is understood finally succeeded in securing a place for a large proportion of what at one time threatened to be an uncomfortable sort of accumulation to wind up the season with. It was a frequent experience here during the summer and fall to have buyers claiming ability to obtain supplies at a cut of at least 50 c. per M from regular rates, and solemnly insisting that they had purchased on such basis. And, as a rule, their statements were correct, but a little cross-questioning or other investigation generally elicited the information that the stock handled was in odd lots, offered by boatmen, etc., who without intimate knowledge of the market and compelled frequently to hurry their trades could be "squeezed" by a little judicious management. Since the close of the Northern season, however, the Pennsylvania product has commenced to stiffen in tone again, and as it is understood that many manufacturers have been working light, the available supply is not extensive, and rates are hardening on all first-class stuff. Joist are rather the slowest in finding sale, but boards 1x10 and 13 feet long is what everyone calls for, and a very much larger quantity could be sold promptly if offered. There seems to be a first-rate opinion of hemlock for the coming year, so far as demand is concerned, and operators seem to have an idea that supplies will be no greater if as full. The consumption of hemlock at the West has continued to gain somewhat, and complaints over its use are becoming less frequent.

White Pine has again found an irregular market throughout pretty much the entire year, and at all seasons, spring, summer, fall and winter, it was much easier to hear expressions of complaint and dissatisfaction than words of praise and cheerfulness. It is very probable, and indeed absolutely certain, that a great deal of the fault-finding was strained and exaggerated with adverse features seized upon and given wide currency, frequently in distorted form, by parties interested in the introduction of other woods, yet the loss of favor to which White Pine found itself subjected during 1887 and 1888 has continued during the past year, not only here but throughout the entire country, and instead of standing out boldly as an independent leading grade it has been compelled to acknowledge the competitive merits of other products of the forest and take its chances along with them. A great many of the hardwoods in one way or another have acted as a partial displacing element, but Poplar and Southern Pine have no doubt proven the most successful competitors, partly on their merits and partly through the systemized and vigorous manner in which they have urged into all consumptive channels to which they were adopted. Every conservative operator admits this readily enough and the natural tendency has been to adjust matters to the order of things as they exist, and the accusations that have upon accasion been allowed to go forth to the effect that dealers here were stubbornly refusing to recognize the possibility of anything taking the place of White Pine, were only useful in revealing the imbecility of those who were reckless enough to make the charge. Indeed no better refutation of such nonsense can be found than in the class of dealers who continue to make White Pine a specialty, and it has also had a due and fair proportion of the natural increase that has come to the general lumber trade of this city, the only difference as compared with several years ago being in the cutting down of the exceptional percentage of the gain. It may be well to add also as a portion of the record that within a month or two we have in several instances heard reports of the return of prodigal custom, especially from the use of poplar, owing to indications, and for that matter absolute experience, that sellers were foisting an inferior quality of the latter wood upon the market, though it is but justice to say that these charges in all cases appeared to locate upon outsiders and not upon members of the association. As a very natural result of the situation in which they were placed dealers have found it desirable to keep terms attractive and margins narrow, though as a partial compensation they have found it possible to secure stock for replenishment without difficulty and at comparatively low cost. Many have as usual drawn direct upon primary points, either from their own mills or manufacturers who can and do cut to suit exactly the special custom tendered them. Of open general offering, however, there was always enough and to spare, with occasionally a raid of salesmen seeking orders that made it look as though interior holders were getting a little desperate in the effort to realize. This was in part due to the permeation of the competitive offering of Southern pine into the Western district inducing the white pine men to turn their efforts Eastward in the search for relief, and in part to the fact that right at home as it were, at Buffalo and Tonawanda, and even at Albany, the necessity for a more spirited and direct effort to closely and persistently canvass them for custom has been recognized and acted upon with much success, to the frequent disquiet of the salesmen from more distant points. One of the plans operators from the other end of this State are trying to popularize, is to have dealers buy or engage their stuff in large quantities and shipped and settled for as desired. A feature of the local market is that it now has to depend upon the consumption of the cities and their immediate suburbs almost exclusively as a means for distributing the supplies, the army of drummers having explored pretty much every nook and corner of the Eastward, and a great deal of demand formerly dependent upon this market now plumes itself upon receiving goods direct. Uppers have again proven the most unsatisfactory grade to handle, as it was too costly for any but special use, even when offered, as it frequently has been, at less than it could be replaced, while box had the surest sale and maintained a pretty full rate. Siding has done very well, probably a little better in annexed district, etc., than in the city, and both ceiling and flooring found better sale than might have been expected through the reports of sellers of competing stock. Accumulations here are somewhat irregular in quantity, according to the sentiment of dealers, but plenty to work with, and evidently no great fear about the chance for additions, as there is a large stock left on hand at pretty much all interior points, and since the close of navigation a good offering for rail shipment, though just at the present juncture many agents have gone to headquarters to report and receive instructions for future movements. There is one feature in connection with the general white pine market that might with propriety be kept in view. It has not thus far given signs of any inherent tendency to demoralization, but simply seems to have come down from the extreme plane of supremacy formerly occupied, and producers as a rule, having ample means to carry them along through the period of transition, will eventually adjust their methods to the new order of things, though from current reports it looks as if there was in some sections too much work going on in the woods this winter for the good of the trade. The amount handled for export has been greater than last year, but most of it, early in the season, or, say, well up to the end of summer, and hardly the growth of orders ordinarily expected after Canadian shipments have become cut off. There have been fair offerings here in assortment, and at reasonable rates, and more stock could have been brought forward if desired, but the trouble has been in the financial straits prevailing on the River Plate, and a hesitation to move on Brazilian account until the status of the new government becomes thoroughly determined.

Yellow Pine has not only thoroughly supported the improved conditions noted one year ago, but shares a realization of the promises then given of a further substantial gain in the solidity of the market. Steady, full demand, even at periods when other grades of lumber were more or less under neglect, was the foundation upon which operators had the opportunity to build, and by their good management in making conservative use of natural advantages they have succeeded in working up a structure that embodies most of the essentials of a healthy business conducted on legitimate lines, affording a fair margin of profit to pretty much all interested, and making still more decided the contrast with the state of affairs a few years ago, when the trade had fallen into almost utter demoralization and become practically at the mercy of buyers. The seeker after detailed and close information on this market, unless accompanied by a more or less substantial order for stock, has not met with that response and courtesy ordinarily accorded those who are willing to disseminate all reliable news for the benefit of the entire trade; but a narrow policy of that kind benefits no one—is very apt to react in the end upon those who practice it, and really deserves notice, only by way of explanation of any shortcomings that may seem to exist in reports. The instrumental factors of the greatest power in securing benefits from the expanding consumption were the two organizations of operators, one of wholesalers and the other of retailers, working on somewhat independent lines, so far as the distinctive features of their respective branches of the business might be concerned, yet in thorough harmony whenever the general benefit of the trade so suggested. Buyers who have wasted time shopping about among the yards rarely secured any advantage, except the knowledge that retailers could not be severed from a uniform line of valuation, especially on standard grades of stock, and the result of this has been to inspire such confidence that when future wants had to be met orders were placed with the most accessible dealer, and after only ordinary and natural negotiations. The same rule has held good on the open cargo market and the placing of special orders, customers generally discovering that, except positively in the matter of minor details, any responsible house or agent, willing and prepared to accept their tenders, had about the one basis of cost, from which no deviation could be forced. Of course there have been exceptions to the rule and occasional claims put forth of considerable cutting of prices, but when these stories were carefully run down, they generally brought up against a deal with some small outside operator, and not infrequently, if watched to final culmination, the buyer was very apt, as he ruefully looked over the faulty gradings, etc., to wish that he had stuck to the regular line of sellers, whose very firmness on valuation was an additional guarantee of intention to deliver standard stock according to understanding and agreement. In fact, cutting and slashing of prices appeared to have become practically eliminated from this market, and the "take an order at any price" method simply a bit of past history, serving as a useful contrast to aid in preserving the present healthy and profitable basis. It has been no uncommon occurrence during the year to find buyers compelled to do a great deal of running around in the effort to place specifications, not always because they were extra difficult, but even when of average dimensions, simply because most of the mills were well provided with work and felt no necessity or desire to commit themselves to engagements they were in any way doubtful about meeting. The range of cost has been higher, but only as a natural sequence of the better balance between supply and demand, and that ruling advantages have not been used to extract extreme rates is probably the best refutation of the charge made last year to the effect that the wholesalers' combination was formed for the purpose of cornering the market and would be assisted by the co-operation of the retailers. The facts of the case are that the yellow pine trade had become so completely disorganized and unprofitable, by reckless and unprofitable methods, that it required heroic measures to save it, and these have been applied with the beneficial results already recorded, while the evidences seem to show that advantages have been thus far so managed as to make an equitable adjustment between manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers. The use of this wood covers the usual wide range, from dock building up to some of the most attractive house trim, and its consumption on the several outlets is increasing, while the area of distribution broadens out materially, the West in particular having become a liberal customer, drawing its supplies direct, of course, and a factor on our local market only as it may serve to make manufacturers more independent. Coastwise receipts, as recorded in comparison through tabulated statement annexed, speak for themselves, but are not a full representation of the supply, as a considerable amount of stock came in by rail, of which no distinct record is available. Much confidence is felt in the chances for the new year supported by the specifications of both small and large dimensions already in hand for estimate and bidding, and operators calculated that the class of work likely to be stimulated by the Fair will benefit that class of lumber quite as much if not more than any other. The export trade, mostly on f. o. b. orders as usual, has been somewhat erratic and not altogether satisfactory. About an average amount is claimed for Europe by some of the operators, and others say that the India deal was a very good one, but South American business was greatly disturbed, first by financial irregularities and subsequently by the Brazilian change of government, though it is thought that eventually the latter may bring material benefit.

Carolina Pine timber has probably found a trifle fuller sale, but more as the result of chance than through any attractions of natural merit, as appreciated by local dealers and consumers. Indeed, the call has come almost wholly from custom in a position to run the stuff into immediate use and wanted something very cheap, in order to save margin on contracts taken for rough work, and this class of wood just about filled the bill. The trade was mostly during the summer and fall, however, and we are unable to learn of any laid away for stock. For the kiln-dried, rough and dressed stock, however, conditions have been of quite an opposite character, and there is a still further gain in the volume of business for pretty much all grades, not the vast expansion of trade constantly clamoring for an unattainable supply, as some of the subsidized reports would have had it appear, but a good, healthy growth that has kept manufacturers busy even with an addition made to productive capacity, and along toward the end of the season, when buyers became somewhat anxious to get supplies into yard rapidly, there was a natural running behind with orders, in some cases due to scant shipping facilities. However, on the whole the market has been managed well, and to that is due the success attained, and which can probably be carried without difficulty, if ordinary care is used. When the first determined effort was made to introduce the wood upon a more liberal scale, the prejudice of many years experience with it in always a poorly prepared condition, had to be met, and as not much additional pains was taken to improve quality sales were slow and more or less unsatisfactory, dealers and consumers alike raising their voice against the stuff. Fortunately, however, there were many manufacturers determined not to be discouraged, and with shrewdness enough to carefully investigate and ascertain directly what the market did want, they went to work to improve general run of quality, adopt a grading to the wants of custom, and, in fact, in every way make their offering as attractive as possible, and while that brought a good return during 1888, the benefits have been of even more pronounced character during the season just closed. Buyers have, in fact, gradually become convinced of the merits of Carolina Pine for various uses, and gathering confidence from the evidences of intention to maintain a high standard of quality took hold with the increasing freedom to which we have already referred, especially as sellers have also acted conservatively in the matter of cost. For while generally refusing to make any concessions from the line of valuation decided upon at the commencement of the season, there was also an absence of attempt to push up cost, even when ruling conditions might have appeared to justify such a course. There was, however, to be found, at times, the usual exception to the rule, and once or twice quite an amount of grumbling might be heard about the cutting on rates. Investigation did not always prove the complaints to be well founded, and in nine cases out of ten, where the charge was found to be in accord with the facts, it was simply due to the efforts of some new seller seeking a foothold, but not impressed with the necessity of having every foot of his lumber right up to the standard of quality claimed for it. Experience, the best of teachers, however, soon brought improvement in condition, and with it recovery in tone. Rate cutting, in fact, has become quite an exceptional matter, and that, of course, is another victory scored by manufacturers. The consuming points include the city market, where there is a slight increase; Brooklyn, with a very liberal addition to the demand; and a more extensive boundary of distribution to interior localities East, this State and Pensylvania, and as far west as Ohio, while, in variety, flooring and ceiling were the most popular, but there is a claim for not only an established trade in box boards, but excellent conditions prevailing to hope for a still further increase. The grade of box as a rule shipped, has admitted of some sorting and of which was obtained stuff utilized for roofing boards. There was at one time some talk about workmen demanding extra pay for putting together boxes from Carolina pine, but nothing of the kind appeared to materialize. The dressing mills started in this vicinity, and to which reference was made last year, have proven a success, and were frequently kept on the jump to meet their booked orders.

Hardwoods have found a somewhat diversified trade, at times quick, and then again slow enough to draw out considerable complaint, yet on the whole the actual consumption has probably been nearly or quite as full as last year, without making any great amount of show over it. That is, changes in methods for one thing have brought dealers and large furniture manufacturers in still more direct connection with producers, and considerable quantities of stock practically pass directly from the mill into our local yard accumulation or actual consumers' hands; while the replenishing of stocks and assortments from time to time broken into, through distribution, has been of a quiet undemonstrative sort of character, that, without any special intention to that end, has really served to conceal a great deal of business. So far as the retail or yard trade is concerned a pretty steady line of valuation is retained, and probably a fair margin for profit found; but it is a mooted question if there was any money in the deals made here for larger parcels, as whatever the demands have been, greater or smaller, there was always enough stock awaiting it, with the exception of very choice qualities, which, as in former seasons, have, as a rule, only become available under special agreement and iron-bound guarantee. Exactly why this territory should have been considered a peculiarly hopeful and promising field of operations, after the experience of 1888, is not very clear, yet it is certain that during the early portion of the season the tide of sellers commenced to flow, and reached its flood during the summer and early fall, embracing within its body a large number of new agents, who, in common with the older ones, when they found it impossible to place goods here, flopped over into the surrounding districts, some of which were dependent upon this market, and, in fact, made a thorough canvass of the Eastern trade. Within two or three months, however, a great many sellers have disappeared, partly because it was simply a matter of unbalanced expense for them to remain longer, and partly to escape the complaints growing out of the arrival of some of their sales, revealing quality so poorly fitted to the wants of this market, that buyers were inclined to prompt repudiation unless a rebate of some kind was allowed. Compromises of various kinds were patched up, but that did not serve to remove the reflected injury felt to a greater or less extent by all the better qualities of stock. Another old, and therefore still more disagreeable unsettling factor was to be found in the consigning methods of interior shippers, who either fail to read their trade journals, or to accept the advice of dealers here, have persisted in sending forward such stock as they thought the market wanted, and missing it by so wide a mark as to be practically at the mercy of buyers, no matter how hard a consignee might try to save them. Buyers may be very hard in the matter of grading—it would be poor business if they saw such an opportunity and did did not improve it; but producers who send supplies haphazard have no right to complain when they could secure themselves against loss by simply writing to some first-class house for information as to quality, quantity, and methods of shipment, and then following instructions to the letter. Our local market is one of if not the very best for strictly perfect quality hardwood lumber, and always has room for a little more. The condition of transportation charges for a long while has been of a uniform reasonable character, and promises to continue, a feature that to some extent creates a certain amount of indifference among buyers when suggestions of "accumulating for winter and spring" are made, yet certain indications have prevailed leading to the impression that some of the large dealers have become possessed of larger amounts than at this time last year, and will add to them steadily in confident anticipation of the future. A good foreign trade has been done during the year, embracing about the usual relative proportions of the various grades, as our tabulated statement annexed will show, but there was a constant and determined call from shippers for the best of quality, as every time anything else slipped through back came a grumble from the other side, loud and deep. A great many manufacturers took it into their heads there was a great deal of money in the export business at the rates quoted, and at once went in to run a deal themselves. The result came about as might have been expected, in the arrival of a great amount of stuff totally unfitted for the outlet intended, and unsalable except at a very low figure. There is nothing the matter with the export trade, indeed it is improving, but it will take only such stock as specially qualified operators select, and attempts to force upon it anything else results in failure and loss.

While probably every recognized hardwood has some custom on this market the character of the demand varies greatly. Walnut, in view of its former popularity, appears to have become almost a nonentity so far as the home trade is concerned in the matter of good and choice quality. It costs too much and the whim of fashion is against it. Rejects and culls, however, sell to some extent whenever they are placed low enough to cope with competing woods. The export call for walnut was a very good one pretty much all the season, and the sale of stock fully adapted to that outlet never appeared to drag. The selection was close, not necessarily entitely clear, but free from unsound knots and splits, and 10 inches or better, though the measure is gradually falling to 8 inches as a necessity in absence of the larger size. Cherry has frequently been reported as losing popularity, yet that is hardly the proper term to use as it is just as much in favor as ever, but only the few who can afford to work fine stock into consumption at the ruling extreme valuation, with price sure to go higher should demand in any way quicken owing to great scarcity of supplies, especially old growth. Culls and common cherry has found little favor even at several dollars per M shading in cost from last year. Poplar has again been a bone of contention, and between those who were hired to disseminate favorable reports of the wood, others employed to depreciate it, and the mixed character of suggestions from actual buyers and sellers, the market was in quite a chaotic state at times. The formation of the poplar manufacturers association and the establishment of a fixed code of prices seem likely to afford a steady basis, but hardly had the list been announced when charges and counter charges about cutting prices commenced and continued to the close, even after a second meeting of the association had reiterated the firm and confident feeling of manufacturers with an expressed determination to stand for full valuation. From an impartial and disinterested standpoint it looks as though poplar had sold with a little more freedom than last year, and on really choice stock commanded full rates as a rule, but with a great deal of competition buyers would shade now and then on good grades, and on poor stuff name some pretty low rates, and buyers who obtained the latter did most boasting about weakness, for what it might be worth. Among one of increased sources of consumption for poplar during the year was in the manufacture of bungs, of which vast quantities are constantly turned out for home use and shipment. Plain sawed oak has undergone little or no change during the year on the home demand, but there was a fair call now and then for export, with prices nominally steady, though it is generally surmised that careful buyers obtained many little advantages. Quarter sawed oak, however, has probably been one of the best selling woods on the market, with a broadening demand and hardening line of value, though a great many operators complain that the ruling prices were not full enough in proportion to the popularity of the wood and the cost of getting out just what was required to satisfy the taste of the average run of consumers. The standard of quality as generally set as required has repudiated anything less than 6 inches in width and thence up to 16 or 18 inches, and each piece to show something in the way of a distinctive feature. Anything deviating from that was pretty sure to be relegated to second place, while the attempt to run in white and red oak, especially narrow, meets with still greater discomfiture and is the basis for the grumbles that are now and then heard regarding the unfavorable market. There was, however, nothing the matter with the market, the trouble was with the stock. Ash has done better than last year in finding a somewhat fuller and more continuous trade, but like every other description of hardwood it was only on the best of quality that buyers' attention could be retained at a full line of valuation. Boards have been the most certain selling cut of ash, indeed probably sixty or seventy per cent. of the demand was for boards wide and dry running 8 to 18 inches, and largely 14 to 16 feet long and in a few cases where 16-foot stock preponderated quite a little premium was paid. There has been a pretty good export call for ash at times, and of course this custom was extra particular over quality and insisted that stock should run 10 inches and over in width. Sycamore has met with about the usual demand for consumption in the manufacture of tobacco boxes, but there has also been quite a little demand for it quarter sawed to be worked up into trim and furniture. Manufacturers say it does not pay to quarter saw sycamore, and there has, in consequence, been a scarcity of that kind of wood. Maple has secured some export demand and a better home trade, the latter showing an increase over the preceding year, and mainly for flooring, clear, even thickness and perfectly dressed 3 to 6 inches wide, 1 to 1¼ inches thick and 12 to 16 feet in length, anything failing in these requirements proving very difficult to sell. In other domestic woods, such as Cottonwood, Basswood, Red Birch, wormy Chestnut, Gum, Cypress, Elm and Hickory, there has been more or less doing throughout the season and generally at satisfactory rates, though no higher than the year before. The log market has been reported quite, or at the best only moderately active throughout the season, with generally a fair supply available. Prices, however, were fairly sustained, especially for sound straight stock, which is suited to either the home or foreign trade. Mahogany for all really first-class work in the way of furniture and trim is probably the most popular wood on the list, and has had an excellent year. Not only did the local trade call for liberal quantities to meet its requirements, but outside custom was full, and at times anxious, the West in particular showing a high appreciation of this magnificent wood. Thus the demand alone was a support to value, but in conjunction with scant supplies became a stimulus, and cost gradually increased, closing firm all around.

* All exports of Cedar, Walnut, Cabinet and Oak have been placed under the regular exports of hardwood lumber, etc., as the bulk, if not all, are without doubt of domestic growth.

Shingles generally have found a better market, and in some cases there was a very decided improvement in the volume of business, both on home and shipping account. The local trade in shingles is not ordinarily considered of any great moment, the majority of dealers even refusing to keep them in stock, and so far as the city proper may be concerned, there is, of course, no consumption, but the suburban inquiry has expanded materially, and a large call has come from more distant points, for which this market is a distributive centre, either from stock brought here and accumulated for sale, or through contracts made for direct shipments from the manufacturing locality. This increase of the use of shingles is not for roofing purposes alone, but is due largely to the current taste in architecture and the embellishment of villas, etc., upon which, in many cases, the siding is made up to a very liberal extent of fancy work in such shingles as may suit the notion of the builder. This has given all kinds a chance, and operators in pine, cedar, cypress and redwood stock have severally found trade good and satisfactory, though there seemed to be a little favoritism for cypress and cedar, with the latter reported as continually selling right up to the supply, especially in the way of fancy grades. A very large amount of stock has been consumed on Long Island, both in public and private enterprises. Nor has the home trade afforded the only satisfaction, as those operators who make a specialty of export orders report an excellent and gratifying result. At this point the foreign movement was as usual made up principally of small, odd lots required for some special order; yet, even in this way there is an increase, as our figures show, while in the matter of f. o. b. orders for shipment from Southern ports the expansion of trade was full and to all ordinary points, though the Island of Jamacia has furnished an extensive proportion of the custom. Under the circumstances as noted, value naturally ruled pretty steady, though not strained, as sellers seemed satisfied to "let well enough alone," and abstain from forcing advantages. Latterly there has been a somewhat firmer feeling and a slight advance in pine shingles, owing in part to reduced offerings.

The exports of Shingles from the port of New York for the years named were as follows:

	Number.	Value.		Number.	Value.
1880	6,459,500	$35,525	1885	3,217 000	$16,826

Piling generally has had a better year than during 1888, owing to the smaller volume of offering and the absence of any raft to disquiet the temper of receivers. During last winter and spring the demand proved unusually good, leading at times to the engagement of cargoes before arrival, and making a very considerable draft upon the stock stored here, with prices under the circumstances naturally ruling quite stiffly, especially as it was understood that the supply at primary points for several months would be under the control of one or two operators. During midsummer, however, although actual consumption continued uninterrupted, the stock to meet it had been secured, and inquiry fell off to a point sufficient to create a dull feeling, and receivers had to decide between shading price or putting cargoes in chains, and, as both courses were adopted according to sentiment a measure of irregularity prevailed, and some buyers could fairly claim to have secured a little advantage. They were, however, the exception, and a revival of demand in the fall that has since continued very good restored strength, and the close finds the tone very healthy and cheerful all around Against some work contractors made arrangements to receive their stock direct from the mills, but the majority of arrivals came through regular sources and were well handled, the few "outsiders" in fact being about the only sellers who have manifested any haste to realize. At the present time the accumulation is very much smaller than at the corresponding date last season, is in better hands it is claimed, and the outlook is quite promising. Ordinary sources of consumption, it is calculated, will want full average amounts, beside which some liberal contracts have been closed for future delivery, not alone during the incoming year but extending into 1891, and that seems to promise a continuation of at least current valuation with the chance of an advance. Miscellaneous stuff, in the way of clothes and scaffolding poles, etc., has secured good average sale, and at well-maintained rates throughout. Reports have been made for some time past that another raft venture from Nova Scotia is to be made in the spring, and even the supposed dimensions of the structure given out, but we have pretty good authority for stating that there is no present prospect of a raft, and so little do the trade fear it that they are making all arrangements on the presumption that there will be only the usual methods employed in invoicing supplies.

METALS.—The entire space occupied by our general review might be given over to a history of the metal trade for the year without doing fair justice to the voluminous subject, for it has certainly been a phenomenal season, and in most radical contrast to 1888. As nearly all parties interested, however, have their regular trade journals from which to obtain the extensive details, it is utterly impossible for us to make room for, we simply attempt to give the salient features in order to perfect the list of articles embodied among building materials. It is an old belief that the condition of the Iron market is a thermometer of general trade, and if the theory be accepted as conclusive the past year should have been one of almost unexampled prosperity. In fact the iron trade and steel industries of the country have probably never before in such short space of time made so rapid and broad expansion with so little of a speculative stimulus, as one of the healthiest features of the situation has been found in the purely legitimate character of improvement. Railway building, with its roadways, bridges, and rolling stock, various and vast public improvements, liberal private enterprises and the multiform exhaust afforded an almost endless list of manufactured articles have altogether created a demand that was extremely difficult to keep pace with, and for the past six or eight months production has been constantly behind the waiting outlet. Not only has the productive capacity existing at the commencement of the year been thus taxed, but a vast amount of abandoned plant revived and extensive new enterprises inaugurated, and with the rapid enhancement of values that come as a natural sequence of the growth of trade manufacturers have been enabled to recuperate and largely reimburse themselves for the bare living profits if not actual losses through which they were compelled to struggle during preceding years. In some sections, however, and particularly the South, the expansion is so great and unrestrained as to raise apprehension that matters may be overdone and ultimately prove of serious detriment to the entire trade though solidity is thought to be assured for the first half of the incoming year at least. Great Britain has had a boom also, but more of a speculative character, and prices were carried so high as to practically shut off a great deal of her product from this market, iron in particular having no custom here for some time except on special orders, but on the contrary contracts have been entered into and shipments actually made of iron from this country to Great Britain. Another event of the year was the utter collapse of the French Copper syndicate, the ruin of its projector, and the serious crippling of many of his financial supporters. This ultimately tumbled the price of Lake down to 10@10½c., but as surplus stocks of outside holders gradually became worked off and trade returned to normal conditions, consumption was found to be liberal and steady, affording a new and sounder basis from which a recovery was built up to 14@14¼c., and there is an evident hope that it can be held there. Lead has undergone minor fluctuations but nothing of a remarkable character, and it is calculated that the consumption was somewhat larger. Tin has been handled by consumers in rather a conservative manner, the general inclination being to invest only against current requirements, as the speculative element following the advices from abroad kept prices in quite an unsettled condition. Plates, however, have done somewhat better than last year, both the quantity of stock handled and the opportunities afforded for occasionally finding a turn over that would afford a respectable margin for profit in a regular legitimate way, for there has been no great demand of speculation in them. Steel rails have had an immense boom and reached $35.00 per ton, but at that figure the market appeared to be a little staggered and slowed up somewhat. Lead has been handled in a speculative way to a moderate extent, but the business, principally of a regular order, and for some time values have shown a fair steadiness. At the close everything looks promising on the general metal market, and while there is no disposition to talk from a further decided buoyant standpoint the selling side evidently expects to hold the advantage for some little time to come.

NAILS.—In many respects this market has resembled that or the previous season, no innovations or radically new features having developed in conducting the business, but where there was any change at all it went to the credit of the year just closing. The aggregate of local trading has certainly been somewhat larger, and the range of price fractionally above the inside figure of 1888, and when the proper time came an upward turn was secured without disturbance or the manifestation of any serious objection on the part of buyers. Still there has by no means been an absence of grumbling on the selling side, and it has been a constant and pronounced source of complaint among manufacturers of iron nails that there was no money in the business, some yet insisting that with the great bulk of the production sold at less than $2 per keg in a small way and still lower by car lot, the sum of the closest kind of figuring reveals an extremely small and unsatisfactory margin for profit. The form of demand and an absence of harmonious work on the selling side are probably the prime factors that for a long while kept all semblance of buoyancy out of the market, and it is possible there would have been no more than a small fractional gain in value had not the increased cost of material supplied a very important stimulating influence, and that is another point made by makers who talk of slim profits, and assert that the marking up process was simply enough to cover the additional expense of production. In the development of demand caution has been very conspicuous from the beginning to the end of the year, and has proven extremely serviceable to buyers, who by refusing persistently to anticipate their wants have kept the market on a diet of hand to mouth inquiry, which if sometimes a little exasperating was none the less healthy. Several times in this locality there was an effort to get the plane of value higher long before the advance actually came, but without success, as there was no competition among buyers and considerable of it among sellers, more particularly near the geographical dividing lines of the several districts, and encroachment upon each others territory was what manufacturers feared. Even as it was something of the latter character occasionally took place, where there could be a good sized invoice disposed of, though of course that was felt mainly by operators doing a shipping trade with the interior and had no real effect upon the local situation. Having made the turn of cost on iron nails well above $2 a couple of months ago, however, with steel and wire nails in proportion, manufacturers have generally since remained quite firm, though there was an occasional intimation that dealers fortunate to load up pretty freely before the improvement have to some extent undersold the regular rates, especially toward the close of the year when trade was a little dull and there was a temptation to turn stock into cash. On deductions drawn from cost of material there appears hardly a possibility of any lower rates on nails during the season, and there is a belief that distributors and consumers are so low in stock as to insure a full general trade.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—On a broad general view of the market for paints, oils, colors, etc., the season has been a very good one, though some of the trade assert that in the aggregate business really shows less volume than during the preceding year. The late winter and spring business was full, and during the summer there could at times be found considerable of a drive, especially in the matter of regular standard stock, but during the fall and the better portion of the present winter business has been erratic and shrinking and covers the period of the greatest loss in the volume of operations. That was due wholly to the condition of the weather, which not only interfered with and delayed a vast amount of work commenced, but has induced the postponement indefinitely of much that was contemplated, though it is reasonable to suppose it will be heard from in the spring. Business, too, was somewhat curtailed by the continuation of an extremely cautious method among buyers who, while ready enough to negotiate promptly to the extent of known wants, have entertained nothing in the way of a speculative spirit, and very generally refused to accumulate against the future. Not that there was expectation or even attempt to get cost down to a much lower basis, but an absence of fear that any advance would take place and the tendency was therefore to leave the carrying of supplies as near first hands as possible. However, pretty much the same conservative policy was adopted by manufacturers and importers and they have in consequence evaded any serious difficulty in taking care of goods. There was little new in the scope of distribution, about former general territory being represented, including a fair proportion of orders for export, though the latter have suffered a little within a month or two on the South American outlet. As already intimated prices ruled unusually steady for pretty much all goods throughout the season, the changes made from time to time in quotations proving only fractional in character and through natural temporary influences. Even the formation of an apparently almost impregnable lead trust, controlling probably 90 per cent. of the entire output of the country, did not enhance the cost as so many feared, as the previous prevailing rates as set by the Corroders' Association was adopted and adhered to. It is a question, in fact, whether the consumer was not really benefited by the trust, as jobbers being bound by no compact and feeling that price would not drop from under them have sold leads as a leader and at just about cost in a great many instances. Oxide zincs were also quite steady and manufacturers have taken contracts for next year at 1889 prices. An exception to the general rule may be found in Paris green which did very well until November 1st when the combination through which it had been held expired and not a voice was raised for renewal. That, of course, upset uniform valuation, and with all hands, including late members of the combine, the so-called outsiders, jobbers and retailers, making a general raid for custom, the buyer had a pretty good time of it, with the close still unsettled and somewhat nominal. Linseed Oil has undergone no very violent change and found a demand about in proportion to other goods upon the market. During the early portion of the season values had an inclination to rule comparatively easy, but after midsummer a scarcity of seed developed, with the influence promptly shown its product and fuller rates became current. The advance, however, it is intimated, has induced an effort at adulteration, and in some instances a strong desire to keep stock as near the heat as possible to help it run. Spirits Turpentine has undergone very little more than the ordinary fluctuations in value as occasioned by the seasonable variations of supply and demand, and presents no feature worthy of extended notice. As a rule holders remain steady at the close and consider supplies under control.

Although not exactly a portion of last year's record it may be well to note that at the close the lead trust has made a revision of rates on white lead equal to an advance of about ½c. per lb. through a new system of rebates and the figures adopted are as follows: Pure white lead in kegs, in lots of 500 lbs. and over, $7.25 per 100 lbs.; dry white lead in kegs, $7.25 do.; lithargo (powdered) in kegs, $7.25 do.; red lead, in kegs, $7.25 do.; red lead, in packages of 500 lbs. and larger, $7 do.; dry white lead, in barrels, $6.75 do.; white lead, in 25 lb. tin pails, ½c.; in 12½ lb. tin pails, 1c., and in 1 to 5 lb. tin cans assorted, 100 lbs. in case, 2½c. per lb. over keg price. The following are the rebates allowed: To buyers of three tons and less than ten tons, 4 per cent.; ten to twenty-five tons, 6 per cent.; twenty-five to fifty tons, 8 per cent., and fifty tons and upward, 10 per cent. To make up the required quantity all purchases of regular corroders' brands of strictly pure white lead, red lead and litharge may be counted.

PLASTER PARIS.—Although the year 1888 was considered a large one in the matter of importation of Lump Plaster, the record of the past twelve months greatly exceeds it, and is, in fact, by far the heaviest of any since statistics have been kept, and probably reaches the most liberal amount in the history of the trade. While to a certain extent the generally healthy condition of business may be credited with this result, it is only fair to state that manufacturers had another and justifiable incentive to induce them to get out and bring forward every ton they could conveniently handle, in the fact that a great many quarrying contracts would expire with the present year. For a year or two past we have been calling attention to the change in the condition of affairs in Nova Scotia where the continuous inroads upon the gypsium deposits have compelled a steady and pronounced change in the methods of getting out the rock until the comparatively easy quarrying has through force of necessity been abandoned for the more difficult and expensive mining. Having that in view, therefore, and feeling that a renewal of contracts could hardly be perfected except at a higher plane of cost the movement to bring supplies forward would have been a natural one, even in the face of a much lighter counteracting outlet than has been found. Another element of some potency in arranging the conditions of the season was to be found in the situations of the transportation problem, as freights were not only costly but scarce, with constant threats of further advance, and shrewd operators, who had carefully studied the prospects, improved every opportunity to secure room, especially in the way of large vessels, as most of the latter originally intended for this trade had been diverted to distant voyages by more attractive terms offered. So annoying has this matter of transportation become that we understand that one of our largest importers has taken the bull by the horns and contemplates building his own vessels, though they probably will not be ready during the coming season. In the matter of consumption of rock after reaching here we find that a considerable less quantity than usual has been taken for fertilizing purposes, not through any lack of appreciation or want of adaptability to the improvement of land, but mainly owing to the extreme cost, farmers refusing to pay the price of necessity asked by grinders. Otherwise, however, the demand was fuller and continuous, for in addition to the ordinary output of the various grades of Calcined stock, as used in regular way, there has been a very considerable addition to the consumption in the manufacture of patent plastering material. The quantity of stock left on hand is considerably greater than last year, owing in a great measure to the defection in land plaster demand, but that gives manufacturers no trouble as they are confident there is nothing to lose in the matter of cost, and are well satisfied to carry the stock, especially so as the run of rock taken out this year has proven of uniformly high grade, and there is nothing to complain of in matter of quality.

Calcined Plaster affords little opportunity for review of specially interesting character, owing to the somewhat monotonous state of affairs prevailing during greater portion of the year. At the outset a slight addition was made to values on the better qualities, and after that no change whatever took place up to the close, the ruling competition among manufacturers proving sufficient to prevent a further advance, yet hardly keen enough to lead to any thing in the way of cutting in the effort to secure trade. Indeed, for that matter, many sellers were working on almost too close margins to indulge in the paring of rates, owing, it is said, to a miscalculation in the matter of freight charges on rock, which stubbornly refused to give way during the summer as was expected, and is a reflection of the poor policy of one year ago through which the big vessels were allowed to slip away on distant voyages, without chance of return in time for this season's work. On the domestic distribution there has been much the same general movement, all the old outlets having about their proportionate amount as in former years, and while business was at times somewhat variable in force there was never cause to complain of actual quietness, and dealers generally call it a good season. The export trade, however, has not been quite so satisfactory. Quite a number of very good sized invoices were taken for South America and the West Indies at times, but dealers who have been contributing to the Australian outlet report a lessened call from their custom, and attribute it to some depression in trade on the antipodean markets, coupled with somewhat more expensive cost of transportation. Of Eastern Calcined there has been only a moderate amount received, but most of it came to waiting custom, and quickly disappeared, with the price well sustained. We are informed that there will be a movement made this winter by united local manufacturers to memoralize Congress, asking for an equalization of duty on Calcined between this country and Canada. As it stands our impost is about 98c. per ton, while Canada makes an import duty of $3 per ton, not only prohibitory, so far as our plaster is concerned, but, it is said, permits the Canadian maker to slip in stock here in direct competition with the local production.

SLATE.—Local consumption of roofing slate continues of comparatively moderate proportions, too small in fact to make any regular market, and business is mainly done on special contract, with dealers generally found willing to make terms as consistent with lay down cost as possible, though, naturally, small orders are expected to command some premium on wholesale deals. In the distribution of supplies from the quarries, however, there has been a liberal steady movement from the opening to the close of the season, and operators set it down as one of the best years they have ever experienced. As compared with 1888 the situation differs in this that the foreign outlet has shrunken into much smaller proportions and the home trade afforded the greatest exhaust. This domestic demand has come from pretty much every interior point ordinarily considered dependent, the South having a somewhat increase representation, but the West and Northwestern trade affording the most satisfactory run of orders and frequently it has been been found impossible to keep the output at a balance with the waiting wants of custom, especially the black slate of Pennsylvania, which have as in former years retained the lead in favor, and at the close, notwithstanding the quarries have been worked to their utmost, there is said to be practically nothing left over in the Bangor and Pen Argyl district. Naturally, with such favorable elements the cost has been supported without difficulty, and while on the general range extreme figures were without alteration, some sizes have been advanced, such as 16, 18, and 20x10 marked up 15c. per square, and 18x9 and below 50c. per square advance. Competition appears to have been at a minimum because there was no necessity for it on black slate, with manufacturers unable to take care of the business that came to them naturally, and harmony of action has contributed materially to the healthy and cheerful conditions of the market. A fractional advance is predicted with the resumption of spring trade. Over the Vermont seagreen slate we find some irregularity in the reports as made, though the general tenor is not of an over cheerful character, and occasionally there is a whisper that indicates the possible dissolution of the manufacturers' combination. That has held together first rate all the year, maintaining steady prices and keeping the offering in such form as to prevent a surplus or pressure to realize upon the open market. It is said, however, that the estimated accumulation of about 40,000 squares in midsummer has increased since, indicating apparently an indifference toward the goods, and some of the trade think that it may be owing to a tendency to lose color, as the texture is certainly of the highest order. As we have already indicated there has been a very sharp falling off in the foreign trade and for a while it was difficult to open up any negotiations with shippers. At the close of last season a considerable quantity of stuff remained due on contract and awaiting accommodation, most of which went forward during the early spring, a fact well to bear in mind when comparing statistics which have to be made up from date of clearance, and therefore our tabulated statement of exports represents simply the year's shipments but far beyond the actual new business. The cause of this radical change as compared with 1888 is very commonly attributed to a natural revulsion for a while, in general form of business at the principal foreign dependent points, which as for some years past were to be found in the Australian and neighboring markets, the business outside of those localities as may be noted by our figures amounting to nothing of an important or influencing character. It is not claimed that the actual consumption in Australia, etc., has undergone much shrinkage, but the heavy quantities of roofing slate sent out during 1888 no doubt made a temporary full, possibly slightly excessive accumulation, and in view of former experiences orders were promptly curtailed as a measure of safety. Had it not been for the liberal home demand as already advised this defection of foreign custom might have proven of more serious importance, but as it was very little complaint could be heard, and the line of valuation was kept firm throughout at $4.00@4.25 per square, alongside vessel. Latterly, however, a change for the better has commenced to develop, and without any modification of cost of slate or better terms in the matter of transportation charges. So far as shown, the demand shows a decided inclination to pick up again, and the more or less haste to perfect shipments has led to the seeking of accommodation at Boston without waiting for vessels here, all features tending to show the legitimate character of the revival and give hope of its continuation into the new year. New slate quarries have been opened on the Pacific coast during the year, and the San Francisco papers are talking up roofing slate with spirit. A valuable discovery of roofing slate is also reported on Howe Sound, B. C., and the enthusiastic local journals claim the supply to be inexhaustible. In school slates the record for the year has not been perfected at the present writing and there is a slight measure of doubt as to the total output, though prominent manufacturers on general impressions express the opinion that the quantity will compare very favorably with the preceding season, and the business has, as a rule, been of a satisfactory character. As indicated in our last review, during the fore part of the season there was an advance in cost stimulated in a measure by a partial combination of manufacturers, but the line of valuation was not maintained and there was a drop back again late in the spring, since which time the market has remained quite uniform, the producers in and out of the combine making a good balance. All the miscellaneous productions of slate have kept along at about former average with nothing in the way of new features suggested worthy of special comment, except that some manufacturers claim a slightly increased consumption for mantels and sideboard shelves, etc.

STONE.—The difficulties in the way of obtaining any authentic record of the quantity of stone handled in this city during the year must be apparent at once, but a comparison of the views as expressed by leading operators shows a very general tendency to estimate quite a little increase, with a continual growing tendency. Pretty much all first-class dwellings and a large proportion of ordinary tenement property now give stone the preference for fronts, while the larger structures make a consumption that is simply immense, while the constant cultivation of a taste for architectural variety and surprises opens the door for the use of quite a miscellaneous assortment of stock. Right here, however, we strike a stumbling block in our report, in view of the natural yet confusing manner with which every agent insists quite positively that the particular grade he is selling or introducing exceeds all others in its qualities of attractiveness and durability and wants it publicly mentioned. Under the circumstances the only plan seems to be to abstain from specifying any particular quarries or locations and simply refer to stock in general terms. In that way it is safe to say that the red sandstone, domestic and imported, and limestones, have found greatest favor during the year, with the latter particularly well spoken of for general use, as it seems to stand the climate and hold color excellently well on the tests so far made. Granite has found some call mostly for special work, and there is still a fair mission for what to the general public is known as brown stone, but the latter lacks sufficiently distinctive feature to be popular in the architectural desigus of the present day, and its use is curtailed accordingly. There has also been a fair quantity of blue stone used for structural purposes, some of it with very good effect. On quotations there has been very little variation, but in actual cost the matter was probably quite different, as there is evidence of considerable cutting on rates at various times. Within the divisions of stone as already enumerated there has been a great many minor varieties tendered for consideration, and the effort to introduce them and get a grip was one of the principal causes for the slashing of prices that, however, is by no means an uncommon occurrence and was an early experience with some of the stones that have through meritorious qualities finally become standard. The fixing of rates between quarrymen and stone cutters at the first of the year has a merit in affording the architect and contractor a basis to work upon, yet many of the quarrymen complain that the rate affords such narrow margin that even with a fuller business they make no more money, and in some cases less. Some, too, are particularly bitter in denunciation of the state of affairs which permits shutting the door in the face of a high order of skilled labor, willing to come into the country and accept a reasonable rate, and then forcing payment of full prices to inferior workmen who have had the luck to become residents and possibly naturalized citizens at a somewhat earlier period. The plans for the incoming year so far as developed are promising, and the market winds up in cheerful form with good general trade expected. Respecting the conditions of the the market for Blue Stone flagging, curbing, etc., reports are not of a satisfactory character. The use of grante and patent pavements has remained as a pronounced competing factor duly admitted, yet probably to no greater proportionate extent than in former seasons, and competent authority calculates that the actual consumption of stone has been nearly if not quite equal to 1888, but attributes the difficulties principally to over-production and its form. The combinations of all the companies representing the productive capacity of this section of the State perfected in 1887 has remained intact to date and could under its terms of compact have adjusted the output to the requirements of the market, but outside competition has arisen that could not readily be neutralized and became the disturbing element. The extension of railway service has, it appears, afforded the needed facilities for reaching hitherto practically inaccessible deposits, and between the roads anxious to obtain freights and the new quarrymen seeking to get their goods upon the market the cost to the consumer has been pared down to the lowest possible notch, while car lot parcels could be secured as readily as much larger quantity and the purchaser of thousands of dollars worth of stock had no greater advantage than one whose operations were confined to hundreds. This has been especially felt here, as the railroads were most liberal in their terms when contending against water transportation and did a little balancing up on charges to territory over which they exercised exclusive control. Of course to meet the existing condition of affairs the association rates had to be cut, and in some cases the benefit of organization permitted them to do so with much advantage in the matter of securing work, but that is not a satisfactory result in all respects, and one or two other plans looking to a solution of the difficulties are under consideration and may be decided upon before spring. It is a trifle early as yet to arrive at any positive conclusion regarding the prospects for the next season, but the drift of indications are in favorable form and calculations generally hopeful.

VOL. XLV. JANUARY 25, 1890. No. 1,141.

The bill introduced by Senator Fassett at Albany is the first thoroughly satisfactory measure of a general character that has been brought forward to enable this city to provide itself with adequate rapid transit facilities. The bill should be passed in both Houses without delay and receive the signature of the Governor. Political criticism, the criticism of persons with financial or other interests at stake, the criticism of cranks and the host that have hitherto arisen and opposed for one reason or another every rapid transit measure hitherto proposed should, during the consideration of the bill, absolutely not be tolerated for an instant. For in the main this bill is a good one. Under existing circumstances it is probably the best the city could possibly get. We believe it covers no "scheme." It recognizes with a degree of fairness all political claims for consideration. Its provisions are ample for the most comprehensive scheme of rapid transit. It cares for the rights of the city, of property-owners and passengers. It recognizes the interest of the present elevated roads, and protects not only the public parks, but streets such as 5th avenue, Madison avenue, Broadway below 33d street, and other thoroughfares which the people of this city desire should remain unobstructed. The powers it confers on the commission are undoubtedly extensive, but no more so than is necessary for quick and effective action. The character of the commission named is satisfactory, and the checks imposed are, on the whole, sufficient. The bill seems to have been drawn with great care and will stand all honest and reasonable criticism. The Real Estate Exchange should look after this bill, and every citizen should carefully watch its progress through the Legislature. One feature of the measure is commendable, viz. that providing for the termination of any franchise and its return again to the city.

At last there is indication that the press is coming around to a sensible view of the true position which the Manhattan road occupies in the rapid transit difficulty. Hitherto it has danced to the demagogic piping about "monopoly," because it supposed it tickled its readers; and in and out of season it cried for all and every obstruction that could be devised to prevent the Manhattan road improving its service; oblivious of the all important fact which THE RECORD AND GUIDE alone has been for years insisting on, that through the Manhattan Company, and through the Manhattan Company only, could the City of New York obtain any immediate alleviation from the deplorable inadequacy of its rapid transit facilities. Speaking of Senator Fasset's bill, the Tribune at last says:

> It will allow the Rapid Transit Commission to give authority to the present elevated railways to make certain extensions and additions to their lines. A strong defence may be made of this part of the scheme. The necessities of the city are immediate and serious, and New York will not be contented to wait until a new company has time to build new lines. Yet there is a grave menace and danger in this section of the bill. The Commissioners will need all their sagacity, all their judgment, all their public spirit, to determine just how much they ought to grant to the Manhattan Elevated Railroad, and how much they ought to refuse.

Would that other New York papers would speak as sensibly. But the commissioners, if they are sensible men, will find no great difficulty in dealing with the elevated roads. They will recognize immediately they set themselves to face the problem before them, which the papers have never done, that New York cannot wait without great loss during the several years that at the lowest calculation must necessarily elapse before new lines of rapid transit can be devised and constructed. They will see at once that anything that will improve our present facilities will be to the immense advantage of the public, and while imposing all proper conditions necessary for the protection of the city, they will permit the Manhattan Company to construct a third track along its lines, which should have been done years ago. They should also allow the company to build the loop it needs at the Battery, so that the delay now incidental to inadequate facilities may be obviated, and a more rapid and continuous service than is possible now established. Unfortunately this will be beyond the power of the commissioners if the bill passes in its present shape, for it especially stipulates that the commissioners shall have no jurisdiction over any public park. In this respect the measure needs amendment, so that the few feet necessary for the Battery loop may be taken. The entire city would be advantaged thereby, and the value or beauty of the park would be impaired to no serious extent. As Mr. Gould has said: "The capacity of a railroad is measured by its terminal facilities, and the Manhattan Railway could easily double its traffic if it had enough room at its terminals for the rapid handling." Now, this either is a fact or it is not. The truth or falsity of it can be demonstrated as certainly and as easily as the possibility of printing in an hour 40,000 copies of the Times, Tribune, World, Post, or any other of the papers that at once contradict the statement merely because Jay Gould made it. The subject too seriously affects the interest and welfare of the city to be treated in this way, or as Mayor Grant treated it on the occasion that the representatives of the Manhattan road approached him when his rapid transit bill was under discussion by saying it was impossible even to consider propositions from the Manhattan Company because of public prejudice. This is not the way to deal successfully with serious problems. It is to be hoped that the New York press is at last coming to its senses in its treatment of the Manhattan Company, and will deal with the rapid transit difficulty in a broad, public spirited way, and not in the shallow, demagogic manner hitherto adopted, and will have the courage to "return" to the position it should always have occupied.

The principal subject to be discussed at the approaching Builders' National Convention, to be held next week in St. Paul is "an eight hour law." From what we can learn the delegates from the East will support the measure, but it is probable that the delegates from Western cities will oppose it. Whatever the outcome, the discussion is sure to be interesting. In approaching the subject it would be well if the delegates would carefully define their position—that is, whether their view of the question is mainly humanitarian or mainly economic; that is, whether they have in mind the moral effect of an eight hour law, or what may be called its financial effect. It is best not to confuse these two. The delegate who is in favor of an eight hour day because it will enable the laborer to be more with his family than is possible to-day, or because it will give him more time to educate himself, advocates the passage of the law from moral considerations; whereas, a delegate like our friend, Mr. Deeves, who is inclined to support the law because there are so many men out of employment at present, and thinks that by shortening the hours of labor all can be given work and greater prosperity insured, looks at the matter chiefly from an economic point of view. In dealing with the moral side of the matter the question arises, are all laborers so overworked that a general eight-hour law is needed? Another question also at once suggests itself, will the majority of laborers use the hours of leisure to the greater moral advantage of themselves and society than at present. Beyond doubt thousands and thousands of men, women and children are overworked to-day. On the other hand, it is equally certain that there are thousands who would not be morally advantaged by a shorter working day. The vast number of saloons in every large city do not really begin business until the working day is over. It must be said, however, that the improvement that has been made in the condition of the "working classes" all over the world has been attended by a shortening of the excessively long day of labor that used to prevail. Whether the relation between the two is only one of contemporaneousness, or the closer one of cause and effect, and if so to what degree, is not to be answered off hand. Even if we give due consideration to the immense betterment of the physical condition of all classes eaused by the mechanical progress and the new discoveries of recent times, there is still in all probability some improvement to be credited directly to the diminution of the hours of labor.

On the economic side, however, we are treading on more certain ground. At the outset it should be understood that lessening the hours of labor cannot be to the economic advantage of society at large unless thereby the efficiency of labor is increased. We do not say the laborer, but labor, a distinction rarely kept in mind, for it may be that the shortening of the hours of work would not increase the efficiency of the laborer but would of labor generally —that is, a single bricklayer might not be able to set as many bricks in eight hours as in ten; but two men in five hours each might set more than one man could in ten hours. If, under these conditions, there should be a large number of unemployed persons. then manifestly the short term of labor would be to the advantage of society—production would be increased; though it is well to observe it would be at the expense of the man who hitherto had previously had full employment. Of course, if he should seek employment for his other five hours either in other trades or in his own the increase in the number of those seeking some employment would probably result in a decline in wages. It has been computed by the Massachusetts Bureau of Labor Statistics that an eight-hour day would lessen by one-ninth the present annual production in that State. Diminished production means and must mean that somebody has to do with less than he did previously. The new arrangement may benefit somebody, but it must be at somebody else's expense. There are only two ways to fill a vacant spot—to redistribute what already exists, or to create something that previously did not exist and use it. The same is true of empty stomachs. There are only these two ways of filling them. If under the eight-hour law the employer pays as much for a day's labor as when the day was ten hours long, and the productive capacity of the laborer is not augmented proportionately, the change is at his expense. If, on the other hand, he pays proportionately less for eight hours than for ten hours work, and during the remaining two hours employs somebody who was previously without employment, the latter is benefited at the expense of the man who formerly did the work. Of course, if the production of labor be as great working eight hours as ten no greater number of men will be employed than before. When, some time ago, the ten hour day law for women and children went into effect in Massachusetts, efforts were at once and in time successfully made to increase the speed of machinery in the textile factories, so that in the end no greater number of operatives were employed. The Builders' National Convention have a big subject before them.

Of the Knox banking bill, introduced into the Senate by Mr. Sherman, for placing on a permanent basis our present national bank currency, it may be said without giving it full approval that it is the most successful attempt that has yet been made to deal with the currency problem which the reduction of the national debt creates and which all further reductions will tend to intensify. This country favors so strongly the abolition of its debt as speedily as possible that no scheme that should make for its retention, even in a limited way, would be likely to receive popular or legislative approval. But the cancellation of government bonds curtails, actually or potentially, the national bank circulation which at present must be secured by these bonds, and the object of the bill drawn by ex-Comptroller of the Currency Knox is to provide an acceptable substitute for these securities. According to its provisions banks are to be allowed a circulation equal to 75 per cent. of their capital stock, and of this 75 per cent. 70 per cent. is to be secured, half by government bonds and half by gold coin or silver bullion at its market value at the time it is deposited. Such security would be amply sufficient; but it is plain that the measure only half solves, or rather it postpones, the solution of the problem it is intended to meet, for under its provisions half the national bank currency would still be based upon government bonds, which in the last resort means the credit of the United States. This is all well enough, but the question we would like to have answered is, what necessity is there for the maintainence of the national bank currency? The privilege of note issue has undoubtedly been a source of profit to bankers in the past. It has enabled them to profitably utilize capital twice at the same time: first, through interest obtained from the government on the bonds deposited with it, and secondly, through the interest obtained for the use of the notes based upon the bonds. This double profitable use of capital still continues with the older national banks, though probably no national bank that should be established now would be thus advantaged on account of the heavy premium which bonds command, amounting to-day to about 26 per cent. Indeed, Mr. Wm. P. St. John, the president of the Mercantile National Bank, has calculated that there would be a net loss annually of at least $40 on every issue of $9,000 of notes now commenced by a national bank, and it is said that the tendency of national banks is to contract as far as possible their note circulation. If this be true then the first part of Mr. Knox's scheme—that part providing for securing circulation by government bonds—is still more unsatisfactory than appeared at first glance, for it offers the banks a doubtful privilege, which, if Mr. St. John is correct, would be accepted to only a limited extent. Why should not the paper currency be issued entirely by the national government just as the metallic currency is? Whether it should be based upon gold, or gold and silver, or upon gold, silver and the credit of the government as the national bank notes are, is a question yet to be determined. But as the national bank currency was, like the national debt, one of the consequences of the Civil War, they might both expire together. A determination to this effect would prepare the road for placing the paper currency of the country where it should be, viz., in the hands of the national government, and there is very little doubt that among other advantages it would result in establishing our currency entirely upon an immediate security—that is, upon gold and silver, which at present is not the case.

It seems that the City of Bangor, Maine, has recently put in an electric light plant, which has been operated by the municipality at a cost of 13 cents per light per night. In answer to an inquiry from Mayor Hart, of Boston, Mr. C. F. Bragg, Mayor of Bangor, writes as follows:

> This low cost is of course due to the fact that our plant is operated by water power owned by the city. We have steam auxiliary power, and if operated by steam entirely our cost would not exceed 25 cents per light, and probably would be not much over 20 cents. I believe any city, situated as favorably for fuel as Boston can operate its own plant by steam for not exceeding 25 cents per night for 2,000-candle power arc light, including all expenses for wear and tear, and prices heretofore charged by private companies for this service are outrageous.

Mayor Bragg displays a wisdom seldom found in a municipal executive in asserting that the prices charged by private companies for the service are outrageous, but we are inclined to think that he places the legitimate cost to a municipality at too high a figure when he estimates it at 25 cents per light per night. Definite information from eighteen cities places the average cost per light per night at 13.4 cents—in view of which 15 cents ought to be an outside figure for the service, assuming, of course, that no unusual conditions prevail. When New York had any electric lights, she paid something over 30 cents per light per night, and it is quite certain that the profit of the companies would not be contented with a profit of 5 cents per light per night.

Politics and the Exposition.

It is desirable to keep all political questions from the business of the World's Fair. This may be accomplished by following the suggestions in our issue of December 28th, that the inaugural ceremonies should be held on the 14th of October, 1892, and the portion of the Fair which is within permanent buildings follow on through the winter, and the full Fair open in the spring of 1893. This plan has been announced in the daily papers during the past week as if it were a new discovery. It is the proper plan of celebrating the event on and after the date and not before it, and it averts the complication of holding the Fair at the same time as the Presidential nominations, canvass and election. This would break up the interest of the people in each and remove the fear that the Exposition might give undue political influence to the city in which it is held. As Chicago is a decided Republican city and New York as Democratic, this consideration entered into the question of the location. It may be disregarded by following the true date and season for the celebration.

Another political question is local here. A year ago Mayor Grant sent a bill to Albany to increase the number of City Police Justices from ten to fourteen. It was opposed by the Republicans, who had a majority in each branch of the Legislature, but was passed and became a law on the promise of Mayor Grant that he would reappoint one of the Republican Justices whose term expired in November last. The performance of this promise, when the time came, was refused, and the reappointment has not been made. Several attempts at a compromise have been tried, one to appoint any Republican other than the present incumbent, another to give the Republicans in lieu of it the place recently vacated by Mr. Coleman, the Commissioner of Street Cleaning. Nothing has been done, each party remaining firm, the Republican leaders demanding the strict performance of the promise, and the Mayor refusing.

The importance of this question is shown by the fact that, while the Mayor is strong in this city, the Republicans have complete control of legislation at Albany and great influence at Washington. On this point the excitement is growing, and the partisan feeling is becoming very strong. At Albany the defeat of the Mayor's plan for rapid transit and the adoption of a plan in which his influence will not count for anything, and the investigation of the City departments which are controlled by Tammany, are already ominous, while at Washington the influence is not yet so apparent.

The corporation for the conduct of the Exposition will be strongly Republican. It may be wholly independent and non-partizan, and yet leave Mayor Grant and his associates wholly without place or influence. An indication of this is already to be seen in the discussions between the Special Committee on Legislation and the Mayor and his cabinet, yet hardly closed, for the bill announced on Wendesday to have been completed and sent to Albany on that day had not then gone back to the printer.

The newspapers, for a day or two, have been filled with varying rumors as to the attitude of ex-Senator Platt and other Republican leaders toward the Exposition, some going so far as to state that it would be defeated altogether, or, in any way, would not be held in this city. These are extravagant, and may be limited to the points we have stated: first, interference with the Presidential election of 1892; and secondly, the personal controversy with Mayor Grant.

On this latter question the subject of the discussion for a week past, between the Mayor and his cabinet and the committee from the Exposition, throws a side light. The points were whether the location of the sites, where land could be taken for the Exposition, should be defined or left to be taken anywhere, the prevailing of the latter view ignoring wholly the work of the Committee on Site, and also whether the actors in the legal proceedings for acquiring land should be city departments, such as the Board of Street Opening and Improvements, of which the Mayor is a member, or the Exhibition Commission created by the bill. The prevailing of the latter view leaves the Mayor out rather effectually. It would be much better to keep personal and partisan questions out of the Exposition business.

The attack of the Evening Post on Commissioner Gilroy's asphalt paving contracts will have at least one good effect. The specifications in the future will be drawn up with a view to the criticisms which the Post has made, and which, whatever inference we draw from the fact, cannot be said to have been adequately answered. The present rough and billowy condition of our streets may be due in part to dishonesty, but undoubtedly it is more largely due to ignorance. If from the first the specifications had been subjected to the same rigid scrutiny which the Post has applied to those under which the asphalt had been laid, New York would not have wasted all the money that has been wasted in laying pavements that are noisy, ill-constructed, ill-repaved, ill-cleaned and generally unsatisfactory, and which we are only beginning to realize must in great part be taken up and relaid. The $3,000,000 which has been appropriated for this object will obviously fall far short of compassing it in anything like a complete way. If a smooth pavement be laid throughout the whole of the city, as it should be, the total expenditure cannot in the end amount to less than six or seven times that sum. It is essential that this money should be expended to the best advantage—something that can be accomplished only by carefully scrutinizing every act of the Public Works Department.

It is something of a pity that Commissioner Gilroy is not likely to take that projected trip of his to Europe, for if he did he might obtain some information, of which at present he is totally oblivious. He has made the statement a number of different times that an asphalt pavement is unfit for heavy traffic, and that in such of our city streets as are used by weighty trucks a stone block pavement will still have to be employed. The facts on which he bases this statement are still to be discovered. There is no thoroughfare in this city over which the traffic is one-third as heavy as it is over Cheapside in London, yet Cheapside has been paved with compressed asphalt for more than a dozen years, during which time no relaying has been necessary. In the same way the wooden pavement on the Strand has withstood a traffic more continuous than any which passes over a New York thoroughfare. Wooden pavements may not be suited to our own climate and temperature. They have certainly failed in the past, whether from bad laying and lack of repair, or from some less remediable cause, it is difficult at present to state. But asphalt has been tested so widely, under such different climatic conditions and under such an enormous vehicular traffic, that to doubt its suitability is to doubt proved facts. It will be tantalizing, indeed, if such a thoroughfare as Broadway is to continue as unbearably noisy as it is at present, simply because the authorities are not acquainted with ths commonest facts of the experience of other countries in pavements. The heavier the traffic the greater the need for a smooth pavement.

Matthew Arnold, in his polemical days, objected strenuously to a certain truss factory, which in his estimation disfigured Trafalgar square, for the obvious reason that public places ought to be devoted to public uses. The principal is unknown in this city, because we have so few public buildings; yet we should judge that few as a matter of theory would object to the converse rule, that a purely decorative structure should be erected in a place where it can be seen without being searched for. Apparently, however, such an idea has never entered the heads of the committee in charge of the Washington Memorial Arch. They proceed unhesitatingly on their task of collecting money from many to the advantage of a few, viz., the few whose business or residence bring them to the neighborhood of Washington square. In another part of this issue will be found a description of the changes which are taking place in that district. It is ceasing to become a residence section. Wholesale houses are beginning to locate thereabouts. As yet, indeed, they have not taken possession of 5th avenue, below 14th street; but just as surely as twice two is four, so surely will the mansions on lower 5th avenue be devoted to commercial uses. Is it not, then, the height of absurdity to place the single piece of purely decorative architecture of which New York can boast of in a locality that deserves decoration about as much as a telegraph pole deserves wood-carving? Is it not the height of absurdity to hide away a structure that exists for the purpose of being paraded in a section that will become less and less central as years go by? As well might you place Bartholdi's Statue on Blackwell's Island, or the Brooklyn Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Arch in Williamsburgh. Arches, unlike certain flowers, are not "born to blush unseen." It is an unfortunate fact that we have no public place in New York upon the fitness of which for the purpose everyone would agree. But that there are better situations than Washington place no one can well deny.

Who Gets the Increase?

Among the publications of the University of Pennsylvania issued this month is a monograph on "The Principles of Rational Taxation," by Prof. Simon N. Patten, who is, perhaps, the most original thinker of the school of economists in this country. In this treatise Prof. Patten recognises the inadequacy of our present system of levying taxes to meet the increasing demand of city and local governments for improvements, and seeks to find, through an analysis of our industrial condition, some new point of view through which a solution of the perplexing problem of taxation may be solved.

A great saving in labor through improved methods of production has been going on for fifty years or more, and in tracing out the ultimate distribution of the increased revenues derived from this saving, the writer undertakes to discover the key to the problem.

"Where are the increased revenues absorbed?" he asks, and his answer is, "they are wasted (using this term in a broad sense) under our present system of industrial competition by retail dealers and rival business firms in extensive advertising, in employing agents to introduce their goods and in other such methods of attracting trade. Through the rivalry of competitors the prices of goods are kept up to their highest limit—that is, to the point beyond which the demand of the consuming public would be reduced. The upper limit of prices under a regime of competition such as exists to-day in this country is determined, as monopoly prices are determined, by the falling off in the demand for goods. In other words he asserts, "we have practically the same limit to the rise of prices for a system of wasteful competition as for monopolies." Thus, having reached this position, Prof. Patten argues by analogy that because a tax on a monopoly cannot be shifted, as is held by leading economists, a tax upon retail trade would be desirable for the reason that it also could not be shifted, the tax falling, as he maintains, upon the revenues which are now wasted in aggressive competition.

Prof. Patten points out still another application which may be made of this theory which he has evolved. In many of our leading industries instability of prices obtain on account of the present relation of production to consumption. Between the upper limit of prices in these industries fixed by the demands of the consumer and the lower limit fixed by the cost of production there is a large field for fluctuation. A tax upon these industries would tend to render stable the prices of the commodities produced, for the reason, Prof. Patten argues, that it would absorb a quantity of wealth which now goes to speculators and combinations, and would keep the prices nearer the upper limit. The price of sugar, for instance, which fluctuates between the lower limit, 5 cents per pound, and the upper limit, 7 cents, would upon the imposition of a tax of 1 cent be limited in its margin of fluctuation to only 1 cent.

This is in brief an outline of the somewhat lengthy and ingenious discussion of the principles of rational taxation by Prof. Patten. The need of more revenues by the city and local governments with which to make improvements is too evident for comment. Prof. Patten has also presented what is regarded by leading economists as the correct view of the nature of monopolies and the effect of a tax upon them. Monopolies like the Standard Oil Company cannot fix arbitrarily the price of oil. The highest price they can charge for oil is limited by the demand of the consumer of oil. All that is new in what is presented in this monograph on taxation rests upon the statement—begged rather than proven—that "we have practically the same limit to the size of prices for a system of wasteful competition as for monopolies," to which exception must be taken. The very nature of industrial competition precludes the idea that prices under such a regime remain at the upper limit—the limit where they are always kept by monopolies. Competition always carries with itself the idea of under-selling; of placing a commodity on the market at a cheaper price or a better commodity at the same price. The tendency of industrial competition is to bring prices toward their lower limit rather than to force them towards the higher. The cost of advertisement and of attracting custom generally comes from the increased trade which it brings to the individual retail merchant. He gains at the expense of his less enterprising competitors. The statement that the expense of acquainting the public with goods offered for sale falls upon the consumer in the shape of enhanced prices cannot be sustained. Wanamaker & Co. cannot charge their customers higher prices than do small retail merchants whose advertising does not extend beyond a few placards placed in their show windows. In the general run goods subject to free competition are sold at prices which are fair considered with reference to the remuneration received by all members of an industrial community. If retail merchants received more than their share of the whole wealth of the community the competition of others who would be led to enter this business would reduce the profits in this line to their relative place. Of course there are certain exceptions to the general rule of the working of competition, but none so great as would warrant the position assumed by Professor Patten, that the tending of competition is owards bringing prices to their upper limit. Now, consider what the effect of a tax upon retail trade would be, understanding the nature of competition as we have presented it. The tax would be at once shifted to the consumer, who would be forced to pay a higher price for all goods bought or consumed. Unlike the expense of advertising a tax upon retail trade would not enlarge the custom of dealers. The effect of this tax would be equivalent to that of a license tax. The same discouraging results would follow from its imposition as exist at present in the Southern States where the system of licensing businesses is largely in vogue. A tax on retail trade if made local would have the double effect of raising prices, and of driving business to other parts of the country where trade is free from such a tax. Theoretically speaking, it may be said that the upper limit of prices is determined under a competitive system, and for monopolies alike, but this upper limit is never more than temporarily, if at all, reached in a community where competition holds sway. Professor Patten's error seems to consist in assuming a something which might theoretically occur as actually occurring. His suggestion for rendering prices suitable is based on the same false assumption. Besides, a tax on industries such as he suggests must confessedly be a national tax, and in the way of this stands a constitutional objection.

The annual report of the English Post-office department for 1889 confirms the position taken by THE RECORD AND GUIDE, that the telegraph system of Great Britain—owned and controlled by the government—is not the total failure that those in this country working in the interests of our private telegraph companies would have us believe. Excluding the payment of interest on the capital sum raised for the purchase of the telegraphs in 1870, the actual receipts from the English telegraphs for the year 1888–89 exceeded the expenditures by the sum of £53,860. If to these receipts are added—as should be done in making a fair comparison between English telegraphs and our own—£33,415, the estimated value of free services performed by the Post-office telegraph department for other government offices, the net revenues from the English telegraph for the year 1889 would read £87,275. Besides this gratuitous service, £36,842 were expended during the last year in extending the system, which sum is not added to capital stock and interest drawn upon it as is done by private telegraph companies in this country. The people at large receive the benefit of this saving under the English system.

The growing feeling of satisfaction with which the inland public telegraph system of England is regarded led the government to take advantage of the opportunity of assuming control of the submarine telegraph system at the expiration of that company's charter in March last. Through agreement with France, Germany, Holland and Belgium, communication is now conducted by England with those countries at a uniform rate of 2 cents per word, with a minimum of 10 cents for a message. England, since she assumed control of the inland telegraphs, has reduced the initial charge for telegrams from 24.4 cents per ten words to 12.2 cents. On account of this reduction receipts from the telegraph have not since equalled expenditures—excluding interest—in any year. In 1887 there was a deficit on account of telegraphs of £175,000. In 1888, however, receipts fell only slightly below expenditures, and during 1889, as we have seen, a net revenue of over £50,000 was yielded by the English telegraph to go towards the payment of interest on the original investment. In the light of these facts it is ridiculous to assert that the English telegraph system is inefficiently managed and is operated at a great loss.

It is to be hoped that the Republican majority in the Legislature will assist Governor Hill in passing a bill similar to the one passed in New Jersey last session, reforming our methods of road making and road preserving. Our present system is to all intents and purposes similar to that which prevailed in France previous to the revolution—that is, they are treated as things of local and particular and not of general importance. In some countries tolls are collected for their maintenance, while all the work is in the hands of ignorant farmers who begrudge the trouble and neglect their duties. It is, however, hardly necessary to detail the disadvantages of our present system. The subject is as familiar a one as the crush on the elevated roads, and the condition of our streets; and if past experience is any guide to the future, things will be remedied about the same time the problem of evil is solved. The indifference of the public and the preoccupation of the Legislature with the more important matter of getting ahead of Governor Hill, render existing evils more or less a part of the nature of things—no more to be avoided than death and taxes. If we venture upon a hope that some time before the day of judgment that our roads will be made by people who know how and for the benefit of the people that use them, it must be taken rather than an indication of a wish than an expectation.

Apparently it is going to be a difficult problem with the French Government how ultimately to dispose of the Eiffel Tower. After a certain number of years it reverts to the central authorities, who seemingly do not know what in the world to do with it. The military department has been making experiments to test the utilty of the Tower in the event of another siege of Paris as a post or station for optical telegraph purposes, and there was a plan proposed to put it in communication with the spire of the Rouen Cathedral. This had to be abandoned owing to the lower level of the Rouen spire; and at present it looks as if the ultimate function of M. Eiffel's aspiring structure will be that of a buoy for captive balloons. This surely is not a worthy ending for so magnificent a scheme, and it is a queer commentary on the value of an Exposition, when the feature which, more than any other, made it notable should finally be put to so insignificant a use. The managers of our own Exhibition should ponder on this fact; and it will be the better for us if they come to the conclusion not to build our own World's Fair after Coney Island models. In connection with the Eiffel Tower it should always be remembered that, in spite of the popular sensation it created, its designer did not receive the first prize for engineering skill. That prize was awarded to the engineer who designed the machinery hall with its enormous span. Consequently the Tower was not even the best piece of mechanical work done for the Exposition, irrespective of the fact that the Tower was of no possible use under the sun beyond that of hoisting people up in the air one-thirtieth as high as they could have gone by natural means.

The Need for Municipal Statistics.

No one who follows closely the daily course of industrial affairs can fail to be impressed with the fact that the great majority of questions now pressing for solution pertains directly or indirectly to municipalities. The economic history of New York during the year which has just closed is little more than a record of the efforts of this city to meet the growing demands of an increasing population. Notwithstanding the efforts thus expended it is discouraging to find that we have before us for solution at the beginning of this new year practically the same problems which confronted us at the beginning of last. We are still endeavoring in vain through the means of the effete tax system to raise a revenue that will come somewhere near equaling in amount a yearly expenditure increasing out of proportion to the growth of population. Our streets are still continually being torn up by private gas and street car companies. The present policy of permitting competing companies to weave a network of electric wires throughout the city has brought disaster, and has more than once left parts of our city in total darkness. The public schools are not sufficient in number to accommodate our children. Then there is the street pavement problem; the tenement house problem, and the problem of caring for our paupers and insane—yes, and dozens of other problems of slightly less importance to the prosperity and peace of our city. The necessity for some speedy and sure solution of these problems is rendered the more pressing on account of the observed tendency of population to concentrate in cities. In 1800 only one out of every twenty-five of the population of this country resided in cities. Now, over one-fourth of our population is urban. This tendency to concentration is seen in all European countries as well as in our own. Along with this grouping of population in cities goes, as suggested above, an even greater increase of local expenditure. It is safe to say that in many, if not in a majority of the cities of the United States legitimate expenditures have increased twice as fast during the last ten or twenty years as has the population of these same cities. Examples are numerous of city expenditures increasing much more rapidly than in this proportion. Now, what is the drift of all this? What do these observations tend to show? Simply this—the truth of the statement with which we started, that the real problems of to-day are municipal problems, and furthermore that these problems become more complicated and more difficult of solution each year.

The first difficulty in the way of a practical solution of municipal questions is that citizens as a class are ignorant of the operation of their own city government, and that the city authorities are not sufficiently acquainted with the needs of the citizens. The only means the average person has of becoming acquainted with municipal affairs is through the meagre annual reports of the city and through casual "hit and miss" accounts of council proceedings, etc., in the daily papers. On the other hand, the city authorities, however much they may desire to serve the interests of the people, have little information at their command upon which to base any intelligent action outside of the complaints which appear from time to time in the public press. It isn't because our public officials are corrupt that so much waste and extravagance continues to exist unchecked in all dealings with which the city is concerned. The fact is that our municipal officers are ignorant—pardonably so perhaps because of the lack of any complete source of municipal knowledge to which they can refer for definite information regarding what the people need and the effect of various existing systems and regulations upon them.

From what has been said it is at once clear what is needed

There should be established in each of the large cities at least of this country a municipal statistical bureau, composed of the representatives of every important interest which affects the community generally, the work of the bureau being to investigate thoroughly into the various special fields designed, and to publish the results of their investigations annually in combined form. This plan is not at all impracticable. It simply carries out to a general and more detailed extent the present practice of issuing separate limited annual reports. Those persons would naturally be appointed as the statistical board who were at the time doing service in the special lines to be investigated. The expense would not be great and would be easily covered by charging a reasonable sum for this municipal encyclopedia. The Annual Statistics of the City of Paris, recently published, illustrates the practicability of the plan proposed. This work, a large volume of several hundred pages, is annually compiled by the department of statistics of Paris, composed of thirty-six members, at the head of which is the Prefect of the Seine. Part I. of this work gives statistics and general observations concerning the public health, sewers, street cleaning, water supply, etc. Part II. contains statistics on marriage, divorce, births, deaths, sickness, etc. Part III. pertains to municipal finances of Paris, taxes, public works, lighting, post and telegraphs, schools, libraries, etc. A price of 6 francs is charged for each copy to cover the expense of the department. Annual reports of this nature have been issued by the city of Paris for eight years. A more valuable municipal document than this could hardly be conceived of. Through it the city officials become acquainted with the condition of the people whose interests they are sworn to serve, and the people are kept thoroughly informed of the operations of the city government. Unless some such means as these are taken by the large cities of this country to becoming acquainted with themselves, little progress can be hoped for in the solution of municipal questions.

The value of statistics as a means of helping to solve economic problems is just coming to be clearly realized. Text books on logic give only two methods of arriving at conclusions—the inductive and the deductive. Very recently the new economic school in this country have placed in equal rank with these a third method—the statistical. Our cities can not too soon recognize the value of this statistical method.

We print in another column a review of the condition of the Health Department in this city, and the work it has done and is doing. This department has been one of the most satisfactory of the branches of the city government. In importance it is scarcely inferior to any; yet, strangely, it has received wonderfully little attention or recognition from the public. Perhaps this accounts for the fact that though it is overburdened with work and its officials are manifestly underpaid, the appropriation it gets from the City Treasury has repeatedly been reduced without arousing any protest from press or the public. In 1885 the appropriation to this department was $469,758. This sum was reduced the following year to $319,800 (!) and for the current year is only $392,200, though in 1889 it was $413,300. This is a false economy. It is very well to keep the tax rate at a low figure, but there are certain of the city departments where efficiency is of much more account than economy—and the Health Department is one of these.

In connection with this matter one or two suggestions can be made. Steps should be taken to consolidate the Health Department and the Building Department, for they are really parts of each other, and nothing is gained by keeping them as distinct organizations. The city should be divided into sections as a railroad is, and in each section there should be a chief officer and a sufficient number of subordinates to see that buildings are safely constructed and maintained in a sanitary condition. Then, too, the building law and the health ordinances should be framed so as to be more elastic than they are, in order to provide for the special conditions that prevail in different sections of the city. For instance, in building very different conditions exist in the lower part of the city and along the river fronts, where piling has often to be used, from those that exist on the west side, where rock has to be blasted before foundations can be laid. So with health ordinances. The east side differs from the west and the north from the south not only in soil and elevation—the natural conditions—but in the character of the inhabitants and what may be termed their social surroundings. No law can be framed to cover all the conditions that exist without being in cases unnecessarily irksome or in others dangerously lax. The chief officers of these sections could familiarize themselves thoroughly with their own district—naturally and socially—and the officers of all the sections of the city could form a board empowered to pass upon any special recommendations that might be suggested from time to time by the members of it. In this way we would have more efficient departments and laws that conformed more closely to existent conditions.

It must not be forgotten that the present revival of trade, both abroad and in this country, makes it certain that, unless unforseen circumstances arise, peace will prevail in Europe for some time to come. If industrialism is the enemy of war, prosperous trade almost absolutely precludes it. Moreover, so far as we can judge from the public utterances of people in power, the influence of both France and Germany will be on the side of peace. President Carnot has expressed himself to the effect that the mission of France is pacific in character, and the Emperor of Germany, in his New Year's letter to Prince Bismarck, was as gentle and as antimilitant as a Southern zephyr. War scares we shall always have so long as we have foreign correspondents in search of news, but few statesmen are brave enough nowadays to face the paralysis of trade which must result from the outbreak of hostilities. Until a short time ago the chief peril to European peace lay in the ferment of opinion in France. People were in doubt whether the Republic would not soon be succeeded by a Dictator, Emperor, or King with a record to make by a brilliant foreign policy. But now that France is contented with Republicanism in government and mediocrity in statesmanship, Europe may breathe again in the assurance that peace is in no danger for the time being, and America may read of war scares in foreign dispatches with the cheerful certainty that nobody abroad, except the correspondent, is very much agitated over the prospects.

Our Letter-Bag—Are Builders to Blame?

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The attention which the street cleaning controversy, the Mayor's message, the editorials in the Evening Post and in your own valuable paper have recently drawn to the defective methods of dealing with our city streets, has induced me to express the conclusions on this point which many years of experience have made me sensible of.

I reside some few blocks beyond the northerly limits of the Central Park, and within the past eight years have seen the streets around and about my house regulated, graded and sewered, and the various improvements made for the purpose of fitting them for new habitations along their lines. Anything more irrational or more wasteful than the system now generally pursued can scarcely be conceived of. In the first place the order is given to have the street regulated and graded. Thereupon the street is leveled to the grade of the longitudinal avenues, either by blasting if it is too high or by filling in dirt if too low. When that is done, the next step is to put a sewer through. The street is then wholly taken up, all the dirt that was dumped in before it was excavated is removed, and a sewer is put down in brick, after the manner of fifty years ago, so that the excretion shall have as much opportunity as possible, through this porous material, to discharge both gases and liquids into the surrounding earth. Thereupon the street is filled in again by sewer contractors who are not subject to the same conditions as those who originally regulated and graded the street, leaving a worse surface than existed before. After that is done, owners of property along its line desiring, with the view to sale to builders, to have the street look pretty, get a pavement plastered down upon it, subjecting the contiguous property to an assessment varying from $125 to $200 a lot. Scarcely has the pavement been laid when the whole street is once more torn up for the purpose of putting down water pipes throughout its length. The pavement, in so far as it has been torn up for that purpose is then relaid by unskilled labor, and immediately thereafter is again torn up and excavated to lay gas pipes for street lighting purposes, and once more relaid by unskilled labor. By this time the street surface looks like the waves of the sea.

Then comes the construction of houses along the line of the street. The fact that the house is to be connected with the sewer running through the middle of the street, and with the gas pipes and water pipes, seems to dawn upon the mind of the owner of the lot as an after-thought, and as each particular house is completed the pavement in front is again torn up and these various connections made; so that a pavement already disturbed three times before the construction of the house is begun is once more disturbed in front of each particular house to the very middle of the street in order to make the several sewer, gas and water connections. By the time it is filled up with buildings and fitted for occupancy between the two avenues that street ought, indeed, to be re-regulated, regraded and repaved.

There is no reason for all this except the petty one of an immediate saving of a small sum of money at the expense of an inevitable outlay, postponed but for a brief period, of at least triple the amount, and a perpetually bad pavement, with the consequent inevitable result of a dirty street, it being impossible to thoroughly clean a street which has an uneven and broken-up surface. Why a connection with each particular branch of communal service, such as sewer, water and gas, or steam heating, if such there be in the street, is not made when such service is laid down and plugged up, so that connections can be made from each lot under the sidewalk without the necessity of communicating with the middle of the street or disturbing it in any way, no one seems to be able to explain. There is no reason why paving should ever be permitted to be done on a street until the various communal services have been first laid within the street. Indeed, the proper way would be to excavate under each street a tunnel which should be a receptacle for all the different services, and, instead of brick constructions, to have the sewers made of iron pipes with vitrified linings and absolutely proof against leakage of any kind. This latter suggestion, however, is probably too far in the future to admit of immediate action and involves an expense, by way of assessment, which property-owners would not be willing immediately to incur. Great progress would be made, however, towards clean streets if each lot were connected with each communal service as it is put down, and if no streets were allowed to be opened after being once paved, except in cases of absolute necessity, and then not by plumbers, etc., but only by the street authorities themselves, thus securing a relaying in substantially as good a manner as it had been laid before. This proposition admits of scarcely any dissent except that which arises from the most shortsighted and anti-social view of the duties which property-owners owe to each other, and in the long run to themselves, It is usual to attribute the sins of omission and commission, of street cleaning, to the misgovernment of our city, and to lay at the door of the County Democracy or of Tammany Hall the responsibility for the bad condition of our streets. But in many respects this is unfair. Bad as our municipal administration is this irrational system could not and would not be tolerated by political officials if there were an intelligent public opinion on the part of the property-owners themselves in opposition to it. I think the narrow selfishness of lot-owners overcomes, in many instances, their true interests, and induces them to sacrifice those interests for the purpose of gratifying a desire for an immediate sale. What I contend for is this: A street, when paved, looks as well without a sewer as with a sewer, and when both sewered and paved it looks quite as well as though each connection were made with each particular lot. It will probably add to the expenses of the property-owner from twenty-five to forty dollars to have these connections made at the time when they are put in instead of paying from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty dollars to have them made when the buildings go up. He prefers to keep his fifty or seventy-five dollars a lot in his pocket, hoping to sell his lot and impose the subsequent expense of one hundred dollars, or thereabouts, on some one else, rather than to be subjected to the additional assessment of possibly twenty-five dollars for making the connections. Not only has he been guilty of a penny wise and pound foolish policy in actual expense, but he has imposed upon himself or the purchaser from him for years thereafter the nuisance and mischief of a bad pavement, which in turn is a leading cause of unclean streets.

Another reason why our streets are not clean is because there is no intelligent public demand for it. Prof. Andrew D. White, after his trip to Europe, where he visited the capitals of Transatlantic countries, is struck by the want of cleanliness in our streets, and expresses himself with force, as he always does, on this point. He and his class, compared in number with the people who, having made their fortunes, for instance, in Portland, Oregon, or in Birmingham, Alabama, come to the city of New York to live, are as one to fifty. The latter having fully availed themselves of the thousand and one opportunities for bettering their condition which this vast country and its great resources affords, take up their abode with their families in the metropolis of the nation, in order to avail themselves of its superior educational and social advantages. To them the streets of New York are both clean and comfortable to the last degree, as compared with the common highways in the interior cities, which are euphamistically called "streets." Our artificial stone or flag sidewalks are vastly superior to the plank walks, more or less dilapidated, upon which the fashion and beauty of Raleigh, Portland, Seattle, Oil City, or Birmingham disport themselves. The profusion of water throughout the houses, the arrangement of our buildings, the many domestic mechanical contrivances found in our city's houses, as compared with the places where the fortunes have been accumulated, are all so comforting in their character and so superior to the arrangements to which they have been accustomed, that they are blinded to its defects. The public opinion thus created is largely the standard to which our government caters instead of the public opinion formulated by our super-refined friends who spend a portion of their lives under the influences of the large cities of the "effete" governments of Europe. There, it is true, they bowl along fine avenues, without a jar or a hitch, in public vehicles, hired for a trifle, in consequence of the little wear and tear occasioned to either horses or carriages by the pavements. There all the instrumentalities of service of the city necessary for the supplying of houses with light, heat, water, and electricity is buried underground, and this work goes on without the knowledge of any person driving over the streets; repairs are easily made, as the subways are large enough to accommodate all that is necessary for communal service, made at one and the same time, and without reference to the speculative interest of the contiguous property-owner, but with special reference to the ultimate comfort and advantage of the residents along the line of such streets and avenues. There is a slight debit account against the undeniable and vast advantages of the liberation of energies which our free institutions bring with them, and one of the items in this account is the necessity of being subjected to a public opinion made up to a considerable degree of a conglomerated mass of capitalists whose ideas of comfort and whose æsthetic wants are at a stage of development very considerably below the standards one would expect to find in a city of New York's metropolitan pretensions and population.

A law should, therefore, be passed requiring the public improvements of a street to be undertaken simultaneously, and not by piecemeal, and that the connections with each particular lot should be then and there made, forbidding the tearing up of the pavement when once put down, except under the supervision and direction of the public authority having charge of the pavement, and requiring each private interest, when the pavement is to be torn up for its benefit, to make a sufficient deposit so as to enable the city to relay the pavement in as good condition as it was before the same was disturbed.

New Books.

"Safe Building," by Louis De Coppet Berg, F. A. I. A., Associate American Society of Civil Engineers. 8vo., cloth, pp. 271, $5. Ticknor & Co., Boston, Mass.

This work purports to be a simple treatise on the practice and theory of building. The reader, as the author informs him, is not presupposed to have any special knowledge except arithmetic, rudimentary algebra and plane geometry. With these it is supposed that anyone will readily understand the mathematical demonstrations and the formulæ given.

As a matter of fact, even in this qualified way the work can not be regarded as a simple treatise or text-book, neither is it a work for the advanced student. It occupies a position between the extremes. If there be a field for such a work Mr. Berg's "Safe Building" will occupy it in a fairly satisfactory way. The objection which the student will at once make is that it is in a degree fragmentary, and the information given is not always in accord with the most recent investigations. The author's style is clear and his definitions intelligible, especially as they are aided by numerous illustrations. For serviceableness the work is badly crippled by want of an index. Throughout the book Mr. Berg uses systematised symbols, which once mastered, undoubtedly render the formulæ he gives easier to read offhand and remember. The practice recommended is invariably good, and makes as the title indicates for "safe" building.

Some of our morning dailies are trembling on the ragged edge of indecency. We are used by this time to scandals, murders and divorces, which, if they appeal largely to a certain morbid and unhealthy curiosity, may nevertheless be subjects of a certain amount of legitimate interest. Moreover, in illustrating these cheerful incidents the enterprising artist is limited as a general thing to portraits of the participators in the calamity, from which nobody suffers except the thing portrayed. But when an enterprising journal under the cover of a woman's department gives information and illustrations about the changes which are taking place in women's underwear, it may reasonably be objected that although the reading matter itself may be no more suggestive and nasty than much of the trivial filth that is published ordinarily by the daily papers, yet in doing this they infringe upon a sphere which can be of no legitimate interest to anybody who cannot obtain ample information in other ways. The illustrations that accompanied the article were such as to engage the attention of a parcel of callow, empty-headed, dirty-minded boys. The Sun, which published such prurient stuff, degrades its office; the writer who prepares it is sincerely to be pitied:

> "I should make very forges of my cheeks
> That would to cinders burn up modesty,
> Did I but speak thy deeds."

It is announced that the Palais Royal, so pregnant with historical associations, both monarchical and republican in character, is threatened with demolition. The glory of other days has long since departed from it. No longer the home of princes, no longer even the playground of Paris, for the last few years it has degenerated into a temporary abiding place for nurse-girls, children and soldiers; its shops have become cheap and garish; its arcades the rendezvous for patent leathered gentlemen who assemble to entrap the unwily tourist and the innocent provincial. Even those who went there to muse on the monument of vanished ages, must have found the surroundings a little disturbing to the serenity of thought. The most imaginative mind would find it hard to realize that it was in the Palais Royal, then thronged with loungers and coffee-house politicians with light-fingered gentlemen and light-reputed ladies, that Camille Desmoulins sprang upon a chair, spoke winged words to his fellow-citizens, and, plucking the leafy sprig from the garden tree for a green cockade, led the gathering crowd to the Faubourg St. Antoine to capture the Bastille. In truth evil days have fallen on the treasure houses of French historical association. Paris is nothing if not a modern city. The Champs Elysees are pleasanter by far than is the Palais Royal. The old pile of buildings, interposed as it is, between the Boulevards and the left bank of the Seine, compels all the traffic between one of these quarters and the other to pass through Rue de Richelieu or Rue Montmartre, to the eminent disadvantage of the morals of the French vehicle drivers. Remove the Palais Royal and the congested streets will be converted into a broad and beautiful boulevard. Plans are being prepared for the purpose by M. Guyot, the Minister of Public Works, and M. Alphand, who was the supervising architect of the Exposition.

It is curious how little the librettists of comic operas in this country see what the essentials of a good piece of work of that kind are. The successes of Gilbert & Sullivan have led, of course, to a great deal of imitation; but the imitations never went further than the copying of his ideas and phrases. Nobody seems to appreciate what the qualities are in Gilbert's work which has led to his success. Our ordinary librettist takes a slip of a story, generally romantic in character, grafts on it some so-called comic characters, and gives it a stage setting in a time that will allow for gorgeous costumes and a free display of female anatomy. There is no reason generally why a particulur song should be sung in a particular place except that the librettist could not get it in anywhere else—that is, the music and the story are not closely enough associated. As for the humor, it depends for the most part on local gags, references to beer and whisky, and a plentiful proportion of slang and silly playing upon words. Yet Gilbert's methods are simple enough and may be advantageously imitated without actually being aped. In his successful operas he has always had some main idea, satirical in kind, the development of which together with his general satireon human nature, have given the libretto its humor. In his scenery, costumes and chorus he has aimed rather at distinctiveness and individuality rather than gorgeousness. Necessarily there is some sort of a love story running through it, and this gives the opportunity for some charming lyrics and madrigals. In these cases he has never allowed his humor to get the better of his sentiment. The possibilities of this sort of thing are limitless; and it is singular that Gilbert's methods have not been followed more widely by others. The fact of the matter is that Gilbert is about the only man who brings any real sense of humor or literary feeling to the task. Our ordinary libretto is poor sort of trash.

The Mayor, it is said, will proceed with the work of selecting a plan and obtaining estimates on the new Municipal building, in the City Hall Park, should the Legislature take no action this winter to locate it elsewhere.

Some Examples in Terra Cotta.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Not fashioned out of gold, like Hero's throne,
Not forged of iron like the thunderbolts
Of Zeus omnipotent, or like other works
Wrought by my hands at Lemnos or Olympus,
But moulded in soft clay, that unresisting
Yields itself to the touch, this lovely form
Before me stands, perfect in every part.
—Longfellow's "Masque of Pandora."

That the most beautiful and perfect forms were produced by the ancients in baked clay is well known to modern archæologists. Pliny mentions the fact that Dibutades, the potter, moulded in terra cotta the shadow of the profile of his daughter's lover. In describing some ancient piece of clay-work an able writer speaks of a group of figures representing a soul led by Hermes Psychopompus to the bark of Charon, and refers to it as a scene imagined with "tender grace and real pathos." The Greeks used terra cotta for reliefs and statuettes, as well as for ornaments for personal adornment. Terra cotta checks gave admission to the Roman amphitheatre, and medals of clay were presented to the victors in the arena. The Louvre contains some very fine examples of ancient terra cotta work, as does the British Museum, where the beautiful statue is to be seen of the Muse Urania, dating back to the First Century. In the Middle Ages the Germans and Italians produced some splendid work in this material, of which the examples at Brandenburg and Sangermünde and the cathedrals at Monza and Crema are living examples. The church of St. Catherine, at Brandenburg, is said to be decorated "in the most lavish way with delicate tracery and elaborate string courses and cornices, enriched with foliage, all modeled in clay." In the South Kensington Museum, London, there is a portrait bust in terra cotta dating back to the Fifteenth Century, an excellent example of the Florentine work of that day. In England terra cotta lost its foothold after the elimination of the Roman ascendancy, and did not make its appearance to any extent until the early part of the Sixteenth Century, and then only in Norfolk, Essex and a few other counties.

The manufacture of ornamental brick work in the United States was first attempted about thirty-six years ago. The early Dutch settlers, it is true, used brick in various forms imported from Holland, and traces of English brick brought here in ante-revolution days are to be found in this country; but terra cotta in its present state of manufacture did not gain a foothold until some twenty-three years ago. Now it is used all over the country, and in New York City and vicinity some unusually fine examples of the work are to be seen. I called upon J. G. Evatt, the local representative of the Boston Terra Cotta Company, who have their office in the Times building, and there I was shown innumerable protographs of terra cotta work, all in special design. Some of these were of a most elaborate and delicate character, many of them being made after the drawings of architects. These included panels of every size and description; tiles, medallions, pedestals, finials, crestings, wall coping, and all kinds of constructive and ornamental work. Among these I selected two examples to illustrate the character of the work designed and manufactured by the company. These are shown on this page. Illustration No. 1 represents a figure in life size, modeled from life in the studio of the company in Boston, and is a capital example of an original piece of modeling, fired and placed in the building fresh from the artist's mould, so to speak. Illustration No. 2 was modeled after the architect's design, and the original modeling baked and used. Both illustrations show the excellence and perfection of work done in terra cotta nowadays.

Desiring to see some of the samples shown in the photograph in actual constructive work, the company's representative referred me to several buildings. I spent a few hours in looking up some of these examples, the product of the Boston company, and went up town to St. Mark's place to see the new building of the "Deutsch-Amerikanische Schutzen Gesellschaft." The facade of this building contains a large panel of the company's manufacture, in salmon colors. It represents the objects of the society—archery, shooting, etc.—with the United States flag and emblem intertwined, and is a remarkably fine work.

Cutting across to the recently completed addition to the St. Denis Hotel, on Broadway and 11th street, I found the street front of the extension entirely in terra cotta trimmings, the lintels and bell courses being noticeable, as well as the festoons of flowers over the arched entrance. The excellent blending of the colors is worthy of attention. This front was designed by Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell.

The next building visited was that of the Childrens' Aid Society, on the northwest corner of 2d avenue and 44th street, where some really excellent panels are to be seen. The company did these from special designs by Vaux & Radford. The leafwork in these panels comes out with a distinctness and a beauty that is almost realistic, and one is in doubt which to admire most, the product of the draughtman's pencil or the work produced by the Boston factory. The well-known furniture building on 3d avenue, near and on 59th street, opposite Bloomingdale's, was next visited, and some excellent work in terra cotta is displayed in the front, the Mooresque arches being almost absolutely perfect. On 67th street, near 3d avenue, the company has considerable work in the new building for the Mount Sinai Hospital, from plans by Brunner & Tryon. The medallion, shield and swag panels display excellent manufacture, while the Corinthian honeysuckle, which is part of the design, is a most delicate and beautiful piece of work. On 89th street, west of 3d avenue, a row of the Rhinelander houses, from plans by H. J. Hardenbergh, show a number of fine panels and copings, as well as cornice work, imposts, springers and wood mouldings, all in the terra cotta work of the Boston company, including the balustrades on the second story. One panel, representing a griffin, merits attention. On the south east corner of 91st street and Lexington avenue, a row of flats are being completed which contain a very considerable portion of their front in terra cotta, harmonizing with the brick, and the effect is certainly excellent from all points of vantage. These flats show what can be accomplished by a proper and judicious blending of color and designing.

1. PANEL IN EXTERIOR OF STANDARD THEATRE, PHILADELPHIA.

The Boston Terra Cotta Company are, I am told, continually experimenting, with the object of making improvements in the manufacture of terra cotta work. They stand in the very front in this country at present in the character of their workmanship. Their facilities for quick shipment enables them to deliver their stock goods in New York within twenty-four hours' notice.

That the demand for terra cotta work in the construction of buildings is sure to increase very largely in the future no one can doubt, when its comparative cheapness and utility are considered. Especially is this destined to be the case when such splendid work is produced as that displayed in the two illustrations which are given herewith. AJAX.

How the Fifteenth Ward is Changing.

AN ENTIRE DISTRICT IN TRANSITION—DWELLINGS AND SMALL STORES BEING REPLACED BY LARGE AND COSTLY BUILDINGS—OLD-TIME OWNERS GIVING WAY TO NEW-COMERS—HOW SOME CROSS-TOWN AND SIDE STREETS ARE IMPROVING.

The remarkable changes taking place in a large section of the 15th Ward cannot fail to have been noticed by many property-owners and business men in the locality. To what extent these changes have taken place is hardly appreciated by those whose interests are in other parts of the city, and who rarely pass through the district which is described below. With the object of ascertaining the extent of the selling and building movement in a large part of this ward, we have searched the records of conveyances and projected buildings from January 1, 1889, till within a few days ago, and the following list shows how much property has changed hands, and by whom it has been purchased. In addition, we give a list of the new buildings projected or erected during the period named, and it will be found that they involve a considerable expenditure. The section covered in this article is bounded by Waverley place on the north, and West Houston street on the south, and takes in all the streets between Broadway and Macdougal street on the east and west. The cause of the transition of this section is not far to seek. Broadway is already overcrowded and rents on that great thoroughfare are so high that many business men, on account either of economy or necessity, have felt that they can transact their business almost equally as well, if not, indeed, as satisfactorily, on the side streets as they could on the main artery. Hence the private dwellings, small dwellings with stores, and other buildings erected in the days of our fathers and grandfathers, have had to give way to the march of events. We consequently see the private dwellings of a few years ago replaced in many directions by large business structures.

Bleecker street, west of Broadway, shows the greatest change. Among the investors in property on that street during the past year are Leo Schlesinger, the well-known toy manufacturer, and Myer Foster, the cigar manufacturer; Rachel Cohnfeld, wife of the real estate investor; Sidenberg Bros., the importers; Jacob Blumauer, the exporter; Messrs. Foster & Hilson, the cigar manufacturers; Jeremiah C. Lyons, the builder; a Cincinnati capitalist; A. B. Hellrung, a member of the family of furniture manufacturers; Bleyer Bros., the paper manufacturers, and a building and investment company. On West Houston street, T. J. & G. Jenkins, the builders, and John Lynn, the Broadway publisher, have been purchasers. On West 3d street, F. A. Seitz, the builder; Thos. E. Crimmins, the contractor; Julius Dreyfus, the 3d avenue cigar dealer; Louis Schultz, the capitalist; G. W. Tubbs, the lawyer; Moses Foltz, furs, and M. A. & H. Newmann, furs, appear as buyers; while on West 4th street the purchasers included Adolph & Emanuel Alexander, the Grand street fancy goods dealers; a Poughkeepsie capitalist; L. & S. Sachs, furs, and a Baptist church. Property on East Washington place was transferred to Henry Fatten, the feather dealer; Fred. Loeser, the dry-goods merchant; Naumburg, Kraus & Lauer, the clothing merchants, and Geo. W. Murray, the Wall street lawyer. On Waverley place, Jacob Hirsh, the lace importer, appears among the buyers, as well as an investor from Georgia.

Turning to the streets running parallel with Broadway we find that on Greene street some of the parties already mentioned were buyers, and among others were Seaman A. Swenarton, a Franklin street merchant; Ed. C. Oppenheim, the civil engineer; Hugo J. Potosky, the Broadway cloak manufacturer; M. Guggenheim, the lace importer; Max Goldfrank, dry goods, and another Georgian. On Wooster street, Geo. Walter bought the buildings in which he conducts his dyeing business; and among the other buyers on that street was Nicholas Espenschied, the Nassau street hat maker. On the other remaining streets the transfers were all, or nearly all, to parties in interest. The following is the list:

HOW PRICES HAVE ADVANCED.

The occupation of the side streets by business firms has, of course, had its effect in raising values. Some instances of this may be given.

The northeast corner of Greene street and Waverley place sold at auction in 1882 and 1885 for $66,300. It was resold recently for $150,000. The property is 57.6x132.11 in size, and was purchased from Lipman Toplitz and Stewart Brown by Leo Schlesinger and Joseph Hecht.

The two lots on the northwest corner of Bleecker and Greene streets were sold in May last to Leo Schlesinger and Myer Foster for $100,000 and a month later were resold to Jeremiah C. Lyons for $123,000. The latter filed plans for an eight-story building to be erected on the site, to cost $135,000, and this, although only up to the fifth story, was a few weeks ago sold to Marcus Kohner for $315,000. Presuming that the expense of the building will not exceed the estimates, the land and building will have cost $258,000, and Mr. Lyons will have made a profit on the venture of $57,000.

A gentleman well posted, said: "About a year ago lots on Greene street, between Bleecker and West 3d streets, would have sold for $25,000. Now they will sell for $45,000 to $50,000."

The northeast corner of East Washington place and Mercer street was sold to L. & S. Sachs, in May last, for $99,000. It is reported that the property has since been resold for $126,000. It contains less than two lots, part of the New York Hotel, and in size is 52x91.9x52x91.7. A large building will, it is said, be erected on the site.

A half part of the northwest corner of Bleecker and Wooster streets, 42x74.10 in size, was transferred on April 20, 1889, to Howard Conkling for $19,000, which was equivalent to $38,000 for the entire property. On December 23d, six months later, it was sold to M. Newmann et al. for $50,000.

WHAT THE AGENTS SAY.

A talk with a few of the principal agents in the wholesale district elicited some interesting points.

Leon Tanenbaum said: "The movement of the dry goods and other wholesale houses has been more and more northward. It has also been slightly westward, but more to the north than the west. The houses that have moved from Broadway to the side streets have done so because they found they could do their business as well there as they could on the great thoroughfare itself. When Alfred Benjamin & Co. left Broadway and took possession of the eight-story building on the southeast corner of Bleecker and Greene streets, just two blocks from Broadway, everybody thought they had made a bad move, but from my personal contact with members of the firm I know that they have not only not lost business, but have done a largely increased business since. They have also drawn several other wholesale houses around them."

"What is the difference between rents on Broadway and on a side street like, say, Bleecker? Let us suppose the case of two eight-story modern fireproof buildings, each 50x100 in size and planned exactly alike, and that the one was on Broadway, north of Bleecker street, and the other on Bleecker street, within a block or two of Broadway. How would the rents run in each building?" asked the interviewer.

"Well, if they were rented in the usual manner—that is, the first story and basement to one party, and the balance to another—there would be a difference of 25 per cent. to the benefit of the Broadway building."

"Suppose you state what rents they would bring if leased as a whole or by floors."

"Well," said Mr. Tanenbaum, "if rented in the regular way, such a building as you describe, located on Broadway, would bring $8,000 for the first floor and basement and $15,000 for the seven floors above, in all $23,000. If on Bleecker street, such a building would bring $6,000 for the store and basement and $11,000 to $12,000 for the seven floors above. If rented out in floors, the Broadway building would rent as follows: First story and basement, $8,000; second story, $4,000; third story, $2,750; fourth story $2,500; fifth story, $2,250; sixth story, $2,000; seventh story, $1,800; eighth story, about $1,650—in all $24,950. The Bleecker street building would rent as follows: First story and basement, $6,000; second story $2,500; third story, $2,000; fourth story, $1,800; fifth story, $1,600; sixth story, $1,500; seventh story, $1,400; eighth story, $1,200—in all $18,000."

It would therefore seem at about the above rents that the Broadway store and basement would rent 33⅓ per cent. better than the Bleecker street store and basement, and that if rented out en bloc the upper floors would rent for about 20 per cent. better, and if separately about 30 per cent. better.

"Is the market getting overstocked with the new buildings on the side streets?" asked the writer.

"No," was the reply. "The present demand is good enough to permit of six to ten more large buildings being erected in the locality you speak of. The rents on Broadway will probably be affected by these buildings, which come into direct competition with them. The buildings can be rented more readily on the side streets because the rents are smaller. The class of buildings wanted are those with lofts, arranged for the wholesale trade. No office buildings are required. Speaking of the saving in rents by going on side streets I can only say that Alfred Benjamin & Co. would have had to pay $50,000 rent on Broadway for their present building, instead of which they leased it at $24,000 per annum, which in ten years is a saving of $260,000. Of course, they were almost the pioneers on Bleecker street, and their building would rent for considerably more now."

Daniel Birdsall & Co. said: "The movement from Broadway on to the side streets has taken place because people on Broadway occupying large premises found that the room they required made it very expensive in rent. They therefore looked for less costly quarters. The great advance in the business of the wholesale houses has been wonderful. Ten or fifteen years ago a house that occupied an entire building covering one city lot was considered in the front rank, whereas now an important house can occupy five or six city lots. Their expenses have so largely increased that many of them decided to go on the side streets, where they get more room for less money. Shrewd investors saw what was coming. They bought lots on the side streets and built fine modern structures to accommodate the big merchants. The latter have rented these buildings and are perfectly satisfied with the bargain. Many of the side streets, south of Canal, are as good for investment as Broadway itself, and this movement is gradually working northward. If the owners of Broadway property who own second and third-rate buildings would modernize them, getting in elevators, steam heat, etc., they would find a great demand for them and the east side streets would not be used as much as they are, for, after all, merchants like to be on Broadway. Strangers from all parts who come here to buy their goods generally make for Broadway, and it is that great artery which attracts them as well as city men. It always has been and always will be the leading thoroughfare. This movement is extending northward and in a few years it is not unlikely that the wholesale houses will be thickly strewn as far north as 14th street."

"What return can investors make on Broadway property?"

"About 6 per cent.," was the reply. "In some cases 7 and 8 per cent. if they make a judicious selection and manage their property carefully. In one case known to us 8 per cent. net was made after a modern building had been erected, and if the estate would have taken a mortgage of half the value of the property at 4 per cent. the equity would have netted 10 per cent. interest."

The Delay in Street Openings.

THE CORPORATION COUNSEL'S NEW DEPARTURE.

The property-owners of the City of New York, and especially those in the upper wards, will be pleased to learn that Corporation Counsel Clark is instituting a reform in his office whereby proceedings in street openings will be much accelerated in future. For many years past they have been groaning under delays which have been unnecessary, and which have been the result of a want of appreciation of the necessities of the situation, together with a red-tapeism which no previous Corporation Counsel seems to have had the "grit" to grapple with.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE has for several years past been urging upon the commissioners appointed in matters of street openings to act with greater promptitude. It has also asked whether the city government or the courts cannot do something to compel these commissioners to do the work for which they were appointed. The order of the court, when such commissioners are appointed, is in every case that the "said commissioners make their report in the premises without unnecessary delay." But there is Tremont avenue, for instance, in which proceedings were initiated so far back as September 30, 1884, yet the report of the commissioners in the matter has not yet been made to the court, and it will probably be eight or nine years from the time proceedings were commenced before that avenue is opened for public use. Other instances, more or less glaring, might be multiplied.

Corporation Counsel Clark was called upon the other day by a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE. Mr. Clark said: "Since I came into office I have found considerable difficulty in getting at proceedings in the matter of street openings. I found that other people had the same difficulty, and eventually I felt that in the interest of the public it was necessary for me to remove one or two officers and institute a new system whereby we could tell exactly where we stood and where the public could learn at a glance how each particular street opening matter was progressing. In the past this information has been in the hands of an official who, while holding the appointment of clerk of street openings, has kept the information largely in his own possession, and has had no tabulated and regularly arranged information which could be seen at a glance by property-owners, who have a perfect right to the information. I propose to change all this. The Comptroller has offered me the use of two of his rooms in the Stewart building. These are now being prepared for the bureau, which is to be presided over by a lawyer who is conversant with the law on the subject, and he will be glad to give any information to property-owners who may ask for it. The rooms I have obtained adjoin those of the secretary of the Board of Street Opening and Improvement, so that the two offices will be next to each other, as they ought to be, to save unnecessary trouble to property-owners and others in search of information."

The following letter to Clerk Berry will explain the nature of the change which the Corporation Counsel has resolved upon:

CARROLL BERRY, Esq., Clerk of Street Openings:

SIR—I have decided that all proceedings to open streets should be conducted wholly under the direct supervision of this office, and it is my intention to put such a plan in operation after January 1, 1890. Will you please allow Mr. John P. Dunn, assistant in charge of street openings, to familiarize himself with the details of the proceedings now pending in your office. I shall ask you to turn over to me, on the date above mentioned, all the maps, papers and records in street opening matters that have come under your charge. Very respectfully,

WM. H. CLARK, Counsel to the Corporation.

The Corporation Counsel, in a further talk, said: "For the delay in opening streets this office has been largely responsible in the past. I have just been long enough here to understand this, and that is why I am devoting considerable time and attention to reform the whole matter. I shall take steps to urge commissioners in street opening matters, who have not been doing the work for which they were appointed, to proceed promptly with it. If they cannot find the time, owing to personal business necessities, to meet frequently and do the necessary work, I shall ask them to resign, and have others appointed in their place who will be able and willing to do the work. And in all further appointments of commissioners I will obtain a promise from the commissioners that they will meet at least four or five times weekly. I am determined that the delays which have hitherto taken place shall not occur during my administration of this office. If streets are opened, improvements will be made upon them, and the city's assessments will not only be increased, but property-owners will be benefited. Any city official who stands in the way of these improvements not doing his duty to the people."

The Builders' National Convention.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Considerable interest is manifested in the National Convention of Builders, which is to take place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. A deputation from New York left for St. Paul yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, by the Erie road, and comprised fourteen members of the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, seven being delegates and seven "alternates." The delegates are Messrs. Richard Deeves, A. J. Campbell, A. S. Dickenson, John M. Canda, Chas. A. Cowan, John J. Roberts and W. C. Smith; and the alternates Messrs. O. T. Mackey, E. W. Fisher, Gustavus Isaacs, Ely. W. Redfield, Jacob S. Browne, J. B. Mulry and A. E. Stone. Marc Eidlitz goes as a director of the National Association, and John J. Tucker as vice-president. The two latter left for St. Paul on Wednesday afternoon.

From talks with members of the New York delegation and their friends it appears that the majority personally favor the granting of the eight-hour law. When it comes to a ballot, however, it will depend largely upon how the delegates from other cities vote as to the manner in which New York votes. The general impression is that the delegates from the East will generally favor the eight-hour day, and that the delegates from the West will oppose it. The following talks with New York representatives to the convention will throw some light on the question.

Richard Deeves, chairman of the New York delegation from the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, said: "I do not wish to say anything that will tie my hands before I go to the convention, but I can say that the majority of the New York delegates, as far as I can gather, feel that the metropolis does not want to be handicapped with an eight-hour day if other cities are going to have a ten-hour day. Eventually the eight-hour day will have to be conceded. There are so many men unemployed that we will have to shorten the hours to employ them."

"What effect the shorter day would have upon outstanding contracts?"

"Well, there would be a loss to contractors, of course, who have contracts that would span over into the shorter days; but that would be a temporary matter. The West, I think, will oppose the eight-hour day, as they are reaping the advantage of the long hours. If the Western cities show any inclination to vote for the reduced hours I think the East will support them almost unanimously."

"Is there any foundation for the impression that men will do as much work in eight hours as they will in nine?"

"No, sir; that's all humbug. I think the general effect of voluntarily granting the reduced hours of labor will be beneficial to builders and create a good feeling on the part of the men toward the employers, and that the men will work more cheerfully in consequence; but it would be saying too much that a man can squeeze nine hours' work into eight."

Delegate John J. Roberts said: "I have no hesitation in saying that I will vote for the eight-hour day. I am in a trade where it is a good day's work if a man puts in eight hours—the plastering trade—which is probably the hardest of all the building trades. I believe the labor agitation will continue until we concede the eight-hour day, and I think we should gracefully anticipate the inevitable."

Delegate John M. Canda, of Canda & Kane, said: "I am opposed to the shorter hours for the simple reason that they are going to hurt our firm. We have a great many horses and carts, and we would lose one-fifth of our time, or be forced to have more horses, carts and drivers. I don't think we could hire our men for less than they get now, even with the shorter hours. I think ten hours a fair day's work, though I know other employers differ from me."

Alternate A. E. Stone said: "My sentiments are for the eight hours. I have employed as many as 125 to 150 plasterers, and ours is a very hard trade. I am ready to give them eight hours. I have even gone so far as to talk the matter over with my men and they expect the eight-hour day to be put into operation on May 1st."

Alternate J. B. Mulry said: "I favor the eight-hour law. My special work is excavating, grading and paving, and I have had as many as fifty horses and carts in work, and I think the concession of shorter hours would create a better feeling between the employer and the employed. It would not affect my outstanding contracts to any extent, as most of my work was done before the winter set in. Besides, if the eight-hour law is adopted, it will not be done without ample notice—several months, at least—so that contractors will know exactly where they stand. It would only affect contractors who had very big jobs that would not be finished until after the date of the change, and these would be very few in number. I think if the men work eight hours it will give them a little more time to get to and fro from their homes. This will encourage them to get away from the tenement districts and find homes in the upper and less crowded and healthier districts. This would indirectly lead to the building up of the northern section of the city and stop many of them from going to Jersey City and Brooklyn, where at present they can get much cheaper rents and get quickly to their work.

Bills Affecting New York and Vicinity in Albany.

By Senator Fassett—Rapid transit measure for New York City. Referred to Railroad Committee. Also bill authorizing and directing Committee on Cities to inquire concerning the government of cities, condition of laws relating thereto, and methods of administration.

The Senate, on Monday, passed a resolution (the Assembly concurring) asking Congress to select New York City as the site for the World's Fair in 1892.

New Members.

Broker Albert Everit, of 1543 9th avenue, has been proposed as a member of the Real Estate Exchange by H. J. Carr, and W. T. Hyde, lawyer, of 60 Broadway, by H. E. Distelhurst.

Jersey City News.

Very little has been done in the direction of new building in Jersey City for the past week or so. The plans filed with Building Inspector Clarke are mainly unimportant, the principal ones being given below.

The Board of Aldermen have received the report of Mr. Clarke, giving the number and cost of buildings for 1889 compared with 1888. This report will be read on Tuesday next, and the figures are as follows: Buildings 991; estimated cost $2,930,857. In 1888 the buildings numbered 905, and their cost was estimated at $3,094,941. In making up these reports the Building Inspector includes alterations and additions. Of the former there were 71, and of the latter 63, so that extracting these there is left 857, which represents the actual number of new buildings projected in 1889, though, as Mr. Clarke said to the writer, many of the alterations meant almost new buildings. In 1888 the alterations numbered 44 and the additions 73, being 788 new buildings projected for that year.

The architects have work in prospect which has not yet been definitely settled upon. R. W. Sailer is preparing plans for a four-story brick and stone front flat, 25x68, with a 13-foot extension, to be built on the south side of 7th street, west of Grove street, at a cost of $13,000, for a lady whose name is withheld.

George W. La Baw is drawing sketches for alterations and additions to the furniture store at No. 53 Newark avenue, to cost $5,000. The work is to be ready by May 1. Mrs. L. Paulmier, of New York, is the owner.

In the New Jersey Legislature a bill has been introduced by Mr. Boyle to abolish bob-tail cars in cities of the first and second class. This would materially affect places like Jersey City and Newark, and the bill is said to be a "strike," with what truth is not known.

A considerable block of meadow land has been purchased by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. It fronts the south side of Grand street, and runs from Mill Creek to a point about 1,000 feet to the west, near Woodward street, and thence back to the Morris Canal, near the site of the old saw-mill. The property contains about 150 lots, and part of it is said to be worth $1,500 a lot. The Evening Journal, in speaking of this purchase, tells the following curious story:

The story of the way the company acquired the title to the first-named tract is somewhat interesting. About twenty years ago Messrs. Keeney and Halladay purchased from the late John C. Van Horn the same tract for $30,000, paying him $10,000 in cash and giving him a bond and mortgage for $20,000; but to avoid personal responsibility they had the land deeded to a trusted employé, and he gave the bond. When the panic of 1873 came the interest stopped, and none has been paid since, nor have any taxes been paid, making an accumulated debt of about $35,000. Mr. Van Horn died, and Mr. John Wenner is the sole surviving executor.

The railroad people went to Wenner and bought the mortgage at a big discount, something like $10,000, it is said, less than its face value. They then went to the holder of the deed, and threatening to sue him on his bond frightened him into giving them a deed of the property, thus securing a tract worth over $50,000 for about half its value.

The company is reported to be endeavoring to acquire all the meadow land bounded by Grand and Montgomery streets, Mill Creek and the foot of the hill nearby. The property purchased is to be used as a general freight yard for delivery, and the numerous tracks which adjoin the canal are to be run across to the ground.

The following are the principal plans filed with the Building Inspector during the past week or so:

One 2-sty fr dwg, 20x45, Deleware ave, bet Duncan ave and the Cemetery, for James Billington, to cost $2,500; three 3-sty fr dwgs, 25x50, on Johnson av, for Edwards & Volhardt, to cost $12,000; one 2-sty fr dwg, 19x50, at 92 Boyd av, for Charles S. Parkeson, to cost $3,500; two 5-sty brk dwgs, 25x55, at 481 Jersey av, for Hy. E. Niese, to cost $10,800 ($5,400 each); one 3-sty fr tenem't, 23x46, on Jackson av, for Chas. Hayers, to cost $4,100; one 2-sty fr dwg, 18x46, on Boyd av, for Geo. M. Craig, to cost $2,600; Michael Donovan, one 3-sty fr dwg, 23x60, at 138 Phillip st, to cost $5,000; three 2-sty fr dwgs, 16x34, on Arlington av, for Herman Brunner, to cost $6,300.

The Health Department.

Among our city departments there are probably none the work of which is more arduous, and on the whole more satisfactory than that of the Health Department. The employés are experts in their own lines, appointed only after passing a Civil Service examination of some difficulty; their work is promptly and efficaciously performed; its regulations, very nearly the first of their kind, have been studied and followed by municipalities all over the country, and since it has come into existence the standard of plumbing work in this city has improved materially. In speaking of the work of the department we refer more particularly to that part of it which affects the building trade of this city, but it is worthy of remark that in every branch of its work it seems to give satisfaction.

We have characterized the Civil Service examination as "difficult." Perhaps a better word to use would be sufficient. In order to be recommended for appointment at all the applicant must get an average of 60 per cent. on the questions asked, but this percentage, although sufficient for a recommendation, is by no means sufficient for an appointment. For although the highest percentage does not always get the place, those who stand the best have the best chance, and as there are always a great many more applicants who pass the examinations than there are vacancies to be filled a man who gets a low percentage does not have much of an opportunity.

The questions that are asked are divided into three classes. There are questions to bring out the general information and intelligence of the applicant, and his knowledge of the different parts of the city and of the functions of his department; his previous training and fitness for the position is inquired into, and a large number of questions of a technical kind have to be answered. Out of a possible ten the general questions count for four, the man's record for two, and the technical questions for four. It would seem as if an examination such as this ought to insure competency in the appointees, provided of course that political considerations do not enter into the selection after the examination is once passed.

At present the city is apportioned among thirteen inspectors of plumbing and ventilation, excluding the chief. The districts, of course, vary in size and importance; but the apportionment is made equitably in so far as the amount of work is concerned. Not long since there were sixteen inspectors, but for lack of funds the number was temporarily reduced. The heads of the department at the time hoped to obtain a sufficiently large appropriation for the coming year to allow them again to increase the numbers; but instead of that the appropriation was reduced, and the present thirteen inspectors have to undertake the work of the sixteen that formerly existed, a number which in itself was too small. All reports agree that the inspectors are very much overworked at present. Not only are they obliged to inspect the buildings, but a large part of the work is clerical.

Each inspector before starting out is given all the calls for inspection that are made within his district, and on these calls a return of some kind has to be made within twenty-four hours—that is unless the call comes in too late to permit the inspector to answer it on the day it is made, he must make some report within twenty-four hours, showing that he has been to the place and has made an examination. This report may not be conclusive, and, indeed, often it is not, for not infrequently calls are made too soon; but the inspector's duty is clear and definite. In case he finds it a physical impossibility to cover his ground he reports the fact to the office and some one else whose work is temporarily lighter is sent to take his place. But so numerous are the calls that it is very seldom that an inspector does not have to work over hours, if not in making inspections, at all events in preparing reports.

In the first place a book has to be kept showing the dates when the calls were made, the date when the returns were given in, the character of such returns, etc. Then two elaborate blanks have to be filled out in respect to each inspection, one for plumbing and one for ventilation, answering questions as to the material of the house sewer, the trap vent pipes, the location of the drain pipe and the fresh air inlet, the adequacy of the water-closet cisterns, the general quality of the workmanship, the dimensions of each light court, the area of the openings at the top of each light and air shaft, and so on. Furthermore, in cases where violations are entered a special report has to be made, and in addition a general weekly report has to be returned. We are informed that at present nearly all this clerical work has to be done by the inspectors after they return home, and when their time ought to be their own. The statement may be exaggerated, but it is said that nearly every one of them is obliged to do from twelve to fourteen hours a week overwork.

It would seem as if this superabundance of work would tell on the quality of the inspections. It is true that there seems to be no flaw in the system of inspection as such, irrespective of the way it is carried out. The questions that must be answered cover the whole ground; but when a man knows that he has enough work ahead of him to occupy him for some time after his hours it is not likely that he will be as careful in making his returns as he would if he was not so pressed. This, however, is only a supposition. After assiduous inquiry we have been unable to find any complaints against the inspectors that deserved attention; and if those interested are satisfied it is futile to argue that they ought not to be. For all that we can learn the inspectors are competent men and the inspections sufficient and efficient. Indeed, for the quality of the work the remuneration is by no means sufficient. The salaries range from $1,260 to $1,600 a year, and by far the majority receive the lower amount. If all that was required for the position was a knowledge of practical plumbing, it might be sufficient, but the inspector must be a man of general intelligence. He has not only got to test pipes and gauge the trustworthiness of material, but he has to make estimates as to the adequacy of ventilation shafts, return readable reports, and exercise discrimination in making his tests and managing his men in case there is any intent to deceive him on the part of the plumber. Yet he is not paid any more than are many of the bookkeeping clerks in the various departments. It is a suggestive fact that two inspectors who were recommended to the department by the Association of Master Plumbers did not outlive their six months' probation. At present the majority of the inspectors are civil engineers.

It would be useless to contend that there are not many defects in the present system. Much time is wasted. The inspector is absolutely at the mercy of anybody who chooses to make a call, and a large percentage of the applications are either useless or else are made too soon. A certain number of unnecessary applications are, of course, to be expected; but the inspectors complain that there are too many of them, and that their work would be considerably lightened if a little more intelligence was displayed by the plumbers and other people who make the calls. The inspector, when the call is made too soon, has no redress whatever, but simply has to trot away and return when things have been made ready. On the other hand, when he comes to make the tests perhaps he has too much power. Inspectors are human and have their moods. They have to subject the pipes to at least a pressure of ten pounds to the square inch; it is left to their discretion whether or not to make the test more stringent. If they are out of sorts from one cause or another, or if they have reason to suspect the plumber, they have the power to use practically as much pressure as they like. There should be some limitation put upon their power; the test should be regulated more closely. Furthermore, not infrequently when the house is built its plan does not give the plumber an opportunity to do good work. We have heard the opinion freely expressed that there ought to be some modification of the building law in this respect. The shaft for the pipes is often so small that it is not possible to make an adequate inspection.

It is thought also that the Health Department ought to have the same hold over the architects that it has over the plumbers. The former are entirely irresponsible, and can with impunity try to evade the regulations. If it can be proved of a plumber that he deliberately has tried to evade the regulation and deceive the inspector, his license can be revoked, or he can be subjected to a fine. But an architect can do the same thing and escape without any penalty. Here is a case in point. A man filed plans for a store which was to cover 85 per cent. of the lot. He put up his two stories, roofed them over, and the inspector passed on the building. Later he tacked on three stories more with the obvious intention of building a tenement, and as a result had to tear down nearly 10 per cent. of his building—which under the law could not occupy more than 78 per cent. of the lot. The man himself was not innocent of sharp practice; but the responsibility really was the architects, who advised him that he could get around the law in that way.

Such matters as these need attention, and should be remedied, but they are only matters of detail. In general New York has to be congratulated on the efficiency of the department. It is a pity, however, that its sphere of operations should be limited, and its employés underpaid by the niggardly policy of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in reducing its appropriations when the work of the department is so arduous and is constantly increasing.

Bills Introduced at Albany.

By Senator Roesch, making the term of the New York Surrogate fourteen years, instead of six.

By Mr. Rhodes, increasing the minimum capital stock of Trust Companies from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

By Mr. Dinkenspiel, providing for the appointment of three additional School Commissioners.

By Mr. Dempsey, making moneys owned by the residents of this State, and loaned outside this State, whether represented or secured by stocks, bonds, mortgages, notes, or other evidences of debt, liable for taxation.

By Mr. Kerrigan, setting apart certain piers along the river fronts for the use of the people.

In the City Departments.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE recently spoke in favor of allowing the Pennsylvania road to build a bridge over West street to connect with their ferry depot, and pointed out what a convenience this would be to the public. The Dock Commissioners, who were applied to, stated that they had no authority in the matter and referred the request to the Corporation Counsel. The latter now advises that the Board of Street Opening and Improvement has authority to grant the request and that the permission of the Dock Commissioners is necessary to give the right to cross that portion of West street between the 70-foot line and the ferry-house which is to be the western terminus of the proposed bridge, The Jersey Central Railroad has asked for a similar privilege, and the city is now considering, before granting the necessary authority to both companies, what compensation it shall receive from them for the privilege.

The Board of Aldermen have set down March 5th for hearing the objections, if any, to the granting of the application of the East River, Central Park and North River Railroad Company, to build a surface road. The line contemplated is to begin at 54th street and the East River, thence north to 85th street, thence west across the Central Park transverse road to West 86th street, and thence to 9th avenue.

An architect who has had fifteen years' practice in New York City investment building, having a valuable experience for the direction of capital in building operations, now desires to discontinue regular practice and associate with a capitalist or an estate as expert in the management of special building investments. Address, Architect, office RECORD AND GUIDE.—Advt.

Real Estate Department.

There is comparatively little new to record about the market. Reports of great activity and extreme dullness are about equally numerous, and although there is no doubt a large inquiry for down-town property it cannot be said that the sales which are made public show a very lively movement. It is quite true that some of the transactions are extremely important, but the greater the magnitude of the transactions the greater is the secrecy thrown around such sales. It is well known that a syndicate has been advertising for down-town properties and some purchases are said to have been completed on this account. But there is more than one syndicate in the market, if the reports given below of the sale of an entire block of west side tenements to an English syndicate proves correct. In the way of dwellings there is little or no movement, and the same is equally true of vacant lots. The leading building loan operators are doing a little, but they are exercising great caution in the selection of builders Another feature in connection with the operations of the building loan capitalists is the effort at secrecy in preventing the public from learning what they pay for and realize for the lots they handle.

The auction market was more active than during the preceding week but this is not saying much. Next week promises to be very dull again. A movement along Riverside Drive was talked of during the week but nothing definite could be ascertained in the way of sales. Whether the activity is due to a stimulus given by the reported purchase of Jay Gould is uncertain. There is little or no doubt but that this handsome drive will some day in the not very distant future be lined by fine mansions. The purchase of block fronts by the Astors, Goelets, C. P. Huntington and others equally well known indicate this result in no uncertain tone.

The offerings on Monday consisted entirely of foreclosure sales of new houses on the west side and beyond the Harlem. There was a fair attendance, but that did not prevent the few parcels disposed of from being secured by interested persons.

Tuesday was the busiest day of the week on 'Change. In fact the offerings were more numerous than they have been for some weeks. The attendance was also large, and considerable interest was taken in the sales. Among the offerings were five five-story flats on the northeast corner of 61st street and 9th avenue, known as the "Essex," on a plot 100.5x150. The bidders were few in number and slow in action. Starting at $162,500 the plot was sold at $165,000. There are mortgages against the property aggregating $160,000 at 5 per cent. interest, held by the German Savings Bank. These flats, which are only partly occupied, were erected in 1882 by John G. Prague, who paid $60,000 for the lots. In 1883 Mr. Prague transferred the property to B. W. Crowninshield and S. W. Rodman for a nominal sum, subject to mortgages for $170,000. Bids were called for in excess of the amount of the mortgages, and the first offer was $2,500. Auctioneer Meyer immediately made a computation and announced $162,500 as the bid, and, as already stated, after but very few bids, two or three, the parcel was sold at $165,000. The buyer proceeded to complete the sale when the sum of $16,500, or 10 per cent. on the purchase price was demanded. He offered to pay 10 per cent. on the amount bid in excess of the mortgage, and said it was at least singular to demand a payment of over $10,000 more than the equity of the owners as shown by the price realized. Quite a scene followed and when the auctioneer was told of the matter, he at once began to designate as skins and swindlers many of the habitues of the Salesroom, whom he declared he would land in jail. Without going into the reasons, the general impression of many investors and dealers is that the remarks were entirely inappropriate. The course to be pursued when objectionable characters indulge in questionable practices is to report them to the Exchange, which would no doubt take action in the matter. As the sale was not completed, the property was subseqently sold at private contract to Martin & Bro. The terms have not transpired. It is well known that some persons who attend the Exchange are in the habit of acting in a very objectionable manner, and no one is able to observe their tricks better than the auctioneer. Mr. Meyer had no doubt often witnessed some queer work ere he spoke as he did. Four lots on 13th and 14th streets, between Avenues C and D, were disposed of at $30,500, which is considered cheap. A lot and a-half on 129th street, near Madison avenue, with a two-story frame dwelling, was sold to Stephen Lovejoy at $13,600, against $11,000 obtained therefor in 1867.

Wednesday was a dull day at the Salesroom. The attendance was fair, but the sales were few and unimportant. A five-story factory on Baxter street, near Grand, No. 147, on a lot 25.8x100, was sold to John H. Didier for $28,000, which is but little in advance of the amount due on the mortgage foreclosed. For the dwelling No. 26 West 30th street there were no bids and it was withdrawn.

On Thursday the offerings were not very numerous, or the properties especially attractive. Two leaseholds were embraced, including No. 55 Vesey street, the first bid on which was very low. A long and stubborn contest followed between a few speculators and a Vesey street merchant, and the latter finally got the lease on a bid of $6,575. A new and handsome corner house on Lenox avenue was sold under foreclosure for $41,150, about the amount due on the first mortgage. The tenements and stores Nos. 271 and 273 7th avenue and 158 and 160 West 26th street were offered together, and knocked down at $70,500. The same parcel was put up last October and struck down at $72,250.

Only two sales were held at the Salesroom yesterday, and both were unimportant.

On Tuesday, January 28th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the three-story and basement, high stoop, brick and brown stone dwelling, with a four-story brick extension covering lot, No. 192 Baltic street, Brooklyn, 24.6x100.

On Wednesday, January 29th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the five-story brick tenement with store and a one-story brick extension, 22x71, No. 1291 3d avenue, the four-story brick building with store covering the lot No. 190 Fulton street, southwest corner of Church street, and the four-story, high stoop, brown stone dwellings Nos. 44 and 46 West 97th street.

On Monday, February 3d, Richard V. Harnet & Co. will sell the five-story brown stone apartment house with store, No. 951 6th avenue, southwest corner of 54th street.

Gossip of the Week.

Wm. P. Kirk, ex-Alderman, was seen on 'Change during the week. He is a large owner of down-town realty.

It is really astonishing how many men one meets down town nowadays carrying small satchels, and the practice seems to be growing. We know of a number of real estate brokers who "carry a grip," which invariably contains data of sales which they use when they appear as appraisers in the damage suits against the "L" roads, or in proceedings for the condemnation of lands wanted for public purposes.

The expert appraiser of the Dock Department, a man with twenty-five years' experience, testified during the week that the value of water-front property in the vicinity of the Starin and Jersey Central Railroad piers has advanced from 50 to 100 per cent. in the last ten or twelve years. The piers referred to are located at the foot of Courtlandt and Liberty streets. The Pennsylvania Ferry is between the two.

We hear that W. A. White & Son have leased for the heirs of Cornelia M. Stewart the Metropolitan Hotel on Broadway. Messrs. Hildreth & Allen are the lessees, and the terms for a term of 10 years are said to vary from a figure in excess of $75,000 for the first five years to a higher figure for the last five years.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

A. P. Stokes is reported to have bought a large piece on the south side of Cedar street, between William and Nassau streets, through E. H. Ludlow & Co. The figure mentioned is $300,000.

It is reported in real estate circles that the five-story stone front store and office building No. 173 Broadway, northwest corner of Cortlandt street, has been sold to the same persons who recently bought Nos. 177 and 179 Broadway. The particulars could not be ascertained.

George H. B. Hill has sold the five-story stone front office building Nos. 57 and 59 William street, south of Cedar street, size 33.4x64.8x irregular, at $150,000 to the London and Lancashire Fire Insurance Co. This shows an advance of 50 per cent. on the figure paid, viz.: $100,000, by Mr. Hill, just one year ago. Previously the property had been sold at auction for $80,000. Broker, Geo. R. Read.

The Otteudorfer estate has sold the "Bella" apartment house on the southwest corner of 26th street and 4th avenue. It has a frontage on the avenue of 50 feet and on the street of 150 feet x 98.9 deep on the rear line. The terms have not transpired, and the buyer is said to be a Wall street capitalist. Broker, W. W. Thompson.

Mayer Kahn has purchased the full lot No. 193 Mercer street, 25x100, with an old building on private terms.

Max S. Korn has sold the vacant lot No. 30 Rose street, size about 25x100, to Thomas Brennan for $18,000, with a loan for improvement.

In another column will be found the statement of the United States branch of the Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Company for the year 1889—one of the largest of the many English fire insurance companies doing business in this country. This statement shows assets amounting to the handsome figure of $7,337,156.31, an increase of more than $500,000 over the preceding year. All of this is invested in Federal, State and city bonds or real estate. Moreover, the surplus of income over expenditure is $413,696.77, and this is in spite of the fact that the company was largely interested in the fires at Boston, Lynn, Spokane Falls and Seattle.

Henry B. Stacey has a finely located office for carrying on a real estate and brokerage business, at the corner of 116th street and 8th avenue, close to Morningside Park and Manhattan avenue. He tells us that at the present time he has some superior double tenements and good class flats to dispose of at most remunerative prices. Also a number of moderate priced residences adjoining Morningside Park for sale or rental. Should the World's Fair be held here he anticipates a brisk demand for vacant lots in his neighborhood, as he is situated on what will have to be the main eastern approach to the Fair grounds.

They are only successors, Mr. Bickelhoupt says, of Adam Bickelhoupt, and have not all the business of the late firm of Bickelhoupt Bros., and that he is the only person bearing the name of Bickelhoupt who is manufacturing metallic skylights and does business as successor of Bickelhoupt Bros. He further states that the use of the name of the Bickelhoupt Skylight Works is intended to deceive the trade.
